A Stranger Views Nation of Castes.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BOMBAY, Sept. 24.—[By Mail.]—The Gateway of India appears above the waters. Still waters, a sunset sky of softly changing beauty, and then this solid structure of British stone, etched against towers, domes, and minarets, opening upon a restless human scene.

A tremendous harbor improvement here by which liners are towed from the wide bay into canals and locks and brought to rest in the heart of the city, much as they might enter the Chicago river.

This city of a million and more is built along the bay front. Hotels, office buildings, and public structures show the mingled efforts of English architects of the Victorian school and the oriental influence, like the mingled odors of the east that are carried on the tepid sea breezes. It is a city of bulk and apparent stability, startling contrasts, a wierd tapestry of life.

Snake Charmer Plys His Trade.

And "Charlie" lifts his hooded cobra head higher and higher and sways to the music. A mongoose is pulled out of a bag and baby snakes dumped on the pavement. It is all for the benefit of a stray European. The Indians are not even interested when the magician makes a mango tree grow out of a nut covered with a little dirt and stirred into life by the same music that called "Charlie" from his slumbers.

In the evening procession may be seen lordly and dignified Hindus, in snow white turbans, casting proud glances at the world at their feet. A sacred cow wanders along the sea wall, following her own will. Beggar women with tiny babies call to the "sahib" and follow persistently for a block unless they are tossed a copper. They slap their bare stomachs to indicate that they are hungry and show the tiny hand of the baby, sleeping, perhaps, from opium.

Sleep on the Sidewalks.

In areaways, side streets, and little parks the lowly of the low are reclining for the evening meal. Later they will sleep there, on the pavement under the stars, half naked, covered with dirt and rags. The stones are stained with betel nut juice of reddish color. Scavenger crows, dogs, bullocks, women with caste marks on their foreheads, babies with eyes blackened to keep away the evil spirits.

A block or two away beautiful Parsee women in long head veils, silks, and jewels, and Europeans from the boats and the business houses, are listening to the latest Hollywood talkie or sitting around the dance floor of the Taj Mahal hotel cabaret, where the luxurious night life of the city blooms.

An American traveler becomes at once a "sahib" in India. Porters, doormen, shopkeepers, all the lower and working classes, salute him. He must have a native servant at once. He must move in restricted circles and is put on a pedestal and milked for all the rupees and small change that his ignorance permits. A two price country. One price for the traveling European, another for the native. Small pieces of copper money are only handled by the low class people.

Religion Is Dominant Interest.

Where politics and business form the dominant interests in most communities, here it is religion, or what passes for religion. It is not a matter of Sunday only, for Sunday is not observed here, but a vital, everyday concern, touching all contacts of work and play.

All India is in a ferment now over the "untouchables." There are said to be sixty million of these, nominally within the Hindu fold, but shut out of the temples for centuries. Now the cry is "fling wide the gates." How can the universal God, so gentle and humble, so filled with mercy and love, shut the doors of his temple against any human being, the reformers ask.

But tradition, running down from the Aryan invasion, and contact with the black aborigines, has set up these barriers, and they are hard to break down. The process, however, has begun, and by a sort of miracle the holy gates have been opened in many cities recently to the outcasts.

Among the untouchables themselves

ATTACKS G. O. P. "WET" PLANK AS TRICKERY

Baltimore Crowd Yells Approval.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The "Four Horsemen" of Republicanism were identified tonight by Franklin D. Roosevelt in a denunciation of President Hoover and the Republican leadership of the nation.

In such fighting trim as he hasn't shown before, Mr. Roosevelt blamed all the misfortunes of the day on his opponent in the campaign for the presidency, and he declared directly for modification of the Volstead act to permit the states to authorize manufacture and sale of beer.

New "Four Horsemen."

In their wake Mr. Roosevelt found the trail of economic and social ills which have beset the land. He had an assemblage of 15,000 Maryland Democrats crowding up to the rafters of the Baltimore armory in a state of almost continuous applause. They cheered and whistled as they showed their enjoyment of the old fashioned political lambasting which Mr. Roosevelt was giving to the Grand Old Party. After the speech Gov. Roosevelt left for New York, closing his latest campaign tour.

Ritchie Lauds Roosevelt.

The New York governor was introduced in a glowing eulogy by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, who was a leading contender for the Democratic presidential nomination. Roosevelt charged President Hoover with "pure and unadulterated pessimism" and with "hair shirt hypocrisy." The opposite stands taken by Mr. Hoover and Vice President Curtis on prohibition gave Gov. Roosevelt an opportunity, of which he made the most, to use satire.

Gov. Roosevelt's denunciation of the Republican wet and dry stand was presented as one of the evils left in the wake of the "Horseman of Deceit."

"Nothing could be more clear than the declaration of the Democratic platform," Roosevelt said, "and nothing can be more clear than my acceptance of it. The Republican convention adopted, as you all know, a prohibition statement that was intended to sound wet to the wets and dry to the drys. The trouble was it ended by deceiving no one. It sounded dry to the wets, and wet to the drys.

Recalls Hoover Speech.

"So the presidential candidate attempted to correct it. He added new elements of confusion. He promised to work for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment with a very important reservation. Everything went well, but suddenly the Vice President was heard from. He attempted to make provision for a dry interpretation of what the President meant as an appeal to the wets.

"Thus it looked as if the ticket was facing both ways. But on close examination it was found that the vice presidential candidate was indubitably dry, the presidential candidate was only half dry.

"The result of this curious attempt to move two ways on a one-way street, however, was to resolve the Republican ticket into a sort of whirling motion that meant to the voter, honestly attempting to make a choice, only a dizzy exhibition of uncertainty.

A Word as to Beer.

"Here is where the issue stands, my friends. No honest wet and no honest dry can approve of such political tactics. It is the most palpable attempt to defraud the American people that we have seen in our time.

"And a word as to beer. I favor the modification of the Volstead act to permit states to authorize the manufacture and sale of beer. This is a way to divert three hundred million dollars or more from the pockets of the racketeers to the treasury of the United States.

"The Horseman of Deceit was certainly riding high when the Republican leaders were trying to make up their minds about the 18th amendment."

Crowd Shouts for Beer.

When Gov. Roosevelt referred to beer a storm hit the armory. The seated spectators yelled for several minutes, stood up and shouted again and again.

The speaker put up his right hand

Greek Posing of a Princess Shocks Police

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 25.—An episode of ancient Greece with modern characters was enacted before the caryatid statues on Parthenon hill this afternoon. The profane eyes of the Acropolis guards by mere chance detected the Princess de Broglie of Paris posing in a classic setting for her photograph with all her clothes off. The princess, who is 40 years old and related to the royal family of France, is an amateur lover of art.

The photograph was taken by a close friend of the princess, Count de Pariente, also of Paris. He wore the same costume as the princess.

The princess explained to the guards that the photographs were being taken in the interests of classic art. From a distance the guards ordered her and the count to put on their clothes and the episode ended with a mere confiscation of the films the two had taken, as well as the camera.

The princess and the count left Athens later in the day for Italy. Princess De Broglie came to Greece a few days ago to make a study of classical sculpture. Because of her reputation as an amateur lover of art she obtained permission from Greek antiquarian authorities for herself and the count to spend a couple of hours on the Acropolis between noon and 2 o'clock, when it is closed to the public.

With none to prey upon them, they disrobed amid the columns of the Parthenon, known in classical times as the temple of virgins. Several pictures were taken and as the pair were proceeding in the nude to other interesting settings the guards appeared. According to the guards, the princess grabbed the camera and ordered the count to pose as Adonis in front of the caryatids before the camera was confiscated.

Sheriff on Bandit Hunt Is Robbed of Armored Car

Sheriff E. J. Welter of La Salle county, who came to Chicago last night to hunt an escaped companion of seven bandits who were captured yesterday after they had robbed the First National bank at Ransom, lost his $3,500 armored automobile to thieves early this morning. The sheriff and three deputies had parked the bullet proof sedan at Western avenue and Cullerton street and had gone about their investigating. When they returned at 3 a. m. residents of the neighborhood told them that ten minutes before a gang of men had departed in the automobile, which carries an armament of a machine gun and two sawed off shotguns. Sheriff Welter reported his loss to the Marquette police.

DIVIDEND ON STEEL SEEN AS AN AUGURY OF NEW PROSPERITY

New York, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—One of the most significant auguries of confidence in industrial circles over a bright outlook for business in general and the steel industry in particular was seen in the declaration today of the regular dividend on the preferred stock of the United States Steel corporation.

It was recalled in financial circles here that at its meeting three months ago the board of the steel corporation warned that no further dividends, common or preferred, would be voted unless conditions took a turn for the better. Hence today's action had a warm reception in Wall street as an anticipation of better times ahead.

Coming after the close of the market, the dividend announcement had no effect on stock prices, but the share list had a steady undertone while waiting for the news.

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 25.—(AP)—The house of representatives overrode Gov. Miller's veto today and passed a bill to legalize Sunday movies, baseball, golf, and tennis in Birmingham, Montgomery, and Mobile.

Mother Smith Invites Plenty of Customers

A dozen housewives, who in recent weeks followed Mrs. Iona Smith's directions to go out to Downers Grove on Route 18 and to stop two miles beyond the suburb at the first yellow house on the side of the road, confronted Mrs. Smith at the detective bureau showup last night.

Mrs. Smith, 52 years old, of motherly mien, who says she was once a wealthy resident of Columbus, O., with maids and motors, was taken into custody during the afternoon at Madison street and Ogden avenue by Mrs. Maude Maloney of 618 South Ashland boulevard. Mrs. Maloney was one of the women who had followed the directions to the yellow house.

Mrs. O'Mara Explains.

The reason for Mrs. Smith's detention and for the appearance of the dozen housewives at the showup was explained by Mrs. Mary O'Mara of 6116 South Marshfield avenue, who also had gone to the yellow house.

"Mrs. Smith came to my house a few weeks ago," related Mrs. O'Mara. "She told me a hard luck story about being hungry and being without money to get back to Downers Grove. Her manner was so gentle, and she looked so motherly that I believed her.

"I gave her 62 cents, and in appreciation she invited me to her home. She said she would repay the money and in addition sell me fresh vegetables and young chickens for almost nothing. She wrote out directions to a little yellow house on the side of the road. The idea of fresh vegetables and chickens appealed to me, and I went to the yellow house. Then I learned I had been fooled. She didn't live there."

75 Women in Same Boat.

The stories of the other women were similar. All went out to the yellow house for vegetables and chickens, but got nothing. Mrs. Smith admitted the truth of the stories. The police said she had fooled about seventy-five women, fifty of whom made the journey to Downers Grove. However, the police said they didn't know what they could do about prosecuting Mrs. Smith unless, perhaps, Rudolph Eichart would help.

Mr. Eichart is the occupant of the yellow house on the side of the road. For the last two months he has been busy and annoyed explaining to irate women that Mrs. Smith doesn't live there.

THE DAY IN POLITICS

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

DEMOCRATS.

BALTIMORE.—Gov. Roosevelt concluded western and southern swing with speech saying he is waging war "Against the four horsemen of the present Republican leadership—the horsemen of destruction, delay, deceit, despair."

NEW YORK.—The National Progressive league announced that Senators Johnson of California and Cutting of New Mexico, both independent Republicans, will speak this week for the Roosevelt-Garner ticket.

REPUBLICANS.

WASHINGTON.—President Hoover announced he will speak Friday night at Indianapolis.

CINCINNATI.—Secretary Mills in a campaign speech said "the country certainly knows Democratic success means all of the uncertainties that inevitably accompany a general tariff revision.

CUMBERLAND, Md. — Secretary Doak said in speech that Gov. Roosevelt is "willing apparently to sing any song that will charm the ears of the people."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—At least one and almost certainly two more political invasions of the middle west are to be made by President Hoover in final preelection efforts to swing the doubtful states of that section into the Republican column by election day, Nov. 8.

The first trip will take the President to Indiana Friday, where he will speak at Indianapolis that night. A week later, according to the program outlined by a high official today, President Hoover will don his fighting togs for a final windup campaign trip which will take him through Ohio, Illinois, and probably Missouri for speeches in those states. It is possible that on this trip the President will speak in Minneapolis and Milwaukee.

Chicago Appears Off List.

Although it was first believed that the Illinois speech would be delivered in Chicago, Republican officials said today the President is considering speaking at Springfield instead. Quincy also is considered a possibility for the presidential address. Earlier it had appeared certain that the President would speak at Chicago the day following his Indianapolis trip, but that plan has been canceled.

As things now stack up this looks like the schedule for the President's final fighting bid for the votes of the American electorate. On Friday the President will speak at Indianapolis and then immediately return to the capital.

Goes on Air Nov. 7.

On the following Monday, Oct. 31, the President makes his major campaign appearance in the east with an address at Madison Square Garden, New York City. Arriving back in Washington Tuesday morning the President is expected to spend a couple of days working on speeches and clearing his desk for his final western tour.

On Thursday, Nov. 3, he is expected to arrive in Illinois for a speech that night. The next two days will be spent campaigning, with the President arriving in the capital Sunday. On Monday night, Nov. 7, the President will go on the air, according to current plans, for a final White House appeal for votes.

POLITICAL SHOW IN NEW YORK IS TENSE THRILLER

Its 47 Votes May Mean Election.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

New York, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—New York, which always may be depended upon for the production of exciting politics, has outdone itself in this election.

The political drama presented here is a thriller of the first water. It is a maze of plot and counterplot interweaving the destinies of the nation with the fortunes of feudal political barons, with Broadway gayeties, with grafting and racketeering, with tax eaters, social climbers, venal judges, big business men, Jews, Catholics, bigots, powerful bureaucrats, reformers, bootleggers, preachers, and wharf rats.

Nation Watches Drama.

For more than a year the country has been following with intense interest the developments in this thriller because of the realization of its profound bearing upon the outcome of the presidential election. New York, with its 47 electoral votes, the largest block of votes in the electoral college, is the choicest prize of the contest. Upon the winning of New York more gray matter and money are expended than upon any dozen other states, for to win New York gives a candidate such a comfortable feeling.

In this election the vote of New York is vital to President Hoover's prospects. He may be defeated even if he carries New York, but nothing is more certain than that he will be defeated if he fails to annex those 47 votes of the Empire state. Roosevelt can win without New York, but Hoover cannot. And what New York is going to do is a matter of guesswork today.

Long in G. O. P. Column.

With the exception of 1912, when the Republicans were split, New York has not gone Democratic in a presidential election since Cleveland carried it in 1892. It frequently elects Democratic senators and governors and other state officials in the "off years" and even in presidential election years, as it did Smith in 1924 and Roosevelt and Copeland in 1928. Al Smith carried the state four times for himself for governor, but could not carry it for himself for President. And his only defeat for governor was in the Harding landslide of 1920.

In this campaign Mr. Hoover started out with the natural predilection of New York for Republican Presidents in his favor. Powerfully modifying the value of this factor, however, was the depression born reaction against the party in power among the urban unemployed and the debt ridden farmers, the antagonism of rural drys to Mr. Hoover because of his flop on prohibition, and ructions in the party organization between the old guard Republican leaders and the Hoover "Boy Scouts."

Democrats Also Have Tangles.

At the same time the Republicans were favored by family jangles of an even more serious character and import among the Jeffersonians. Al Smith and his enormous following, chiefly Roman Catholics, deeply resented the nomination of Roosevelt. Tammany hated Roosevelt because of the fate of Mayor Jimmy Walker, who was about to be removed from office by the governor when he beat a retreat by resigning.

So serious was this breach that Roosevelt was threatened with the loss of Democratic New York City and therefore of the entire state. Though succeeding developments have brought both Smith and Tammany professedly into line for the governor, the Republican managers are still counting on a good deal of this Democratic resentment being registered in the voting booths to the profit of Hoover.

The entry of Roosevelt into politics as a young man was as a Tammany baiter, and twice his chief value as nominator of Al Smith, Tammany chieftain, in Democratic national conventions was the fact that he represented up-state, non-Tammany Democracy.

Smith and Roosevelt.

Smith made Roosevelt governor in 1928. The record breaking majority of Roosevelt for reelection in 1930 made him over night a candidate for President as Democracy's white hope for carrying Republican New York.

By the early months of 1932, however, Smith was fighting Roosevelt as a demagogue and rival for the nomination and Tammany's hand was turned against the governor because he had failed to stay the remorseless beadury investigation of Tammany corruption. Roosevelt triumphed at Chicago through the Hearst-McAdoo deal, with Smith and Tammany opposing him to the end.

The understanding that Tammany would knife Roosevelt in the election was strengthened when Walker resigned in protest against his trial by Roosevelt and announced he would seek vindication in an election to the office he had relinquished. Denunciation of Roosevelt was to be his battle cry and Tammany was to be arrayed against the governor in his defense. It was clear that such a situation would cost Roosevelt the vote of New York City.

Good Political Strategy.

Those were blue days for Roosevelt and his manager, Jim Farley, but they kept mum, hoping for a favorable turn of events, and they did not hope in vain. Incidentally they helped events along with some skillful political maneuvering.

Lieut. Gov. Lehman, a Jew who commanded the support of the enormous Jewish vote of the metropolis, was Roosevelt's choice for the nomination for governor. He was also the choice of Al Smith, but not of Boss Curry of Tammany. Among the numerous evidences of Curry's antagonism to Roosevelt following the convention was the booming by Tammany of a rival to Lehman.

In the state convention, however, Curry was worsted by Roosevelt and Smith, who fought shoulder to shoulder for Lehman and incidentally became reconciled as they shook hands in the glare of the Kleig lights, the brown derby affectionately addressing Roosevelt as "old potato."

Result in Some Doubt.

Whether this apparent reconciliation and speeches Smith has made for the ticket have completely removed the Smith curse from Roosevelt is a debatable matter inasmuch as Al has not succeeded so far in working up any great enthusiasm for the candidate in his utterances.

His defeat in the Lehman affair left Curry fighting for self-preservation as Tammany boss against the Smith faction and other elements of the organization. His position was made even more precarious when the courts cleared the way for a mayoralty election and that opportunity to seek vindication for which Walker had professed to be yearning. No less uneasy than Curry was Roosevelt, whom Walker's candidacy would have threatened with the loss of Tammany's bailiwick, Manhattan.

Danger Is Averted.

Subsequent developments averted the dangers threatening both Curry and Roosevelt.

Acting Mayor McKee had caught the public fancy with his economy and other reform programs, and E. J. Flynn, Bronx leader and Roosevelt appointee to public office, served notice that McKee would run if Walker did. The loyalty of Boss McCooey's Brooklyn to Walker also was in doubt.

It began to look as if Walker would be defeated, in which event Tammany would lose its mortgage on the patronage and Curry would lose his job. A tip was radioed to Walker, homecoming by ship, to swallow his desire for vindication and refuse to be a candidate, which he did.

The city Democrats then got together on Surrogate John P. O'Brien, Tammany man, for mayor, and the Republicans put up an admittedly weak candidate, Lewis H. Pounds.

Curry has got out an enormous registration, seeking an overwhelming vindication of Tammany in the mayoralty election, and to the extent that straight tickets are voted this will inure to the benefit of Roosevelt.

At the same time, the Republican candidacy of Catholic "Wild Bill" Donovan for governor is expected to attract the votes of many Tammany men disposed to knife Lehman.

OWNERS HOPEFUL MAYOR WILL LET SHOWBOAT DOCK

A hope that Mayor Cermak would reconsider his refusal to permit the showboat Dixiana to dock in the Chicago river and present old fashioned melodramas was expressed yesterday by Edwin Wapler, manager of the Great Lakes Showboat corporation.

The mayor said that he would not discuss the matter further. The showboat's owners, however, still believe that the mayor may allow the boat in the river, according to Wapler.

"All the men behind the showboat enterprise are Chicago taxpayers," Wapler pointed out. "We will pay the regular amusement license fee and in addition will pay $450 docking fees. I am sure the attractions presented by the showboat will not hurt the regular theater business in the loop."

DEMOCRATS ASK CANADIANS FOR ELECTION FUNDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 25.—Canadians are being asked to contribute to the Democratic party in the United States and assist Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt in the presidential election.

A prominent local shipping man today received a letter from James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national campaign committee, telling him the United States needs a change in public administration and that the only way to bring about that consummation is to elect Gov. Roosevelt.

"If you are sympathetic with this view we shall greatly appreciate any financial assistance you may be willing to accord us," the letter says.

Suppressed Wickersham Finding Is Printed.

New York, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The conclusion that Thomas J. Mooney and Warren K. Billings were tried unfairly when they were convicted of murder and that their prosecution included instances of "flagrant violations of the statutory law of California" is contained in what has come to be known as the "suppressed Mooney-Billings report of the Wickersham commission."

It also is asserted in the report that no scientific attempt ever was made either by the police or the prosecution to find the perpetrators of the crime for which Mooney and Billings are serving life terms in California.

The report was written by a committee attached to the section on lawless enforcement of law of the Wickersham commission.

Issued in Book Form.

The text of the report will be issued in book form tomorrow by Gotham House, publishers, with offices here.

The report contains the following conclusions:

1. There was never any scientific attempt made by either the police or the prosecution to discover the perpetrators of the crime. The investigation was in reality turned over to a private detective, who used his position to cause the arrest of the defendants. The police investigation was reduced to a hunt for evidence to convict the arrested defendants.

2. There were flagrant violations of the statutory law of California by both the police and the prosecution in the manner in which the defendants were arrested and held incommunicado and in the subsequent searches of their homes.

Not Legally Identified.

3. After the arrest of the defendants, witnesses were brought to the jails to "identify" them, and their "identifications" were accepted by the police and the prosecution, despite the fact that these witnesses were never required to pick the defendants out of a lineup.

4. Immediately after the arrests of the defendants there commenced a deliberate attempt to arouse public prejudice against them by a series of almost daily interviews given to the press by prosecuting officials.

5. Witnesses were produced at the trials with information in the hands of the prosecution that seriously challenged the credibility of the witnesses, but this information was deliberately concealed.

6. Witnesses were permitted to testify at the trials despite such knowledge in the possession of the prosecution of prior contradictory stories told by these witnesses as to make their mere production a vouching for perjured testimony.

Witnesses Coached.

7. Witnesses were coached in their testimony to a degree that approximated subornation of perjury. There is a strong inference that some of this coaching was by prosecuting officials.

8. The prejudice against the defendants, stimulated by newspaper publicity, was further appealed to at the trial by unfair and intemperate arguments to the jury.

9. After the trials the disclosures casting doubt on the justice of the convictions were minimized and every attempt made to defeat the liberation of the defendants by a campaign of misrepresentation and propaganda carried on by the officials who had prosecuted them.

Bingham Addresses Chicago Audience

AMERICA NEEDS A GOOD 5c BEER, SAYS BINGHAM

Hits Democratic Pledges at Coliseum Rally.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, who led the losing fight in the Republican national convention for a dripping wet plank, told an audience of 5,000 in the Coliseum last night that what America needs is a "good 5 cent glass of wholesome 4 per cent beer," but that it has no chance to get it from the Democrats. He said the Democratic national convention was a conclave of "patent medicine men" who adopted a wet plank "not worth the foam on a stein of beer."

When it came to their national liquor plank, Senator Bingham intimated the Democrats "needled" it, their concern being more to get the voters jingled with wet promises than in trying to repeal the 18th amendment and to modify the Volstead act.

Cites Voting Records.

The voting records of the two senators from Illinois, Otis F. Glenn, Republican, and James Hamilton Lewis, Democrat, were cited by the Connecticut wet as proof of his contention that "Democrats do not vote as they talk," and that in congress more Republicans than Democrats have voted for beer.

Senator Lewis, he said, who had been elected on a wet plank, voted dry on the Bingham beer bill when the convention was over. Senator Glenn, on the other hand, he pointed out, voted for beer.

The "father of the bill to legalize beer," brought down the Coliseum when he remarked:

"It's a wet night, outside and in. Thousands of patriotic Americans want a good five cent glass of wholesome beer or a ten cent bottle distributed under such state and federal regulations as will guarantee the protection of the American home.

Outlaws Buttermilk.

"The Volstead act—never was a law so disrespected because it did not tell the truth. It says anything over one-half of one per cent of alcohol is intoxicating. Why, buttermilk contains three-fourths of one per cent."

"When the Democratic convention assembled in Chicago," he said, "among those present in spirit, if not in the flesh, was your gracious United States Senator Lewis. That remarkable convention of patent medicine men was more concerned in brewing a concoction to make the public dizzy and win votes than in providing a cure for economic ills.

"They are now trying to sell their product, but it's proving to be a tough job. One of their bottles is labeled repeal. They also promised to give the country beer at once.

Ridicule of Beer Resolution.

"But the Democrats do not vote as they drink or talk—and that includes Senator Lewis, who, when put to the test, ridiculed the resolution I introduced into the senate for a referendum. United States Senator Glenn, one of the outstanding statesmen of the nation, favored the resolution.

"Every time a vote on beer has come up in the house or senate there were found to be more Republicans voting for it than Democrats. The truth is, Democratic promises are not worth the foam on a good stein of beer. Just like their promise of a government job to every man out of work, their promise of beer to those who like it is for the sole purpose of winning votes.

"When the Democratic convention in Chicago adopted a plank favoring the immediate modification of the Volstead act to permit the manufacture of beer, I thought they meant what they said. I thought they really had come to believe that there were these great advantages to be gained from it—namely: promoting temperance, helping business and increasing the revenue of the government.

"As soon as they came back from Chicago I gave them a chance to put their new belief into action. Your Democratic senator voted against me. Your Republican Senator Glenn spoke for it and voted for it.

"If they really had this faith they should show it by action. Faith without works is dead. What did they do? They dodged the issue. Only four of the twenty-two Democratic senators who were at Chicago voted that 'immediate' meant now. Only four were willing to go along with the Republicans who favored beer in voting for the immediate modification of the Volstead act.

"Had the Democrats meant what they said in their platform, had their candidate for the presidency urged immediate action, we might have had relief today."

The Coliseum massmeeting was attended by most of the Republican candidates, state and county. After the Bingham address and well into the night the horns sounded and Len Small and a former mayor paraded into the hall. Earlier in the evening Senator Bingham addressed a dinner of young Republicans at the Morrison hotel.

GARNER ASSERTS G. O. P. BARES OWN EXTRAVAGANCE

Cites Party Textbook for Hoover Figures.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Taking his figures, he said, from the Republican campaign textbook, Speaker Garner declared:

"Here is the story they tell: In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930, the 'total expenditures chargeable against ordinary receipts, excluding public debt retirement and interest'—to use the words of the campaign document itself—were $2,781,000,000. For the year ending June 30, 1932, the amount classified under the same heading and taken from the same source was $3,994,700,000.

"These Hoover figures, dealing only with Hoover years, show an increase in the cost of government of $1,213,700,000."

Takes Mills to Task.

Mr. Garner described the President and Secretary of the Treasury Mills as "leaders of a tearful chorus," which has been lately "more than ordinarily plaintive" in seeking to defend three years of "maladministration."

He said that he would anticipate the "alibi" of the Republican candidate by admitting that the increase in expenditures included amounts appropriated for the federal farm board, the Reconstruction Finance corporation and the expansion of the credit facilities of the federal land banks.

"But," said the Democratic candidate, "when Mr. Hoover takes the credit he must count the cost."

Mr. Garner pointed out also that the public debt had been increased $3,302,000,000 from June 30, 1930, to June 30, 1932. He thought that Mr. Hoover and his friends might be suffering from "a convenient form of amnesia" concerning many events of the past three years.

The President, Mr. Garner said, made much of his message to congress of last Dec. 8.

"The recollection of the American people who have been brought to hunger, want, suffering, and despair goes back much beyond last Dec. 8," said the speaker.

Worse Off Than Europe.

He remarked also on Secretary Mills' statement that the financial panic of September, 1931, was due directly to the European collapse. Without noting that Mr. Mills' reference was to the "financial" panic, and ignoring the date of this panic's commencement, Mr. Garner continued:

"If that was the beginning of our difficulties, in the opinion of Mr. Hoover's secretary of the treasury, he is too far removed from the people of the United States ever to be able to understand their trouble."

Conditions in the United States, Mr. Garner intimated, were so much worse than abroad that it would be impossible to "justify the theory that foreign infection has poisoned our economic bloodstream." He asserted that 11,000,000 American workers, or nine per cent of the total population, were unemployed, while only 9,161,000 persons in England, France, Germany, and Italy, or five per cent of their total populations, were unemployed.

"The truth of the matter is," Mr. Garner concluded, "that President Hoover and his associates have become involved in a series of 'would have,' 'if,' and 'but' apologies."

MRS. WILLEBRANDT NOT SET ON SMITH BY HIM, DONOVAN SAYS

Binghamton, N. Y., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Col. William J. Donovan tonight said: "Gov. Smith's statement at Newark, N. J., that I was a part of the committee which prepared or directed Mrs. Willebrandt's speeches is an absolute untruth."

"I had nothing to do with Mrs. Willebrandt's part of the campaign in 1928," the Republican candidate for the governorship told a political rally here.

Donovan was referring to that part of Smith's speech in which the former governor said Donovan sat upon the "board of strategy" directing the 1928 campaign when Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, then an assistant attorney general, made a speech which Smith said "aroused bigotry and intolerance."

Mrs. Willebrandt Flattered.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Mabel Willebrandt, former militant champion of the prohibition cause, eschewed all argument and adopted a "spirit of levity" here tonight in commenting upon the Newark speech of Al Smith.

"Mr. Smith has done me a great honor," Mrs. Willebrandt said. "I have given out no statement of consequence for four years and I am greatly flattered that a gentleman of such high position and distinction as Mr. Smith should remember me so long."

LT. GOV. LEHMAN IN AUTO CRASH, BUT IS UNHURT

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman narrowly escaped serious injury and two members of his party were painfully hurt in an automobile accident east of Egypt tonight.

A state highway truck crashed against the Lehman car, turning it from its course. The truck then crashed into an open car containing members of the party and overturned it in the ditch.

John L. A. Halpin, Schenectady Democrat, was hurled into the air about 10 feet and struck on his head and back. He was unconscious when picked up.

George Harder, secretary to the state Democratic committee, was painfully bruised and shaken.

Halpin and Harder were taken to Rochester.

City to Buy 30 Trucks for Hauling of Garbage

The city is to buy thirty trucks for the disposal of garbage and refuse to take the place of trucks which it now rents for such work, Mayor Cermak announced yesterday. The trucks are larger than those now rented, and they will be paid for with the money now used for rentals. The sales company will deliver them for a 5 per cent down payment, getting the rest of the money in monthly payments.

Accused Ex-Banker Suicide After New Jersey Arrest

Hackensack, N. J., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Stanley L. Doremus, 57, former president of the Edgewater Trust company, arrested last Saturday on a charge of embezzling $7,000 of the bank's funds, was found dead in a garage behind his home this afternoon.

SWANSON WARS ON 'SECRET 6' AS REFORM RACKET

Calls Randolph Charges Utterly False.

State's Attorney Swanson in a statement issued last evening charged that Robert Isham Randolph, and his Secret Six, composed of a former prohibition agent, a woman police stool pigeon and some miscellaneous investigators, are reform racketeers, who are willing to blast the reputation of their city to satisfy their own desires for money and self advertisement.

The prosecutor was replying to a preelection statement issued by Randolph and his agency, regarding two small payments alleged to have been made seven months ago by speakeasy owners for Swanson's primary campaign fund.

"These charges," the prosecutor said, "are utterly false. This is a studied effort by Randolph to vilify me." The charges made by Randolph involve $45 in two checks, one of $20 and another of $25, both handed over by secret six investigators, parading as speakeasy owners.

Holding City Up to Scorn.

"I am grateful for the enemies I have made," said Prosecutor Swanson. "Among them are a number of individuals who have tried to make a racket out of reform. These racketeers have gone out on the public platform denouncing the city that has given them a living and made some of them rich.

"They have held Chicago up to the scorn of the world in speeches and in magazine articles, as a paradise of racketeers, thus gratifying an insatiable desire for self advertising at the expense of their home city's good name.

"This publicity has not only injured business and aggravated the depression in Chicago, but has made this city seem to be a mecca for criminals from all parts of the country. Approximately 15 per cent of the persons convicted in the criminal courts are from cities other than Chicago, who were brought here by such publicity.

Revenue from Crime.

"These reform racketeers in good times were able to solicit large sums from the public ostensibly to fight racketeers, but apparently expended in the manner that would do them the most good. They hope and pray that we will never have a crimeless city for in that event sources of large revenue would disappear.

"Col. Robert 'I-Sham' Randolph is evidently of this type. The Secret Six started out along lines suggested by me, which at first were effective. Then it fell under the malign influence of Mrs. Shirley Kub, whose reputation as a police stool pigeon is well known, assisted by Alexander Jamie, a former prohibition agent. Randolph apparently chose to follow their advice rather than to cooperate with me.

Self Advertising and Cash.

"Randolph has a pleasing personality, but coupled with his desire of self advertising is apparently a lust for money. An example of this financial thirst is shown by the records of the sanitary district of Chicago between March 11, 1927, and Nov. 13, 1928, during the whoopee era, which was brought to an end by my election as state's attorney. The total of $14,899.06 was paid to the Randolph-Perkins company on vouchers without advertising for bids. Randolph is the head of this company.

"It is interesting to note that Randolph and my opponent, Mr. Courtney, whom he is supporting against me, were fellow pay rollers together under the régime of T. J. Crowe, the discredited Democratic political leader, now under sentence for squandering the taxpayers' money in pay roll padding.

Silent for Seven Months.

"It seems passing strange, to say the least, that Mrs. Kub, Jamie and Randolph said nothing for seven months about these so-called charges against me. I warned the public in statements printed in the press at that time against unauthorized campaign solicitors. I never heard of the people mentioned in the Kub-Jamie-Randolph statement.

"I have borne a good reputation in Chicago for 57 years and as state's attorney have electrocuted more murderers, convicted more burglars, robbers, rapists, bombers, and racketeers than any state's attorney ever did. I am not worried in the least about criticisms coming from such sources as Shirley Kub, Jamie, the former prohibition agent, and Randolph."

The Randolph-Jamie charges were made public with copies of alleged conversations between investigators and a man named Warnecke, who was supposed to be the collector in room 504 Great Northern hotel. The investigator said he posed as a speakeasy owner and paid $25 to Warnecke. Another investigator said he paid $20 to a man named Nenning.

Swanson pointed out in his reply that the alleged reports of the investigators do not show whether Shirley Kub was one of them. The identity of the investigators is kept secret. Photographic copies of checks were also made public by Randolph and Jamie. The checks, however, are made out, not by speakeasy owners, but by a Secret Six investigator.

INSULL IS BORED; MAKES INQUIRIES ON SHIP SAILINGS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 25.—Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities emperor, is getting bored with his long wait in the land of Croesus and Midas. His days wear on without much distraction as he walks between his hotel, the former palace of Prince Nicholas, and Stadium street, Athens' "main drag."

Insull inquired about ship sailings from Europe this afternoon. He was interested in the fact that the Majestic sails from Cherbourg on Nov. 2, but he made no further comment.

Insull takes a couple of walks a day. He eats and sleeps well. He will have more company in a few days. An old friend, F. Herman Gade, is coming here to visit his son, Gerhard Gade, who is second secretary of the American legation. Herman Gade was mayor of Lake Forest for five years and his property adjoined that of Insull.

Insull Lawyer Back in London.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Arthur D. Page of Simons & Simons, one of the firm of solicitors acting for Samuel Insull Sr. in connection with his attempt to forestall extradition from Greece, arrived at the Croydon airport today from Paris, where he had an interview with Mrs. Insull.

He previously had been in Athens discussing with Mr. Insull "certain business matters," the nature of which he refused to discuss. He further refused today to say anything about the case.

EDITH ABBOTT TELLS WHY SHE WILL VOTE FOR JUDGE HORNER

BY EDITH ABBOTT.

[Dean of the graduate school of social service administration, University of Chicago.]

Social workers have known Judge Horner intimately for a period of more than 20 years as a man of great ability and integrity, with a genuine concern for the disadvantaged groups in the community. We have known him as an able and upright magistrate, fair and just equally to the poor and to the rich. The State of Illinois spends on its welfare budget nearly $50,000,000 annually. Every one concerned for the welfare of this state looks forward to the election of Judge Horner and the wise administration of these vast funds and the intelligent and sympathetic protection of those for whom the public social services are provided.

VIENNESE FINDS FATHER HERE BY AID OF CERMAK

The Chicago police yesterday found Joseph Wiesbauer, 73 years old, at 1547 Clybourn avenue and kept a promise made by Mayor Cermak to a stranger on the streets of Vienna on Aug. 15. While Mayor Cermak was visiting Vienna, he was halted on the street by Roman Wiesbauer, who asked aid in finding his father in Chicago. The mayor said he would help.

Wiesbauer said that his father had gone to Chicago in 1894 and had last written a letter to Vienna in 1912. He added that his brother, Edward, joined his father in Chicago in that year. Following Mayor Cermak's return to Chicago, Roman Wiesbauer wrote him a letter reminding him of his promise made in Vienna.

Mayor Cermak turned the letter over to Sergt. Joseph Starshak of the missing persons bureau. Policemen from that bureau traced Joseph Wiesbauer from one address to another until they found him after four days' search. He is a contractor. He said he had not heard from his son, Edward, since 1917, but promised to write to his son, Roman, in Vienna.

SWANSON READY TO ASK RETURN OF THE INSULLS

Having taken a deposition from Washington Flexner, president of the Lincoln Printing company, State's Attorney Swanson yesterday completed the portfolio of affidavits necessary to procure presidential warrants for extradition of Samuel Insull from Greece and Martin Insull from Canada on charges of larceny and embezzlement.

Today the state's attorney will resume the grand jury investigation of the Insull utilities crash, particularly of matters pertaining to Marshall E. Sampsell, former president of the Central Illinois Public Service company, who has admitted abstracting 9,000 shares of the common stock of the Central and Southwest Utilities company from the portfolio of the Middle West Utilities company to substitute for other collateral against a bank loan.

In signing his deposition, Mr. Flexner explained through his attorney, Edward C. Higgins, that he acted as a disinterested witness appearing in answer to a subpoena and having no interest in the extradition or prosecution of the Insulls. The substance of his affidavit was that Martin Insull had used his [Flexner's] brokerage account for his own speculations.

Assistant State's Attorneys Andrew Vlachos and Charles A. Bellows, detained in Washington while new depositions were being substituted for others found faulty, have made tentative reservations for sailing from New York Saturday on the Europa, expecting to reach Athens a fortnight later.

HORNER PLEDGES DRASTIC SLASH IN TAX BURDEN

Attacks Small's Record of Boosting Expenses.

Judge Henry Horner in his campaign speech last night promised more than 1,500 street railway employés who filled Car Men's hall at Ashland avenue and Van Buren street a drastic reduction in state expenditures if he is elected governor next month.

Many of those who heard the Democratic candidate were small home owners who feel the blight of excessive taxation as quickly as any class of workers. They came to the labor organization headquarters on the near west side from all sections of the city to hear the judge's speech and to applaud.

Cites Burden of Taxes.

Judge Horner brought forth recently published statistics. He recalled that direct and indirect taxes in the United States amount to $123 a year for every man, woman, and child, and deduced from that that the average tax on the average family is approximately $500.

"These figures were computed by the National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures," he said. "When it is considered that at least 13,000,000 men and women in the country are out of work and unable to pay taxes of any kind—even indirect taxes—the average burden becomes even greater. It is already too great to bear and it is largely because this is a fact that industry has failed to recover from the depression and that business men are slow to engage in enterprises until they know for certain that there will be a genuine and sincere effort made to reduce taxes in the community in which they reside."

Judge Horner disclaimed any of the capabilities of "the magician, the miracle maker, or the soothsayer," saying he was "not even an engineer." He is, he said, "just the average man in this audience, eager to serve the state to the best of my ability and with an ever abiding desire to promote good government."

"No Empty Promises."

"I do not intend," he continued, "to promise in this campaign anything which I know I will not be able to perform. In fact, I am not much of a promiser and if I were I would not dare compete with my opponent [Len Small], who has a record as a plain and fancy promiser which is unequaled. I could not, like him, promise jobs to all my supporters and talk of economy in the same breath, for I realize that even the dullest of my hearers would realize that I couldn't create new jobs without increasing the expenditures of the state.

"But there is one thing which I know I can do. I can and will reduce the expenditures of Illinois and in that way cut the tax rate of the state. I know that I can abolish useless bureaus; that I can see that the state receives a dollar's worth in value for every 100 cents expended for supplies; that I can lop off the dead branches of the governmental tree.

"It may not be good politics to say it, but I am going to reduce the number of state jobs instead of increasing it, and any one who is supporting me in the hope of obtaining a sinecure or doing less than a day's work for a day's pay is making a mistake and had better transfer his allegiance."

Small is also talking economy, the judge admitted, but "has the audacity to tell the voters of the state that when he was governor the tax rate was reduced."

Discusses Small's Record.

"Let's examine the facts behind that assertion," said Judge Horner. "During the last year of the administration of Gov. Lowden, a Republican, who was a good governor, the state expenditures were $37,500,000. There was an immediate increase in expenditures the minute my opponent took office and at the end of his four year term the state was spending more than $119,000,000 a year.

"In 1920, before my opponent and his sponsor and mentor, a former Republican mayor of Chicago, fastened their hold upon the state treasury, the tax rate was 40 cents. Under the first year of my opponent's administration the rate was boosted to 45 cents. Then it went up to 50 cents, then to 65 and then it made a record jump and cleared the bars at 85 cents.

"All this time the tax rate was based on an assessed valuation which was only one-half the real value of the property assessed. Originally the assessed valuation was only one-fifth of the real valuation, but former spenders had made it necessary to raise more taxes and the real valuation was made one-third the full valuation. Still later it was made one-half the real valuation.

"Happily, the people of Illinois are awake to the importance of the question of taxation. They realize that the future prosperity of the state depends upon making farming once more profitable and that one of the things that must be done to aid the farmer is to reduce his taxes.

"They realize that to put business on its feet it is necessary that the business man shall not be obliged to pay out an undue proportion of his earnings in taxes.

"They realize that the prosperity of the worker depends upon the prosperity of the business man, the farmer, and the manufacturer, and that whether he pays direct taxes or not he ultimately bears his share of the tax burden."

ADCOCK HINTS HIS GRAND JURY MAY INDICT SOME ONE

Prystalski to Swear In New Jurors Tomorrow.

The possibility of preelection indictments by the "Democratic" special jury was indicated yesterday by Attorney Edmund D. Adcock, who has been recognized as a special state's attorney by Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court. Adcock was appointed a special prosecutor last spring by Judge Harry M. Fisher, who was then chief justice of the court.

By order of Judge Prystalski a new special grand jury is to be sworn in tomorrow, the former special jury being legally extinct. The scope of authority of the preceding body—as outlined by Judge Fisher—pertained to election matters, particularly and principally the primary of last spring, and judicial appointments of receivers and attorneys for receivers.

Purpose of New Jury.

Mr. Adcock was asked yesterday if the purpose of the new jury was to make investigations along the same lines. He answered while there might be a general impression that only election matters would be considered, a special grand jury has power to investigate anything or to indict for any offense. As to the scope of his own authority it appeared this is limited to election matters, provided Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom decides not to supersede him

From Iowa, where he is speaking for Hoover, Mr. Carlstrom said he did not regard Adcock as a legal special state's attorney. He said Adcock could act only if the attorney general were disqualified.

"Will you have evidence to present to the special jury on Thursday?" Attorney Adcock was asked.

"Yes," he replied.

He declined to tell the nature of the evidence but admitted whatever evidence he possesses was obtained by the five city policemen attached to the jury and deputized as deputy coroners to give them authority to carry on special investigations outside the city.

What Republicans Think.

Further questioning was not productive of information of what Democratic strategy portended, so the quest was transferred to Republican territory. There, it was suggested, that inasmuch as Mayor Cermak controls the city police the purpose of making deputy coroners of five policemen indicated their activities were to be largely in the country towns of Cook county, mainly Republican territory in the past. The Republicans said they are awaiting an overt act before challenging the jurisdiction of Adcock and the special grand jury.

JUDGE KERNER, JOHN NORTHUP RIVALS IN RACE

Seek Election to Office of Attorney General.

The race for the attorney generalship of Illinois presents two men experienced both in law and in politics, John E. Northup of Chicago, who won a name for himself in the successful prosecution of the sanitary district conspiracy cases early this year, made a whirlwind campaign after that hearing and was nominated by the Republicans. The Democratic candidate is Judge Otto Kerner of the Appellate court, who lives in River Forest.

Northup was appointed as an assistant state's attorney in 1906. He has engaged in tempestuous battles in both the state and federal courts and has won time and again by the route of hard fighting.

Born on Farm in Iowa.

The Republican candidate was born on a farm in Marshall county, Iowa, in 1868. He was graduated at Drake university, Des Moines, in 1891, took graduate work at the University of Chicago, and was admitted to the bar in 1899. He has since practiced here.

Mr. Northup has been a member of several law firms since the beginning of the century, and from 1922-1926 was a trial lawyer for the firm of Mayer, Meyer, Austrian & Platt. As a special state's attorney in 1913-'14 he prosecuted election fraud cases. In 1921 he was made a special assistant United States attorney general to investigate mail frauds. He was appointed first assistant prosecutor by Federal Judge George E. Q. Johnson while the judge was United States attorney. In 1929 Mr. Northup was made first assistant to State's Attorney Swanson and brought his service in that office to a climax by his prosecution of Timothy J. Crowe and others in the sanitary district cases.

He is campaigning on a platform of reduction of excessive taxation and the destruction of organized crime.

Judge Kerner's Career.

Judge Kerner, Mr. Northup's opponent, was born in Chicago in 1884, educated in the public schools and the law department of Lake Forest university, and was admitted to the bar in 1905. He was made city prosecuting attorney by Mayor Carter H. Harrison in 1911 and after two years at this post was elected alderman of the old 12th ward, now the 23d, which he represented from 1913 to 1919. In both 1915 and 1919, he was given the approval of the Municipal Voters' league.

From 1915 until 1927, when he was elected to the bench, he was a master in chancery and heard more than 600 cases. He was sent to the Circuit bench on the coalition ticket in 1927. In January, 1931, he was assigned to the Appellate court of Illinois, first district, by the Supreme court. Judge Kerner is married and lives in River Forest with his wife and two sons. He is a member of the American, Illinois, and Chicago Bar associations, and the Illinois Athletic club, and the Oak Park, Butterfield, and River Forest Country clubs.

In his campaign speeches Judge Kerner is stressing his pledge of rigid public economy and enforcement of the "blue sky" laws, proper administration of funds appropriated for public institutions, and the lawful conduct of the office he seeks.

U. of C. Student Paper Takes Presidential Poll

The Daily Maroon, student newspaper at the University of Chicago, yesterday started a presidential poll on the campus as the climax of a week's discussion of the national political situation in its columns. During the week it printed letters from President Hoover and Norman Thomas, Socialist nominee, and articles by a number of faculty members. A score of ballot boxes were set up in residence halls and at other spots on the campus to permit students to deposit their straw ballots yesterday and today.

NOTES OF THE CAMPAIGN

Judge Henry Horner has accepted an invitation to debate the political issues with his Republican opponent before the students of Northwestern university Friday night at the Patten gymnasium, on the university campus at Evanston.

State's Attorney Swanson will be the guest of the 44th ward National Republican club tonight in Lincoln Turner hall. More than 1,500 reservations have been made for the dinner, it was announced.

The official ballots for the election were delivered to the election board yesterday, making a record for speedy delivery. Hitherto they have never been delivered until a week before election day. Hundreds of election workers of both parties lined the corridors of the board office to receive specimen ballots.

By way of celebrating his 81st birthday, John T. Burford, a Chicago insurance agency manager, walked into Republican national headquarters yesterday and asked to be put to work for Hoover. "I'm a lifelong Democrat," he said, "but for many good reasons I believe Hoover ought to be reelected."

Democratic precinct captains and workers were warned by Mayor Cermak yesterday that expulsion from the party organization would be the penalty for failure to give support to all candidates on the Democratic ticket. The meeting of the workers, who represented wards 26 to 50 inclusive, was the second this week, and was held in the grand ballroom of the Sherman hotel.

Congressman Dieterich, Democratic candidate for the senate, spoke in Blue Island, Harvey, and Chicago Heights last night to meetings attended largely by railroad employes and other workers. He declared that prosperity could never be brought back to this country by wage cutting "that reduces the buying power on which prosperous conditions must be founded."

Judge Horner has been indorsed by the Evanston Woman's Republican club. Mrs. Wallace Peterson, president, declared that "not a dissenting voice was heard when it was proposed to indorse Judge Horner, the Democratic candidate."

C. Wayland Brooks, Republican candidate for state treasurer, has received the endorsements of the Republican War Veterans association and the Rogers Park Civic league, organizations headed by Charles West.

State's Attorney Swanson opened an attack last night upon former Circuit Judge Charles M. Thomson, a Republican, who is supporting Courtney. He charged Thomson with "selling his friends down the river" and with "disloyalty" and condemned him for "injecting into this campaign something which does not belong in a political campaign," namely criticism of several of Swanson's assistants who do not bear Anglo-Saxon names. The state's attorney defended his staff as "representative of all races."

Mrs. Glenn Bruce McConathy, wife of an assistant attorney general of Louisiana, will be the principal speaker at a women's card party at 1 p. m. today in the River Forest Masonic temple, given by the Democratic organization of that suburb.

Republican national headquarters sent out last night results of a poll taken at the Ford assembly plant, 12600 Torrence avenue. It gave Hoover 369, Roosevelt 70, Thomas 13.

Young Jimmy Roosevelt, son of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, is to be principal speaker at a mass meeting of young Democratic voters to be held in Chicago Nov. 4. The rally will be under the auspices of the Illinois Young People's Democratic league, which reports it has an organization in every county in the state and an enrollment of 350,000 young men and women.

Einar Graff, chairman of the National Norwegian "Roosevelt for President" club, reported yesterday that Norwegian-Americans throughout the western and northwestern states "have severed their traditional alliance with the Republican party and are supporting Gov. Roosevelt."

John E. Northup, Republican candidate for attorney general, will address a Republican meeting in Danville tonight.

Horner Drive Started by Another Group.

Sixty-nine leading women, representing the home, the farm, the shop, the club, the church, college, business, sports, politics, and philanthropy, issued an appeal yesterday to women of the United States to vote for President Hoover.

"On the women of the nation rests a grave responsibility; with our ballots we may guide the course of history," began the appeal, which was made public by Mrs. Ellis A. Yost, director of the women's division of the Republican national committee. "President Hoover with purpose has builded the foundation of industrial, agricultural, and financial rehabilitation. We cannot afford to let these foundations crumble.

Urge Guaranty of Ideals.

"We believe this is the opportunity not only to sustain with the power of votes these foundations, but likewise to give guaranty through his election that the ideals which have found expression in his constructive acts as President shall continue."

Among those signing the appeal were: Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Sr., widow of the former President; Mrs. William Howard Taft, Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, Mrs. Henry Ford, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, Mrs. Mary Roberts Rinehart, Helen Wills Moody, Margaret Culkin Banning, Mrs. Grace N. Brosseau, Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, Miss Ada Comstock, Mrs. Walter Damrosch, Mrs. Margare Deland, Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, Mrs. Inez Haynes Irwin, Florence P. Kahn, Ruth Rowland Nichols, Ruth Pratt, Edith Nourse Rogers, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms, Mrs. Silas Strawn, Cornelia Otis Skinner, Mrs. Ernest Thompson-Seton, and Miss Mary E. Woolley.

Women Open Horner "Shop."

With community singing, a bugler, a Hawaiian guitar and a couple of speeches, the Woman's Independent Horner for Governor committee yesterday opened the first of fifteen Horner "shops" at 311 South Wabash avenue. The shops are being established throughout the city to aid Judge Henry Horner's campaign for the governorship.

A number of passersby, observing the soldier wearing the row of decorations upon his khaki and bugling for all he was worth outside the Wabash avenue address, hurried within to see what all the noise was about. Many of them remained to join in community singing and to sign their names, if they were women, as Horner supporters. This roll call is to be presented to Judge Horner.

Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, chairman of the committee, dropped in to see how the women's "S. O. S." [Save Our State] campaign was going, as did Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Bert Massee, Mrs. Conrad H. Poppenhusen, Mrs. John R. Thompson, Mrs. Paul Steinbrecher, Miss Nora Edmonds and others. Mrs. Ednyfed H. Williams is chairman of the new Horner shop and of a second group shop which is to be opened at 126 West Madison street tomorrow.

Stephen T. Ronan, an attorney, spoke at the 11 a. m. meeting in the shop. He cited Judge Horner's record, contrasting it with that of his opponent to show why Horner should be elected. At the 4:30 meeting Attorney Charles O. Butler spoke. Sessions will be held twice daily in the shops until the election.

JOHNSON AND CUTTING TO SPEAK THIS WEEK FOR GOV. ROOSEVELT

New York, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The National Progressive League for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt tonight announced that Senators Cutting and Hiram Johnson, both radical Republicans, will speak for the Roosevelt-Garner ticket this week. Senator Cutting will speak at Denver tomorrow night, while Senator Johnson will talk in San Francisco Friday night.

Senator Cutting will fly to Denver from Albuquerque to fill the engagement of Senator Norris [Radical Rep., Neb.], who is suffering with a severe cold.

JON MORROW IS NAME OF SECOND LINDBERGH SON

New York, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The second son of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh has been named Jon Morrow Lindbergh, it was learned today.

The Jon was chosen for a Scandinavian forbear of Col. Lindbergh, and Morrow in honor of Mrs. Lindbergh's father, the late Dwight W. Morrow. Probably the family will call the baby Jon, those close to the Lindbergh household said.

Today the family nurse, Betty Gow, returned from Scotland, coming aboard the S. S. Caledonia, and was whisked away to the Morrow home in Englewood, N. J., in a station wagon. It is reported that Betty Gow will not be Jon Morrow Lindbergh's nurse. Instead, Miss Gow will be attached to the household in another capacity. She was the nurse on duty the night Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. was kidnaped and slain.

Soviets Block Proposal to Secure Telegraphic Secrecy

MADRID, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Soviet delegates today blocked a proposal which would have called upon the various governments to take steps to secure the secrecy of all telegraphic communications. The Russian representatives at the International Telegraphic Communication conference said it would be impossible to guarantee secrecy in radio communications without granting too arbitrary powers to the governments.

Canadians Ask Leniency for Eight Red Prison Rioters

TORONTO, Oct. 25.—(AP)—A delegation of the Canadian Labor Defense league left today for Kingston to demand that no action be taken against eight communist leaders in Portsmouth penitentiary as a result of the recent prisoners' riots there. The delegation included relatives of the eight convicts. A statement said they would demand a public hearing on the Kingston "strike" and no punishment for the "political prisoners."

Foot Troubles Cause Bad Health

The continuous and almost unbearable pains FROM THE FEET cause your BACK to ACHE and your WHOLE BODY to feel TIRED and HURT all over. For which REASON many PEOPLE WRONGLY THINK that they have RHEUMATISM, NEURITIS, ARTHRITIS or KIDNEY TROUBLE when MOST ALL their troubles are caused from their feet.

WHY SUFFER THE AGONY of walking—(or trying to WALK) on FLAT FEET (BROKEN DOWN ARCHES), WEAK ANKLES—the TORTURE of THROBBING, BURNING, ACHING FEET—"SHOOTING PAINS" in HEEL, ball of foot becomes sore and feels as if you are walking on marbles, legs ache, knees stiff, pains in hips, small of back, shoulders and neck, poor circulation, with nervous exhaustion and muscular weakness. No matter how badly neglected your case may be, or wrongly treated or improperly diagnosed, I GUARANTEE TO in removing the cause regardless of the nature of your ailment. Eventually you will have to have your feet fixed and the longer you wait the more it will cost, and the longer it will take to cure them. So why not now?

DRY LEAGUE FINDS FEW NOMINEES TO BACK THIS YEAR

Democrats Are Wetter than Republicans.

When the recommendations of the Anti-Saloon League of Illinois were made public yesterday it was disclosed that the league's leaders could not find many of their faith among the nominees for congress and the general assembly this year.

In Cook county the league did not find a single regular congressional nominee, either Democratic or Republican, to indorse, and there are twenty of them. But it did indorse one lone independent running as a dry. And downstate, out of a field of thirty nominees, it found only eleven upon whom to put its O. K.

The situation among legislative candidates appeared to be correspondingly difficult. The league approved only one of the six candidates for the state senate from Cook county. And out of the field of 175 house nominees in the state district it placed the seal of its approval on only 46.

Many Indorsed in Past.

In the past, particularly in the downstate area, the drys had at least one candidate in each congressional and legislative district. In former years it frequently indorsed both congressional candidates in a district. In only one district in the twenty-five in the state is that true this year.

The league issued its indorsements in the form of leaflets, across the top of which was this text:

"The following candidates are recommended by the Anti-Saloon League of Illinois for the support of voters who desire to maintain national and state prohibition."

The list of indorsements starts out, as was predicted, with the name of Richard Yates, congressman at large, who is seeking reelection. It skipped both the nominees for U. S. senator, Otis F. Glenn, Republican, and William H. Dieterich, Democrat.

The indorsements for district congressmen are of Republicans with the exception of Arthur M. Barnhart, the only Chicagoan, who is running as an independent in the Second district, and one downstater.

Get League Indorsement.

Dist.		Dist.
11.	Frank R. Reid*	18.	W. P. Holaday*
13.	Leo E. Allen	19.	Charles Adkins*
14.	John C. Allen*	24.	Claude V. Parsons*
15.	B. M. Chiperfield*		Arthur A. Miles
17.	Homer W. Hall*	25.	E. E. Denison

The one Cook county state senatorial candidate indorsed is a Republican incumbent, James J. Barbour of the Sixth or Evanston district. The Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform described him as "evasive" in his replies to its questionnaire on his stand on dry law reform.

All but two downstate nominees for the senate now formally given the right to wear the white ribbon are Republicans. They are the following:

Dist.		Dist.
10.	Charles W. Baker*	40.	Guy L. Smith*
12.	Alfred S. Babb		C. J. Vorelsang
14.	Arnold P. Benson		[Dem.]

30.	H. L. Campbell		[Dem.]
32.	Louis H. Hanna*	51.	William J. Sneed
34.	Robert W. Lyons

Only three candidates for state representative from Cook county districts were marked "O. K." by the league. All are Republican incumbents. They are Miss Josephine Perry, 5th; Mrs. Anna Wilmarth Ickes, 7th, and David I. Swanson, 11th. The list did not include William G. Thon, 23d, although he voted dry last year. He says he now takes a "Hoover" position.

Dry Candidates for House.

The list of the downstate house candidates indorsed as drys, either on their records or because they have given pledges, consists of 35 Republicans and eight Democrats. These candidates follow:

REPUBLICAN.

Dist.		Dist.
10.	David Hunter Jr.*	36.	H. F. Scarborough*
	Carl O. Nyman*	37.	F. W. Rennick*

The Weber-O'Grady bill for repeal of the state prohibition law was passed by the house last year by a vote of 91 to 56. The wet majority, it is predicted, will be substantially larger this year.

Otis Elevator Chairman Leaves $3,550,000 Estate

New York, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The transfer tax appraisal of the estate of the late William Delavan Baldwin, chairman of the board of the Otis Elevator company, filed today, placed the valuation at $3,550,873 gross and $2,286,503 net. Mr. Baldwin, who died Sept. 26, 1930, had stocks and bonds valued at $2,738,998, and his debts amounted to $1,042,477. His holdings of 9,500 shares of the Otis Elevator company were appraised at $940,233.

Woman's Divorce Plea Hits Snag

Mother of Two Learns She Isn't Wed.

Mrs. Rose Hoffman, 4157 North Whipple street, a dressmaker, appeared yesterday before Judge Joseph Sabath in the Superior court to seek a divorce from Morris Hoffman, a painting contractor, whom she charges with cruelty. Before she could present her evidence Morris spoke up.

"There's no reason for her getting a divorce," he told Judge Sabath, "because we were never married."

Inspection of Mrs. Hoffman's papers proved that he was right. The couple obtained a marriage license in 1917 but the license was never returned to the county clerk.

Never Any Ceremony.

"I had come over from the old country only four years before," explained Mrs. Hoffman, "and I thought that the laws here were like they are there, and that we were married when we took a license."

"But there was never any ceremony," said Morris.

"But what about these boys?" asked Mrs. Hoffman's attorney, Mandel Yale, indicating her sons, Jack, 14, and Herman, 13 years old. "If this is true, they haven't any father."

"Will you marry this woman?" asked Judge Sabath.

"Not unless she gives me $500," replied Hoffman.

"Not even if I give you a divorce right away?" asked the judge.

"No," said Morris.

"You're a stubborn rascal," said Judge Sabath. "I'm going to see what the state's attorney can do about you."

Another Surprise.

Assistant State's Attorney James Clancy was summoned to the courtroom, but after Judge Sabath had explained the case to him Hoffman surprised the court again.

"I couldn't marry her if I wanted to," he asserted. "She's already got a husband back in Russia."

Mrs. Hoffman denied this. She got a rabbinical divorce before coming to the United States, which, she said, was recognized by Russian law. Judge Sabath agreed that it would also be recognized in the courts of Chicago.

"Well, I still won't marry her," declared Hoffman.

"I'll put this case over to Nov. 15," said Judge Sabath. "And meantime I'll leave it to you, Mr. Clancy, to convince this man that he had better get married."

TROOPS, PLANES HUNT KIDNAPERS OF RANCHER'S SON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 25.—Two regiments of infantry, one cavalry squadron and military planes are assisting police in the provinces of Santa Fé and Cordoba to track down the kidnapers of Abel Ayerza, son of a wealthy rancher. Ayerza and Santiago Hueyo, son of the Argentine finance minister, were kidnaped Sunday night. Hueyo was liberated yesterday.

Today Ayerza's mother received a letter, the contents of which were not divulged, but it is understood that it was written by her son, urging his mother to call off the police and pay the ransom demand of $31,000.

In the meantime scores of Italians, living near the scene of the kidnaping and believed to be connected with the Mafia society, have been arrested and questioned.

COURT ORDERS STAY OF SENTENCES FOR LUKE LEA AND SON

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 25.—(AP)—An order staying the sentences of Col. Luke Lea and Luke Lea Jr. of Nashville, Tenn., pending another effort to get their bank fraud convictions before the United States Supreme court, was issued late today by the North Carolina Supreme court.

The order holds up the certification of the court's recent decision refusing to reverse the action of a lower court in denying the Leas a new trial on the grounds of after-discovered evidence.

Attorneys for the defendants have been given until Nov. 3 to file their petition for a review of this action with the court at Washington, which yesterday refused to review the conviction of the Tennesseeans. The Leas were charged with conspiracy to violate the state banking laws in connection with the failure of the Central Bank and Trust company of Asheville.

Col. Lea is under a 6 to 10 years prison sentence, while young Lea has the alternative of a two to four years prison term or the payment of $25,000 in fines and costs. Wallace B. Davis, president of the bank and a co-defendant, has announced he will shortly begin serving his sentence of 4 to 6 years.

PRINCESS HELEN AGREES TO BAN ON INTERVIEWS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 25.—Princess Helen, divorced wife of King Carol, promised Premier Manlu today that she would abstain from giving interviews in the future. Manlu asked this of her after careful consideration at a cabinet meeting of the belief that Helen is waging a campaign abroad against King Carol and the state.

The return to Bucharest of Crown Prince Michael, who celebrated his 11th birthday today, was delayed until late this evening, when he joined his mother here at her palace. He will stay there for several days. Michael had been at Sinaia.

Rumors of reconciliation between Carol and Helen were officially denied tonight.

Franklin Lane's Daughter Divorces Artist Dasburg

Santa Fé, N. M., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Mrs. Nancy Lane Dasburg, daughter of the late Franklin K. Lane, secretary of interior in the Wilson administration, today was granted a final decree from Andrew Dasburg, artist. Mrs. Dasburg was given the right to resume her maiden name. The divorce was granted on grounds of mental cruelty.

DUCE PREDICTS FASCISM WILL RULE ALL EUROPE

Insists Italy Will Again Lead Civilization.

MILAN, Italy, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Premier Benito Mussolini predicted today that within a decade all Europe would go Fascist.

Before the end of a century, he told half a million persons gathered in Cathedral square, Italy is destined once again to be the leader of civilization.

His speech was part of this week's program in celebration of the completion of the first decade of the Fascist government. To repentant anti-Fascists living in exile and abroad he offered the hope of amnesty and at the same time scorned their opposition.

During the war, the premier said, the conduct of Italy was sublime, "yet if there had been a government that imposed stern discipline, punishing defeatists and traitors with a shot in the back, Italian history would be all luminous pages."

Celebration Comes First.

When the nation has completed its celebration of the Fascist decennial it will be time to consider the matter of amnesty, Mussolini said.

"But it must be well understood," he warned, "that the institutions of the régime undergo no change until the accomplished fact of the revolution is recognized in other countries. Amnesty will be no sign of weakness but of strength. I am thinking merely of the misery of the families of the prisoners."

The premier said there was no need to waste time reviewing the past or thinking of it—that his thought always was for the future.

"In these days of unrest and uncertainty elsewhere in the world there are countries far older than this which do not know what their future will be. We know. We are sure of our future and are advancing always straight ahead with courage and determination."

Anxious For New Battles.

Again in his speech Mussolini said "it takes 20 years to temper a people."

He expressed the opinion that sometimes his words were misunderstood abroad, adding: "I am desirous of peace and tranquillity, but I also am anxious for new battles and fresh combats." He did not indicate whether he meant armed conflict or the Fascist principle of the spirit of combat in life.

The premier came here from Turin by motor, inaugurating the new autostrada. A thousand automobiles, strung along for 20 miles, accompanied him and overhead 200 airplanes flew in formation. He traveled at a steady pace of sixty miles an hour, although there were frequent halts for crowds along the roadside. He made the last 25 miles in 20 minutes, arriving in Cathedral square exactly on time.

FRANCE DELAYS WAR DEBT ISSUE UNTIL ELECTION

Chamber Will Debate Agriculture First.

Shall U. S. Be Paid?

The question of whether money loaned by the United States to their governments shall be repaid was raised in two parliaments yesterday.

The French chamber of deputies voted to postpone discussion of a payment on the war debts to America until after the United States presidential elections, but Louis Marin, a Nationalist leader, announced he would seek to obtain immediate debate on the question.

In the British parliament members urged the government to make no payment to the United States until the matter had been debated by the house of commons.

PARIS, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Louis Marin, leader of the extreme right wing of the Nationalists, said tonight he would seek to bring the question of the American war debt again before the chamber of deputies in an effort to open immediate debate on the issue, although the chamber earlier today had voted, 500 to 78, to give prior consideration to domestic matters.

The vote was expected to postpone debate on the debts until after the presidential election in the United States on Nov. 8.

Premier Herriot indicated several days ago that France proposed to pay an installment on its debt on Dec. 15. Later it was revealed that no provision had been made in the French budget for such a payment.

Meantime, numerous interpellations face the government, mostly on domestic issues, but some on such world problems as that of disarmament.

When the debate on farm relief finally got under way one deputy asserting that the price of wheat had dropped 50 per cent since July, asserted that the government should buy wheat stocks in harvest time to prevent speculation.

[The mayors of 200 townships and villages in the Chartres region resigned recently as a protest against the heavy drop in wheat prices, which at the time had slumped from $2.80 to $1.60 a bushel.]

Demands Meat Import Aid.

Another member said government assistance should be extended also to the meat importers. He declared that import quotas on foreign meats are too high and should be reduced.

Tomorrow will be devoted to meetings of chamber committees and on Thursday debate will be resumed.

The farm problem is serious in France. This year's wheat crop has been estimated at nearly 330,500,000 bushels. That figure represents about what the country would need until next year, but there was a late harvest in the south this season and as a result wheat from the south and north came into the market simultaneously. Government and private agencies stepped in quickly to extend credits so the farmers could hold their product for a while, and the war department ordered that all bread rationed to the army be made exclusively of French wheat.

Britain Also Stalls.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, refused to be smoked out today by questioners in the house of commons who tried to learn the government's intentions regarding the war debt to the United States.

One Conservative asked Chamberlain to promise there would be no payment until the house had debated the matter, but he replied that he was "not in a position at present" to discuss the matter. Others members jumped up to ask further questions, but the chancellor refused to answer.

Chamberlain's reticence strengthened the belief that the British government has agreed to say and do nothing on the debt question until after the presidential election in the United States.

COURT ORDERS GIRL MUST PAY $50,000 TO REJECTED SUITOR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 25.—The Audiencia court of Havana today ordered Miss Maria Luisa Tirado, 28, to pay Manuel Martinez $50,000 for breach of promise. Martinez, 55, Havana lawyer, who has been fighting his own case for two years, alleged that the young woman "through false and passionate loving" deceived him and compelled him to divorce his wife to marry her. After he had lost his wife, home and five years of his time Miss Tirado refused to marry him, he testified.

"I spent three years in loving her and two in fighting her in the courts, which has cost me $10,000," the lawyer exclaimed.

Martinez added that Miss Tirado as the wealthy daughter of a Matanzas farmer but without social standing rejected him to marry Jacinto Sanchez, wealthy and socially prominent Havana business man. The court by a unanimous vote of the five magistrates ruled that "although legally the case is hopeless, since breach of promise does not exist in Spanish jurisprudence governing the Cuban courts, Martinez was wronged and is entitled to compensation, inasmuch as morally a woman is not entitled to wreck two homes to trade her wealth for social prominence."

there are castes. The lowest seems to be the sweepers and cleaners. And the lowest of the low is the wife of a sweeper. The houseboy or chauffeur may sit in grandeur smoking a cigaret while some one lower down the scale does his cleaning work for a few coppers. There are said to be thirty-two caste distinctions among the Hindus. Outside of these are the fiery Mohammedans, the gentle and shrewd Parsees, the Buddhists, Christians, and many other sects.

It is on such a basis that British administrators and politicians are trying to build a self-governing democracy, a basis of mutual fear and hatred, distrust, and contempt. The enemies of the British say that the rulers have deliberately fostered these dissensions, on a "divide and rule" theory, that they have shown little regard for the welfare of the people and are taking most of the wealth out of the country.

The native weavers are now faced with the results of the Ottawa conference, designed to strengthen the walls of the British empire. A 10 per cent preference for British cloth, it is said, will cut into this new native industry, which has begun to grow into great proportions. Thus another blow may be struck at a rising peasantry.

Difficulties Without Parallel.

The British "raj" is concerned with the transition period and is concentrating on safeguards for law and order during the complex settlement of the electoral difficulties and the building of a constitution for a united India.

From afar this looks like a plausible and hopeful development in self government, a sort of magnified Philippine problem. But here it presents difficulties that have no parallel. A new scheme of group representation has been evolved, but the basis is religious rather than occupational, as has been suggested for the western parliaments of the future.

The same arguments against independence, or self government, that are heard in the Philippines are heard here, but they seem to have much more weight. The ignorance of the masses, the economic situation, the probability of the educated, ruling classes exploiting their own people far more than the present rulers. And they find the same answer, which is that the dominance of an alien power is the thing that holds back the potential capacity of the people for handling their own affairs.

Change Seems Inevitable.

The change seems to be inevitable here as in the Philippines, and the preparations for the transition period cover about the same period of time, twenty years. It is not proposed here, however, to remove army and financial safeguards, and what seems to be entering now is a stage of Indianization, or responsible government, as an educational and trial period. It has been described in recent sessions of the Indian assembly as a crust on the edge of a fiery volcano, and there is held always before the people the danger of religious uprisings, communal riots, of which there have been several samples. There are prophets of gloom everywhere, but India moves along strange paths to find God.

HENRY FORD IS DEFENDANT IN $100,000 SUIT

Providence, R. I., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Henry Ford, Detroit manufacturer, is named as the defendant in a $100,000 action in assumpsit filed in federal court today, by Herbert K. Allard of Cranston. Counsel for Mr. Allard claims $62,000 is due him in commissions for purchasing the site of Mr. Ford's Wayside inn at Sudbury, Mass., and adjacent land. Abbott Phillips, local attorney, representing Mr. Ford, accepted service of the writ and the inn property was not attached. The writ is returnable Nov. 1 in United States District court here.

I'D GIVE MY LAST CENT TO GAIN WEIGHT AND HAVE A REAL FIGURE
YOU DON'T HAVE TO BE SKINNY. I'LL TELL YOU HOW TO GAIN 10 LBS. IN A FEW WEEKS

Posed by professional models.

New discovery! Fills out skinny figures quicker than BEER

Astonishing gains in a few weeks with new double tonic. Richest imported beer yeast concentrated seven times and iron added. Gives thin folks 5 to 15 lbs.—quick!

WHAT would you give to quickly put on pounds of firm, attractive flesh? Thousands have done it inexpensively, with this new discovery.

As you know, doctors for years prescribed beer to build up skinny, rundown men and women. But now this new discovery gives you even better results—puts on firmer, healthier flesh than beer—and in a much shorter time. And brings other benefits, too. Blemished skin becomes radiantly clear. Constipation, poor appetite, lack of pep vanish.

Concentrated 7 times

This amazing new product, Ironized Yeast, is made from specially cultured imported beer yeast—the richest yeast known—which by a new process is concentrated 7 times—made 7 times more powerful.

But that is not all! This marvelous, health-building yeast concentrate is then ironized with three special kinds of iron which strengthen the blood—add abounding new pep.

8 Lbs. in 3 Weeks

"In one week I gained 4 lbs., in 3 weeks 8 lbs., with Ironized Yeast. Tired feeling and constipation are gone, too." Roy H. Tinney, Oklahoma City, Okla.

15 Lbs. in 1 Month

"I gained 15 lbs. in a month with Ironized Yeast." Louise Adams, Friers Point, Miss.

Day after day, as you take Ironized Yeast, you'll see ugly angles fill out, hollow chest develop, pipe-stem arms and legs round out pleasingly. Complexion becomes lovely and clear, indigestion disappears—you'll have new, surging vitality.

Danger in skinny body

Authorities warn that skinny, anemic, nervous people are far more liable to serious infections and fatal wasting diseases. So begin at once to get back the rich blood and healthy flesh you need. Do it before it is too late.

Results guaranteed

No matter how skinny and weak you may be, this marvelous new Ironized Yeast is guaranteed to build you up in a few short weeks as it has thousands of others. If not delighted with the results of the very first package, your money instantly refunded.

Only be sure you get genuine Ironized Yeast, and not some imitation that cannot give the same results. Insist on the genuine, with "IY" stamped on each tablet. Start building up your health right away by purchasing Ironized Yeast at any druggist's.

Saving is Wasting

MRS. ROBERT D. FITZGERALD
Milwaukee

Born of a fine old Southern family, Mrs. Fitzgerald brought lovely pieces of rare Dresden china, Early American glass, a colorful Italian tea set (more than a hundred years old) to her hospitable Milwaukee home. And much as she uses these exquisite pieces, each one keeps its charm, for it's protected in every washing with the purity of American Family Flakes.

Look at your fine washables with a critical eye. Are your dainty silken things "pulling," cracking? Are your chiffon hose turning an ugly pink or purple—breaking too? And that frock of yours, so becoming scarcely a month ago—is it pale now, even dingy?

Then your soap is at fault. For you can't use cheapened soap flakes—so often filled with free lye and harsh ingredients—without paying the penalty in faded colors, ruined clothes.

"We never take chances in our household," says Mrs. Frederic W. Upham. "Our solution is to use no other soap but American Family Flakes. This way colors never run, silks stay lovely ever so long and the most delicate linens wash beautifully."

"It's not use but harsh soap that takes life from linens," agrees Mrs. E. A. Clements. "We launder things again and again in American Family, and I have yet to see anything these pure, rich suds can harm."

"I wouldn't trust the beauty of anything washable in my house to any other soap but American Family Flakes," confides Mrs. Robert D. Fitzgerald, "—not even the woodwork, the tinted tiles or my china and glassware."

You'll find yourself dollars ahead, from the day you put pure American Family to test. White clothes come out white as snow... colored things bright as new... each piece firm and strong for longer wear.

And you'll like the way this pure soap speeds your tasks—whether laundering or dishwashing or cleaning. You'll like, too, the way it keeps your hands so smooth and white. Kirk's American Family, you see, was created especially for the hard water of this Great Lakes region. It makes double the suds of ordinary soap flakes . . . and it's the double-suds that makes the difference!

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

THREE SUSPECTS IN BOGAN BOMB CASE RELEASED

Freed Pending Examination of Handwriting.

Handwriting samples of three men suspected of writing threatening letters to Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan and to John W. Bell, principal of Amundsen Junior High school were taken yesterday to the detective bureau for comparison by handwriting experts. Pending the decision of the experts the three suspects—Herman Kallis, Peter Tatooles, and Peter Cribari—were released.

The home of Supt. Bogan at 741 Gordon terrace was bombed early Saturday morning and a few minutes later Mr. Bell received an anonymous telephone call telling him that he was next. Both men said that a few days before the bombing they had received letters warning them to close the cafeterias operated in junior and senior high schools.

Employés of Association.

Kallis and Cribari both are employed by the Associated Retailers of Chicago. At the instigation of the association, Tatooles filed a taxpayer's suit, which is still pending, to restrain the schools from operating restaurants.

A meeting of representatives of numerous civic groups was held yesterday in the offices of Supt. Bogan. A committee was appointed to call upon the police commissioner, the state's attorney, and the health commissioner to urge these officials to push the search for the bombers and to investigate conditions in the neighborhood of certain high schools, where it is said that speakeasies and gambling devices are operated.

The committee consists of Miss Jessie P. Binford, executive director of the Juvenile Protective association; Mrs. Harvey Fox, president of the Chicago Woman's club; Emerson O. Bradshaw of the Chicago Church federation; James Mullenbach, former member of the board of education, and a member of the Association of Commerce, who is to be named later.

Tells Motive for Bombing.

In opening the meeting Mr. Bogan said that he believed the bombing was a result of his refusal to heed demands that the school cafeterias be closed. He said that these lunchrooms provided food at prices within the means of children who could not afford to purchase food in outside restaurants.

At the detective bureau Mrs. Herman Kallis, 2505 North Lowell avenue, wife of one of the suspects, outlined another angle to the question of gambling in stores near schools before Assistant State's Attorney Harry Ditchburne. She said that men had come into her own store and set up slot machines without asking her permission, merely telling her that they would be back later to collect. She said that she and other storekeepers di not want these gambling devices, but were afraid to resist racketeers who control the slot machine business.

FREAK ANIMAL SHOW IN WIFE'S CARE AFTER ROW

New York, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Mrs. Little Docen of the Court hotel, Coney Island, today was appointed receiver of property listed as follows: Four two legged dogs, two six legged sheep, one five legged sheep, one three legged chicken, one animal half sheep and half goat, one two legged cat, two six footed cats, and one chicken "with a human face."

The Docens operate a freak show. Mr. Docen contends that he transferred the animals to his wife when he was ill with the understanding that they were to be returned. Mrs. Docen says he transferred the show to her in payment of $1,200 he owed her.

Auto Victim Dies; Year's Motor Toll Raised to 922

John Pedlasek, 63 years old, 4925 West 30th street, Cicero, died yesterday in the Ramsay hospital of injuries incurred on Oct. 20, when he was struck by a taxicab at 26th street and Cicero avenue, Cicero. His death raised the 1932 Cook county motor toll to 922. The body of a woman killed by an automobile on Oct. 20 at Melvina and North avenues was identified yesterday as that of Katherina Ickstadt, 73 years old, 1415 North Mason avenue. Identification was made by Mrs. Amelia Goerke, 322 East 25th street, a sister.

HUTCHINS URGES FEDERAL RELIEF FOR UNIVERSITIES

U. of C. Head Says Schools Face Crisis.

Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, proposed yesterday that federal relief be extended to private universities in order that higher learning in the United States should not disappear completely. He declared that there was grave danger of the collapse of the country's entire educational system. He spoke at a luncheon meeting of the Rotary club at the Hotel Sherman.

"The small amount of higher learning we have in the United States is rapidly disappearing," said President Hutchins. "The education of our citizens rests upon a foundation of elementary and secondary schools. They have been so severely rocked by the depression that unless we take heed there is danger of their disappearing also.

Cites Need of Funds.

"The incomes of private universities have been so diminished because of the depression that they cannot hold out much longer. During the depression great numbers of adults who are unemployed have been seeking more learning. The universities cannot carry the increased load on their present incomes. There is a need for educational relief appropriations by the federal government, as well as funds to feed our starving neighbors."

"We are told that the cost of a government should be reduced," Dr. Hutchins said, "but I do not believe that in the long run the cost of government should, would or could be reduced. It should be redistributed. We should develop a decent system of taxation, instead of the iniquitous general property tax, which is grossly unfair.

Deplores Cries of People.

"We have two other meaningless war cries, 'Balance the budget' and 'Get the government out of business!' We should all be glad that the budget is not balanced, and if the government were to get out of business, business itself would be the first group to seek to have it come back."

Dr. Hutchins declared the cutting of salaries of teachers was stupid and shortsighted, that it was the easy way of reducing expenses, instead of the harder way of increasing efficiency by casting out unneeded services. The amount spent on education in Chicago in this and next year will be reduced, he said, but that reduction should not be allowed to become a permanent policy.

CANDIDATES TO SPEAK BEFORE TEACHERS TODAY

Chicago teachers will gather at the Adelphi theater this afternoon to hear the views of political candidates on remedies for the teachers' wage troubles. Charles B. Stillman, chairman of the joint conference of twenty-seven teachers' organizations, will preside.

Judge Henry Horner, Democratic candidate for governor, will speak on obtaining back pay for teachers, their pension and tenure rights, and other questions falling under state jurisdiction. Ald. Oscar Nelson [46th] will represent Len Small.

The problems of prosecuting "tax dodgers" and recommendations for new legislation to make tax collections more certain will be discussed by State's Attorney John A. Swanson and his Democratic opponent, State Senator Thomas J. Courtney.

Tells of Rays

Dr. Arthur H. Compton, professor of physics at the University of Chicago, was the guest yesterday at a luncheon held at the Union League club by the University of Chicago citizens' committee. This committee is an association of business men interested in the university. Dr. Compton, who returned recently from a scientific expedition to tropical and arctic regions, told the gathering what he had learned about the cosmic ray in the course of his travels.

FIND CAPTURED HOLDUP MAN IS A PROBATIONER

While waiting for the legal steps necessary to put Anthony Lettiere on trial for a drug store robbery that occurred Monday morning, the police decided yesterday to ask cancellation of the probation granted him last August by Judge James J. Kelly. Lettiere was captured twenty minutes after he and a companion had held up a drug store at 1108 North Clark street, obtaining $150.

Looking up his previous record, the police found that Lettiere was indicted on three charges of rape in 1929. He and another youth were charged with abducting two 15 year old girls and taking them to a barn in the forest preserve where they were attacked by a dozen men and kept prisoners four days. Several of the men involved were sentenced to jail, but the charges against Lettiere were stricken off. The police said Lettiere was aided that time by a relative, Benny Yanker, former pugilist and fight referee.

Last Aug. 12 Lettiere pleaded guilty to the armed robbery of a drug store. The loot was $140. He was one of fifteen confessed robbers who were granted clemency that day by Judge Kelly. A warrant for violation of his probation was requested yesterday.

POLICE CAPTURE 2 BANDITS; TOSHARE IN $1,000 REWARD

Two armed Negroes who held up the office of the Household Finance corporation at 736 East 63d street last evening and obtained $219 after terrorizing five employés were arrested two hours later by a detective bureau squad headed by Sergt. James Daly.

They are Charles Allen, 35 years old, 4318 Calumet avenue, and Charles Jackson, 36 years old, 6521 Vernon avenue. It was announced that a reward of $1,000 would be paid the policemen by the finance company. Those sharing with Sergt. Daly are Policemen George Kush, James Garvey, and Gerald Guinan.

The robbers had forced Charles C. Martens, manager; his assistant, and three girl clerks into a washroom. There Martens pressed a button which sounded an alarm in a nearby restaurant. Patrons of the place saw the bandits flee in an automobile and took the license number. With this clew the bandits were located. Jackson had already spent most of his share of the proceeds.

CITY AND COUNTY PREPARE ATTACK ON TAX STRIKERS

Council May Act to Cut Off Services.

Chicago tax strikers face a double offensive today, a direct attack in court and a flank movement by the city council, seeking to curtail their privileges.

The court attack will be conducted before County Judge Jarecki by Hayden N. Bell, county tax attorney. He will seek judgments against a number of properties on which objections to tax payments are similar to those set up in the Bistor case. A review of this case was denied recently by the United States Supreme court.

Judge Jarecki will be asked to set for trial cases involving about a dozen large properties. They have been selected according to the size of their unpaid tax bills, in order to increase tax collections as rapidly as possible. To make sure that cases heard today are those involving genuine tax strikers, and not merely property owners who have been unable to pay taxes because of the depression, Mr. Bell said that he would select cases involving income bearing property on which no tax payments have been made for the years in which objections have been entered.

Seeks Immediate Judgments.

He will ask Judge Jarecki to grant immediate judgments, on which tax sales may be ordered, in all cases where no defense is offered. If the tax objectors are represented by counsel, he will demand hearing of their objections at once.

Mr. Bell has estimated that collection of approximately $200,000,000 in taxes for 1928, 1929, and 1930 is tied up by objections similar to those declared invalid by high courts in the Bistor case. These objectors asserted, unsuccessfully, that failure of assessing authorities to assess large amounts of personal property relieved them from paying a large portion of their real estate tax bills.

As soon as the judgment machinery begins working smoothly before Judge Jarecki the county will assign 90 clerks to assist Mr. Bell in the detail work of putting through the tax forfeitures. He has estimated that 90 per cent of the 300,000 objections pending in the county court can be disposed of in 60 days.

Call Council for Action.

The city council was summoned yesterday to attend a special meeting at 2 o'clock today to consider the program of Mayor Cermak and Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the finance committee, for cutting off city services to tax dodgers.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Leon Hornstein worked all day yesterday preparing a resolution for the council. This resolution would authorize the refusal of various city services to owners of income bearing properties who have refused to pay their taxes, and providing for revocation of permits held by such persons.

There is considerable legal doubt, Mr. Hornstein found, as to what services the city may withhold from offending property owners, and he was not prepared last night to disclose the contents of the resolution. Probably the most potent weapon in forcing tax payments would be for the city to shut off the water supply in buildings on which the taxes have not been paid. Mr. Hornstein and members of the finance committee technical staff were uncertain, however, whether the furnishing of water is a voluntary or a mandatory function of the city. If it is voluntary it could be shut off; if it is mandatory it could not.

Power to Revoke Permits.

There was little doubt expressed, however, over the city's power to revoke any permits which it has granted. This power might be exercised, it was suggested, to revoke switch-track permits to a number of industrial plants on which taxes are unpaid.

Ald. Clark was doubtful as to the wisdom of refusing to collect garbage and ashes from apartment buildings whose owners are participating in the tax strike. Such action, he pointed out, would be a hardship to tenants rather than to the building owners.

Ald. Clark said that he would propose today that one man be placed in charge of the execution of any policies set up by the council for dealing with tax strikers. Action would not be taken, he said, until it was shown that the property owner in question was in possession of an income producing property and was willfully withholding his tax payments.

JOHN H. HARDIN IS NEW HEAD OF N. U. TRUSTEES

The resignation of Arthur Andersen as president of the board of trustees of Northwestern university was announced last night following a meeting of the board at the Palmer house. Mr. Andersen will be succeeded by John H. Hardin, president of F. A. Hardy & Co., who has been a trustee since 1917.

President Walter Dill Scott of the university said that pressure of business obliged Mr. Andersen to relinquish the presidency. Mr. Andersen succeeded Melvin A. Traylor in October of 1930.

William A. Dyche, business manager of the university, announced a 10 per cent reduction in the salaries of all employés of the institution. The necessity for the reduction, according to Mr. Dyche, lies in the fact that since the budget for the college year of 1932-'33 was passed last spring there has been a large decline in income.

It was said the 10 per cent cut is applicable to athletic coaches as well as to the faculty.

"Notwithstanding marked reductions by executive officers of all departments," said Mr. Dyche, "it now appears there will be a deficit next June of $400,000. The reduction in salaries will leave an estimated deficit of $140,000, which the university assumes."

He added that the university has a well established salary scale to which it hopes to return at the earliest possible moment.

DIVORCED WIFE OF PUBLISHER IS MARRIED AGAIN

Mrs. Josephine Underwood Merwin, formerly of Bloomington, Ill., and Frederick Patten Bowes of Hinsdale, were married in Evanston on Oct. 14, it was learned yesterday. They left immediately for Asheville, N. C.

Mrs. Bowes was divorced recently by Davis Merwin, owner and publisher of the Bloomington Pantagraph, on charges of desertion. Mr. Merwin was awarded the custody of their two children, Josephine, 6, and Davis Underwood, 4 years old. Mr. Bowes lost his wife, the former Barbara Brown of Geneva, last May 15 when she and her brother, Gordon Brown, were killed when the latter's airplane crashed near Geneva.

Mr. Bowes operates an engraving plant in Aurora.

WIDOW AND WIFE ASKS SOLUTION OF MARITAL TANGLE

Judge Joseph Sabath had a marital tangle presented to him yesterday in the Superior court when Mrs. Paulina Ruzel Sejka, 5517 West 21st street, Cicero, appeared to seek a decree against Harry Ruzel, who she said is living somewhere in Russia.

"I married him in 1899 in the county of Skole, Poland," she explained. "He deserted me in 1902 and I came to the United States in 1913. Six years later I got a letter from a friend, telling me that Harry had been killed fighting in the world war.

"In 1923, I married Charles Sejka. He died in June, 1930. He had a group insurance policy at the Western Electric company, where he worked, but when I went to collect the insurance, the company showed me a letter from Russia saying that my first husband, Harry, was still living. They told me that I wasn't the legal wife of Charles, so I couldn't collect his insurance."

Ruzel has filed an answer to the divorce bill through a Chicago attorney, denying the charge of desertion. Judge Sabath told Attorney Aaron Rothstein to prepare a decree divorcing Mrs. Sejka from Ruzel, and at the same time holding her marriage to Sejka to be legal.

WINNIE* has a weakness

It comes over her twice a day, between rush periods. Winnie calls it her weakness.

During these times she works herself into an intensely serious mood, reflects on people and the queer things they do. Once, we asked her for an explanation.

"I was thinking," Winnie offered, "why anybody ever goes to any other restaurant than Childs." "Why, Winnie," we stammered, "what a crazy notion! Everybody that can afford them doesn't buy Packards."

"Of course, of course," Winnie broke in, "but here at Childs people can get the freshest, best tasting food they ever ate. The atmosphere is delightful. The service, snappy. Childs offers the hungry everything they want, and for less, too, than they ever paid before. Is that crezy?"

Regardless of its impracticality, there's something to Winnie's theory. Stop at a nearby Childs next meal-time. You'll have to admit she spoke the truth about Childs fine food and low prices.

TAXPAYERS CALL FOR NEW YORK BUDGET ECONOMY

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—This spendthrift city was treated to the unique sight tonight of its citizens lining up in long files to gain entrance to an old fashioned town hall meeting at which municipal economy was discussed.

Surrogate John P. O'Brien, Democratic candidate for mayor, sent his regrets, a telegram pleading "another engagement." When that was read at the close of the protest rally. Surrogate O'Brien's name was roundly booed by the more than 2,000 citizens at Carnegie hall. A resolution was adopted demanding that the board of estimate effect a further reduction in the 1933 budget at the final hearing this week.

Others Pledge Economy.

Pledges of strict economy were made by Lewis H. Pounds, Republican candidate, and Morris Hillquit, his Socialist opponent.

William Patterson, the Negro Communist candidate for mayor, spoke, but he was too busy attacking Wall street and his Socialist rival to find much time for economy.

The only shouts from the audience were an occasional:

"Where is O'Brien?"

The political speakers were cheered impartially when their suggestions for budget cuts were offered. Peter Grimm, chairman of the budget commission, presided and introduced each speaker. George McAneny, former borough president and adviser to the commission, discussed the need of further reductions in the city's budget. He pointed out that the city was spending two million dollars a day and running up a per capita cost of $100 per person for a year's government of the city.

Budget Not Order to Spend.

Mr. McAneny said a budget was not an order to spend but only a permit, and expressed the opinion that "savings should be fought for throughout the entire year regardless of the amount allowed in the budget."

Both the Republican and Socialist candidates for mayor mentioned the absence of their Democratic rival. The trend of every speech was that "it is high time for New York City to get along on less money."

Mr. Pounds said he did not think the task of being mayor would be "spectacular" during the next five years. Only once did he even hint that he held the slightest expectation of holding that job himself.

Cites Growth of Expenses.

In 1926, Mr. Pounds said, the cost of government was $74 for each person. Today he estimated the cost at $92, about $8 under the figure set by previous speakers. Then he pointed out that the budget had risen from $437,000,000 in 1928 to $631,336,297 in 1932. Other speakers referred to the 1932 budget as "the seven hundred million dollar budget." He objected to the proposal to cut $4,000,000 from the budget by abandoning Floyd Bennett field, the municipal airport.

TWO HELD AS BURGLARS.

Albert Ozepek, 19 years old, 7745 South Green street, and Louis Grifeinstein, 19 years old, 5928 South Morgan street, captured Friday as they were prowling in an unoccupied home, were held to the grand jury on nine charges of burglary yesterday by Municipal Judge John F. Haas.

N. Y. CITY HALTS TUNNEL PROJECT DURING SLUMP

New York, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The 38th street Hudson river New Jersey tunnel project was abandoned—for the period of the depression—by the board of estimate today. Sitting as a committee of the whole, it asked the Reconstruction Finance corporation not to lend any money to the port authority for tunnel construction until the city has a chance to be heard.

At the same time it unofficially but menacingly informed the port authority that if it tries to go ahead the city won't allow any streets to be dedicated to the tunnel approach.

"Under ordinary circumstances the position might be taken that this is none of the city's business," said Acting Mayor Joseph V. McKee, addressing Paul A. Wendelin, the representative of the port authority at the meeting. "But since the Reconstruction Finance corporation is an emergency corporation and the city is facing an emergency, the city should be considered because of the incidental expense.

"It seems to me that we are getting on dangerous ground if the port authority can sit down with the federal government and superimpose on another governmental unit a project that would be of great expense to that unit."

Condition Serious

The condition of Andrew J. Gallagher, 40 years old, 2023 Lyndale avenue, street car conductor who was shot by a drunken policeman on Monday, was considered too serious at the American hospital yesterday to permit him to see his twin son and daughter, Vincent and Joan, 16 months old. Only Mrs. Gallagher is permitted to see him, hospital attachés said. Roy Sullivan, 36 years old, 4823 North Oakley avenue, the policeman who did the shooting was taken to Town Hall police station last evening and booked on a murderous assault charge. Sullivan had been in Bridewell hospital for treatment of bruises incurred when he resisted capture.

7 BANK ROBBERS CAPTURED AFTER CHASE BY POSSE

Streator, Ill., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Seven bandits who held up the First National bank at Ransom, 12 miles northeast of here, and got $3,000 today, were trailed to Streator and arrested within two hours after the robbery.

The arrests were made in the home of Mike Martino, owner of a Streator soft drink parlor, who was a member of the gang. The robbers had gathered there to divide their loot. Police recovered $1,300 of the money and later obtained confessions from two members of the gang. Martino's wife was also taken in custody.

The bandit gang, riding in two automobiles, had escaped from the bank after abducting the president and a woman bookkeeper and forcing them to ride three miles toward Streator in the flight. Ervin Kakakara, owner of a garage across the street from the bank, was slightly wounded when a bullet grazed his neck as the gunmen exchanged shots with business men in their escape.

Pursued by Posse.

Business men of Ransom, who had been commissioned as guards of the bank, followed the bandits in automobiles and lost the trail in Streator near the home of Martino at 1213 South Illinois street. Sheriff E. J. Welter of La Salle county, who said that Martino had been under police surveillance for some time, joined deputy sheriffs and local police in a raid on the Martino home. The suspects were taken by surprise and police fired but one shot in making the arrests.

Besides Martino, the prisoners gave their names as Charles Smith, 215 South Honore street, Chicago; Joseph Rino, 3318 North Racine avenue, Chicago; Alexander Sorrentino, 2635 Commercial avenue, Chicago Heights; Joseph Jesse, 4901 West 14th street, Cicero; William Jacobs, of the same address, and Frank Vilone, also of Cicero. All except Martino are said to have confessed.

Bank Employés Kidnaped.

The bandit gang, armed with shotguns and revolvers, entered the Ransom bank yesterday morning. President Leo H. Gondolf, Cashier W. J. Seguin, Miss Elma Thomson, the bookkeeper, and two customers, Harry Geiger and William McShane, were forced to lie on the floor. After scooping the money from the cages the bandits forced Gondolf and Miss Thomson to their cars, in which two men waited at the curb.

They were released three miles in the country on the Streator road and ordered to make no outcry and no attempt at pursuit.

Capture Wisconsin Bandits.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Two of four robbers who attempted to loot the State bank of Mindoro were captured today after a series of gun battles extending over two counties. Two others escaped.

Four men, who came to Mindoro in two automobiles, broke into the rear door of the bank before dawn. They carried in an acetylene torch. Unknown to them, a burglar alarm sounded in the home of Harry Willey, proprietor of a store.

Ed Fox, a deputy sheriff, hid behind a wood pile and with his pistol fired at the men in the bank. The four abandoned work at the vault and rushed out, taking with them a rifle and a riot gun kept at the bank.

At Black River Falls Sheriff Paul Anderson had recruited a posse and he met the two machines. A shot from one of the posse struck the robber who was driving one of the cars. The car crashed at the side of the road and the two men were seized.

Highland Bank Robbed.

Highland, Ill., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Two men robbed the Highland State and Trust bank of about $12,000 shortly before 1 p. m. today and escaped.

New York Goldsmith Robbed.

New York, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Five armed men entered the plant of Kastenhuber & Lehrfeld, refiners of precious metals, in Brooklyn today and escaped with between $40,000 and $50,000 in gold, silver and platinum.

THIRD OF PEABODY MINES REOPENED; 1,000 BACK AT PITS

Taylorville, Ill., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Peabody mine No. 7 at Kincaid, eight miles west of here, was reopened under guard today. This makes the third Peabody mine in this area with a total of 1,000 men at work in them.

About 100 members of the Progressive Miners of America, rival organization of the United Mine Workers, gathered near Kincaid to march on mine No. 1 and picket it, but National Guardsmen scattered them.

About 50 miners of the 217 who started to hoist coal at No. 7 went to work in a special train of the Chicago and Illinois Midland railroad, which carries most of the coal in this district.

This was pay day. At No. 9, at Langleyville, three miles west of Taylorville, the pay roll was $25,000, while at No. 58, on the outskirts of Taylorville, with only five working days involved, the pay roll was $5,000.

Two new companies of the National Guard arrived here today from Salem and Quincy. The two companies relieved were from Peoria and left for home this afternoon.

ROBINS' FRIENDS PLAN RENEWED SEARCH FOR HIM

Friends of Raymond Robins, who has been missing more than seven weeks, said yesterday that they hope to interest the entire country in the search for him, whether he is dead or alive. That a man of Robins' prominence could drop from sight while about to take a train from New York for Washington to see President Hoover seems to them a matter of national importance.

Robins was a powerful figure in Chicago civic affairs for many years. He was a leader of the Progressive party and in 1914 was its candidate for United States senator from Illinois. He has a home in Maine and another in Florida. Leading people of the country were his friends. He was a noted orator, a temperance worker and a supporter of prohibition, but never was known as a snooper, his friends say, although he waged war on bootleggers in the Florida county where he resided.

That Florida rum runners might have waylaid him in New York seemed improbable to many, but it is the only theory of his disappearance his friends have. They think a powerful syndicate, having bases in Florida and New York, may be responsible.

ROBS LOOP SHOE STORE.

After spending 12 minutes in the selection of a pair of shoes, a robber yesterday drew a revolver in the Florsheim Shoe shop, 58 West Randolph street, and forced the clerk, Paul Prillaman, to give him $20 out of the cash register.

"Look here . . . this is Chesterfield tobacco. Notice its lighter color . . . you don't see any dark heavy types, do you? I guess that's why Chesterfields are milder.

"I'm told that uniformly lighter color is due to cross-blending. It sort of welds all the tobaccos into one.

"And here's something else. Notice that these long shreds are all cut the same width. It stands to reason they burn smoother and cooler.

"I don't pretend to be an expert but it looks to me as if they make Chesterfields right.

Ida M. Chitwood says

"For fine cakes always use GOLD MEDAL SOFTASILK The CAKE FLOUR"

In her cake baking demonstrations, Mrs. Chitwood uses Gold Medal SOFTASILK, The Cake Flour, exclusively. She finds that it gives her better cakes—higher, lighter cakes with fine, even texture. She demonstrates the best ways to make cakes and other bakings; so her recommendation of SOFTASILK means something!

Gold Medal SOFTASILK is a finer flour specially milled for cake baking. Select, soft winter wheats are milled extra fine by a special process. Every box of Gold Medal SOFTASILK, The Cake Flour includes a folder of recipes also tested in the Gold Medal Test Kitchen by Betty Crocker.

Watch Mrs. Chitwood demonstrate the wonderful cakes baked with SOFTASILK. Come to the Cooking School Sessions and hear about new recipe ideas. For bakings other than cakes, Mrs. Chitwood will use GOLD MEDAL "Kitchen-tested" Flour exclusively. Your grocer can supply you with either of these Gold Medal flours.

The best bakers use Gold Medal Softasilk, The Cake Flour in the delicious cakes and pastries that they bake for you. 133

5,000 LAUGH AND LEARN IN TRIBUNE COOKING SCHOOL

Throng of Women Packs Trianon Ballroom.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Many a flip but never a flop marked a program that ranged from acrobatic dancers to meringue and back again, at THE TRIBUNE'S cookery carnival opened yesterday at the Trianon ballroom at Sixty-second street and Cottage Grove avenue. From first to last it was a finished performance of widely varying types of talent, playing to a packed house that appreciated the entire production and wasn't slow to show it.

Torrents of rain, tapering off to a steady downpour, couldn't dampen the enthusiasm of the 5,000 inside the huge hall. Scores had gathered at the doors at 10 o'clock, though the program was scheduled for 1, and entrance would not be possible until 11:30, as announced. Long after the last available seat had been claimed and the doors downstairs closed to further comers, groups of women lingered, hoping to be admitted.

Thousands Wait Patiently.

Through their hours of waiting, the thousands sat patiently in the spacious ballroom, some eating lunches they had brought with them. The corps of ushers in chef's white uniforms had little to do, the rows filled up so speedily. About 12:30 they were startled by a sudden movement toward the stage. It developed that the crowd had apparently made up its mind to circumvent those from the back who were bringing up chairs and settling close to the stage, and a concerted rush began for advantageous places.

Strictly speaking, of course, it wasn't a cookery carnival but a cooking school, with Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, the home economics authority who instructed and entertained Chicago women last year, returning for a second season's course. Outside the day was gray and sodden, but inside for better than four hours there was a cyclorama of melody and color and gayety that lent a festival atmosphere to the two lectures of one hour each, in which the culinary hints were given and demonstrated.

Master's Joke Appreciated.

Phil Maxwell, master of ceremonies for the occasion, sent the throng into gales of laughter at the outset as he dubbed the veterans of last year's show "sophomores" and begged them to be kind to the freshmen. A poll of hands revealed that nearly half the big crowd was getting its first experience at the school.

How keenly all enjoyed the pointers from the stage—evolved into a model and shining kitchen of white porcelain and shining copper for Mrs. Chitwood's benefit—was perceptible in the eager rustle of hundreds upon hundreds of programs as she extended her greetings and began her talk. Hands darting here and there for the articles and ingredients to be mixed and molded and decorated, the lecturer tossed off tricks of the cooking trade to a highly diverted audience as she worked.

When is a drumstick not a drumstick? When it's a stuffed veal steak, they learned. For instance, a two pound steak, 1¾ inches thick, stuffed with dressing made from crumbled soda crackers, one tablespoon of minced onion, ½ teaspoon of poultry seasoning, two tablespoons of butter, and ½ cup fresh milk.

Holding up the piece of meat to show how she had made the incision in it, Mrs. Chitwood quickly and deftly stuffed the piece and skewered it into the shape of a turkey leg. Then it was dipped in ½ cup of evaporated milk rolled in fine cracker crumbs and browned quickly in hot fat in a frying pan. A cup of hot water was then added and the meat cooked until tender.

Meringue Ideas Bring Gasps.

Stuffed drumsticks were absorbing, but Mrs. Chitwood's ideas about meringues, that Nemesis of both amateur and veteran cooks, brought a chorus of gasps.

"Have you ever had a meringue fall?" she wanted to know. The air surged with the groaning chorus of "O-o-o-o-o-o!" from every corner of the ballroom and balcony. "Have you ever had a meringue that wouldn't stiffen?" And the atmosphere was filled with affirmatives.

"Well, here's a recipe that never fails," they heard from the white aproned figure behind the microphones. "Watch me make this one. I have here four egg whites. I put in a sprinkle of salt, which helps the beating. I begin to beat, briskly. Now add a bit of baking powder as it begins to foam—½ teaspoonful to each egg. Then I finish the beating, quickly, until the whites are stiff. Then I fold in my sugar—one tablespoonful to each white. I put it into the oven at a temperature of 350 degrees, to make it brown just right."

"Just right" it was, when it was lifted from the oven a few minutes later, topping off a slice of pineapple on which crushed nuts had been sprinkled to make a quick dessert. They are known as pineapple isles.

Mary Meade, TRIBUNE cooking editor, introduced Mrs. Chitwood to the "class," assuring them of her desire to help with any kitchen problems any one might have. She will contribute to the program each day.

Entertainers on Program.

Bob Elson, W-G-N sports announcer, delighted the baseball fans present with a thumbnail sketch of the prospects for next year and the process of broadcasting a game by telegraph. Frank Bennett and Cathryn Bennett were back to lead the opening chorus, "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here"; Henry Phillips and Mrs. Phillips (Ruth Streeter) took plenty of bows when they repeated the duets they sang last year before their marriage from the same stage. And the Morgan School of Dancers sent up children by the score with twinkling toes and vivid costumes to delight the spectators.

Individual successes were scored by De Wolf Hopper and Miss Kathryn Witwer, young Gary singer, whose home town decided to cultivate her soprano voice and sent her abroad for study. With Henry Jackson at the piano, Miss Witwer sang Hageman's "At the Well," the bird song from "Pagliacci," and Hughes' "Sing a Song of Sixpense," then came back for an encore.

Hopper Balks at "Casey."

De Wolf Hopper, the inimitable, persisted in his refusal to give "Casey at the Bat." The past and present star of "The Mikado," however, had his audience "in stitches" discoursing on "Women's Fashions Then and Now." Mrs. Lilian Glasser Hopper, appearing with him in Chicago, sang "Kiss Me Again" to generous applause.

Today's session of the South Side Cooking school will observe the same hours, opening at 1 o'clock and with the seats available from 11:30 o'clock. Wendell Hall, the "redheaded music maker" radio favorite, will be singing through the microphone. Carl Craven will swing the baton for community singing; Sophie Paske, selected as the best woman singer in Chicagoland, will repeat her appearance at the Music Festival of last summer; Anita Hall, soprano, will also be heard, and the Schultz dance studios will entertain with a group of novelty numbers.

Curious Youngster Shoots Butcher with His Own Gun

Versailles, Ind., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Laverne Richmond, five, accompanied his mother to the meat market of D. Q. Wilbur here and, obeying a boyish impulse, went behind the counter. There he found a revolver placed in a convenient position as a precaution against a possible holdup. In the ensuing examination the weapon was discharged and a bullet lodged in the butcher's right shoulder. Wilbur's condition is serious.

CITY IN ULSTER VOTES TO IGNORE PRINCE OF WALES

NEWRY, Northern Ireland, Oct. 25.—(AP)—By a vote of 9 to 5 the city council today declined to present an address of welcome to the prince of Wales when he visits Ulster next month to open the parliament of northern Ireland.

Nationalist and labor members gave as their reason for refusing a statement attributed to Lord Craigavon, prime minister of northern Ireland, that he had invited the prince to open "a Protestant parliament for Protestant people."

BABY BORN AFTER HER MOTHER DIES IS "DOING WELL"

Call Emergency Operation "Very Unusual."

A baby girl, born Monday night 30 seconds after the death of her mother, Mrs. Pauline Fitzharris, 6907 Ellwood avenue, was reported to be "doing well" yesterday at the West Suburban hospital. The birth took place in the office of Dr. Chester W. Trowbridge, 840 South Oak Park avenue, Oak Park. Assisted by two physicians and a dentist summoned from adjoining offices, Dr. Trowbridge performed a Cesarean operation immediately after Mrs. Fitzharris died of a heart attack.

Accompanied by her husband, James A. Fitzharris, the expectant mother, who was 32 years old and was suffering from a chronic heart ailment, had come to Dr. Trowbridge for pre-natal advice. She was expecting the child to be born in about two months.

Doctor Calls for Help.

When Mrs. Fitzharris collapsed Dr. Trowbridge summoned Dr. John Tope and Dr. John R. Boyd, physicians who have offices in the same building, and Dr. Raymond Thomas, a dentist.

When it becams apparent that the woman could survive only a few minutes, Dr. Trowbridge obtained the husband's permission to perform the operation after her death.

Unusual Operation.

Doctors pointed out yesterday that an operation of this kind is very unusual and must be performed with great speed to save the child's life, because as soon as the mother is dead the infant no longer receives a supply of oxygen and will die in a very short time.

When a mother is in good health a Cesarean operation may be performed with a reasonable degree of assurance that it will not be fatal to her, physicians said.

FALLS DEAD AS NEGRO WAVES KNIFE.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 25.—(AP)—When a Negro rushed into his barber shop last night and brandishing a long knife threatened to kill a Negress using the telephoning, Joseph Dammer, 60 year old white barber, dropped dead. The Negroes fled, but the knife wielder, William Johnson, 41, later was arrested.

'I AM FOR BEER,' ROOSEVELT TELLS CHEERING THRONG

Attacks G. O. P. "Wet" Plank as Trickery.

to halt the demonstration and said:

"You good people are in a terrible hurry."

Then he went on and was cheered anew on the promise of additional taxes to be raised on beer.

Gov. Roosevelt opened his attack by identifying the Four Horsemen of the present Republican leadership.

"First," he said, "is the 'Horseman of Destruction.' The embodiment of governmental policies so unsound, so inimical to true progress, that it has left behind in its trail everywhere economic paralysis, industrial chaos, poverty, and suffering. You have heard him clattering down your street.

"Echoing down the trail of this first 'Horseman' we might imagine the voice of the Book of Revelation saying, 'A measure of wheat for a penny, three measures of barley for a penny; and see thou hurt not the oil and the wine.'

"Next comes the 'Horseman of Delay.' Emblazoned on his banner again the words of the Revelation, 'and it was said unto them, that they should rest yet for a little season.'

"Don't Cross Stream."

"I suppose this is what the Republican leaders mean when they say, 'Don't change horses while crossing the stream'; what they really mean is, 'Don't cross the stream at all.'

"My friends, the delay that they have practiced is the delay that they want you to adopt when they say, 'Give us another term, and maybe we can do better,' or perhaps that inspiring battle cry, 'Give us another term and we will not do worse.'

"There is no time for delay when we have been led by these people into quicksand. It is no time for delay when nearly half of our people cannot purchase the bare necessities for their existence. It is no time for delay when eleven millions of honest, industrious and willing men and women are tramping the streets and roads of our country looking for work. It is no time to wait when the prosperity and happiness of this country is at stake.

"And we of the Democratic party will not wait.

The Third Horseman.

"The third horseman is the 'Horseman of Deceit.' It is his purpose to cover the trail of the horsemen of destruction and delay. He tells you things that are not true. He wears a mask. He attempts by misrepresentation and the distortion of facts to blind your eyes, to destroy your sense of direction, to paralyze your power of motion.

"He carries a great shield to hide from you the ugly ruin and terror which his comrades have left in their wake.

"The fourth 'horseman' is the 'Horseman of Despair.' He tells you that our government has no control over conditions that are handled from abroad. He tells you that economic conditions must work themselves out. He tries to close the door of hope in your face."

Voice Shows Strain.

As Mr. Roosevelt started his address his voice showed plainly the hoarseness which he has suffered from since his speech at Atlanta last night. It was necessary for him to keep his voice low, but when he reached the crescendos of his attack unconsciously he would raise his voice and slip into a hoarse falsetto.

He made great capital out of the Hoover record of spending at Washington, classing this also in the trail of the 'Horseman of Deceit.'

"The 'Horseman of Deceit' rides by night," he declared. "He rode when the administration told the public that the crash of 1929 was not serious. He rode when he said prosperity was just around the corner. He rode when people were told to buy and invest and continue business as usual. He is riding now, when spokesmen of the administration misrepresent what I say and what my associates say. Let me illustrate.

Hits at Hoover Policy.

"The President contends that the danger to our credit structure was due primarily to the failure of the government to balance its budget. Right now let's see who is responsible for that failure. After March 4, 1929, the Republican party was in complete control of all branches of the government.

"The crash came in October, 1929. The president had at his disposal all the instrumentalities of government. From that day to Dec. 31 he did absolutely nothing to remedy the situation. Not only did he do nothing but he took the position that congress could do nothing.

"The deficit in the treasury continued to increase, but never did he urge that the budget be balanced until Dec. 1931, nearly two long years later, when the leaders of the Democratic house announced their determination to balance the budget. Then the President urged that it be done. He was right, but, as usual, he was right at the wrong time. He was two years too late."

Calls Figures Misleading.

Mr. Roosevelt declared the President's treasury estimates were misleading, whether deliberately or because of inefficiency, and that they demonstrated the unfitness of the administration.

Charging that the Hoover administration has been full of promises of economy, but without any action toward economy, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"I know that the President publicly announced his approval of a policy of economy, but the members of his cabinet appeared before the committees of congress and opposed the efforts of the congress to reduce the appropriations of the departments.

"Under the provisions of section 209 of the budget act of 1921, the President has specific authority to recommend the elimination and consolidation of bureaus. If he has recommended the consolidation of any bureaus, it has certainly escaped my attention.

"The economy bill gave to him the absolute power to consolidate government activities, such as public health, personnel administration, education, and activities of the war and navy departments. That act was approved June 30, and to this day there has been no consolidation of such activities and therefore there is no justification for our entertaining the hope of any reorganization of the departments of the government under his leadership.

Would Improve Army Posts.

"The President's idea of economy is illustrated by the only section of the relief bill which is of Republican origin, namely, the appropriation of $15,000,000 for the construction of theaters, gymnasiums, service clubs, recreation halls, and riding halls at army posts throughout the nation, construction projects that the congress failed to provide for in the regular appropriation bills, that were unessential and placed an unjust and unfair burden upon the American taxpayers.

"And the President's idea of economy is further illustrated by his approval of an appropriation of $500,000 for the creation of the Wickersham commission, one of the outstanding achievements of the present administration."

The "Horseman of Destruction," as drawn by Mr. Roosevelt, "gleefully gave encouragement" to an unsound spirit of speculation in the great heyday of 1928 and 1929.

"The White House and the treasury department," he went on, "issued statements that definitely encouraged and stimulated this speculative boom. They led the people on to certain destruction."

Attacks Policy on Loans.

The same "horseman," Mr. Roosevelt said, brought the "false policy of lending money to backward and crippled countries," and he added:

"The administration encouraged the policy that sought to open markets in foreign lands through the lending of American money to these countries. It was utterly and entirely unsound, and it brought a terrible retribution."

Going then into his oft repeated condemnation of the Hawley-Smoot Republican tariff bill, Mr. Roosevelt declared: "The Horseman of Destruction rode into every town and every county when the Grundy tariff was passed and signed. This horseman was insatiable. He struck at the crumbling prosperity of the country."

Declaring that the high tariff caused foreign nations to withdraw their patronage from the American markets, Mr. Roosevelt said the markets were destroyed, leaving in their wake bankruptcy, foreclosures, and unemployment.

Gov. Roosevelt digressed a moment from his attack to defend himself from the Hoover charge that he was advocating the abandonment of tariffs on farm products.

Says G. O. P. Delayed.

Then came the "Horseman of Delay." Mr. Roosevelt declared that the Republican leaders refused to repair and rebuild after the ride of the Horseman of Destruction because to do so would be "to admit that there has been destruction."

"The Republican leaders would never be willing to admit that," the candidate declared, "and so they delayed."

"When they should have taken vigorous action," he asserted, "to relieve the federal budget of its crushing burden in December, 1929, they failed to do so. Their delay to take action to reduce expenditures continued from year to year, 1929, 1930, 1931.

"With regard to unemployment relief their action was the same. Farsighted people told them long ago that here was a human emergency that demanded action. But they were at all times hoping—guessing—that things would be better and that they would not be brought to a stern reckoning for the consequences for their acts. And so they delayed in providing relief.

"On this tombstone will be written the words, 'too late'."

Bitter Medicine for Farmers.

Then Gov. Roosevelt referred to the last horseman, "The Horseman of Despair." He accused Mr. Hoover of spreading pessimism abroad over the nation, of telling the farmers that they could not be aided until there was a general revival of American business.

"This was bitter medicine for the agricultural population of the United States," Gov. Roosevelt declared. "Its fallacy is quite apparent. We all know that only by restoring this vast potential market, involving the needs of fifty million people, can American industry be restored."

"Another example of the doctrine of despair," he added, "has been uttered recently by the President of the United States. In his speech at Detroit he quarrels with the statement which I made to the effect that it was the responsibility of government to see to it that workers should be kept at their jobs, wherever possible, and that when they were out of jobs they should be restored.

"I have no apology for that statement. It means precisely what it says. Mr. Hoover's interpretation of it, however, is based on what he apparently has come to believe, that ten million people of the United States must remain unemployed unless the government provides employment for all of them.

"The exact meaning of his statement is, if I understand the English language correctly, that there is no hope for a restoration of normal employment for these ten million people.

"Despair is written all over this statement of the President. A despairing cry which says to the ten million or more American unemployed that normal employment is not for them and is not in sight. This is pure unadulterated despair. There is something worse, my friends, than offering hope.

"He apparently is opposed to any optimism," Roosevelt added, "in the face of present conditions. He apparently feels that the way to restore the spirit of the American people is to tell the unemployed—the vast weary army of unemployed—that they are going to remain unemployed. This, my friends, is pure and unadulterated pessimism. It is, I submit, hair-shirt hypocrisy with a vengeance."

Time for New Things.

Then in closing, Mr. Roosevelt said: "The four horsemen have passed on their way. Destruction has done its worst. But a country of vast resources, filled with people of spirit and strength, remains.

"Delay has made destruction ten times the worse. But it is not too late to build a policy of reconstruction.

"We are facing new things. With confidence we accept the promise of a new deal."

ILLINOIS BUSINESS MEN SUPPORT HOOVER, SILAS STRAWN SAYS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Silas Strawn, former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, said in a statement issued through the Republican national committee today that "a majority of business men in Illinois feel that the failure to re-elect President Hoover would seriously impair recovery of business and aggravate unemployment."

BISHOP ATTACKS AL SMITH OVER RELIGIOUS ISSUE

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf of the Methodist Episcopal area of Chicago, last night attacked Al Smith's Newark speech, charging him with attempting to inject religious prejudice into the presidential campaign.

The bishop spoke before 1,200 Chicago and northern Illinois Methodists at a banquet given for him at the Medinah Athletic club under the auspices of the Methodist Social union. He predicted losses of Democratic votes as result of the Smith speech, pointing to election results in Oklahoma four years ago.

Recalls Oklahoma Results.

"I was in Oklahoma during the last election," said Bishop Waldorf. "Mr. Smith spoke of Oklahoma as being no good for the Democratic cause because 'the state was infested with Methodists, Baptists and other stuff of that sort.' Of course," Bishop Waldorf continued, "Mr. Smith was right, as the 1928 election returns proved, and since his recent allusion to Methodists, Mr. Smith will probably find the same thing true in the coming election!"

Bishop Waldorf condemned appeals to race or religious prejudices in political campaigns. He declared that Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish groups have a common task in working out political problems and that appeal to racial or sectarian prejudices as a means of vote getting is contemptible.

The bishop asserted that the Methodist church "still speaks with a loud voice at the polls on the prohibition question," and that "any doubt of that fact will be allayed on election day."

Praises Smith as Governor.

"I feel a little badly," said Bishop Waldorf, "that such a man as Mr. Smith, who as governor of New York stood for so many higher things, should stoop to cast aspersion on us and thus again attempt to array Protestants against Catholics in this campaign. In fact, I know many Catholics, both of the higher clergy and the laity, who stand firmly for the ideals of prohibition and I believe Catholics and Protestants alike resent such efforts."

Prohibition, however, is not the only issue in politics this year, Bishop Waldorf asserted, pointing to economic problems. He paraphrased Lincoln's assertion that a nation cannot live half slave and half free. That statement, if brought up to date, now that there are no more colored slaves, would be that "a nation cannot live, half in luxury and half in want," the bishop said. He declared that part of the church's moral task is to help to find a solution of such inequality.

Bishop Waldorf praised the work of George W. Dixon as leader of the World's Fair commission on religious exhibits. He said Chicago Methodism would give fullest cooperation to make the religious work of the fair a success and mentioned that Methodist committees are now at work in preparation of exhibits.

F. J. Theilbar, president of the Methodist social union, presided at the dinner.

HIT BY STREET CAR; DIES.

Mrs. Anna Strasser, 60 years old, 320 West 50th street, died yesterday in St. Bernard's hospital of injuries incurred on Oct. 20 when she was struck by a street car at 54th street and Wentworth avenue.

BORAH CALLS SMITH SPEECH BEST SO FAR FOR PRESIDENT

Nampa, Idaho, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Senator William E. Borah, Idaho, Republican, declared in an address here tonight that a speech last night by Alfred E. Smith was "one of the most effective speeches yet made in this campaign for Mr. Hoover."

Senator Borah asserted the former New York governor had proposed to "leave the dry states overrun by the liquor traffic."

Mr. Borah said that Mr. Smith, in his address in Newark, subordinated all other questions to the one question: "Give us beer, give us something to drink."

"What a magnificent political creed," the senator said.

"One of the most effective speeches yet made in this campaign for Mr. Hoover was made last night by the distinguished ex-governor of New York, Mr. Smith," Senator Borah said.

"Many sincere men and women have been in doubt in this campaign owing to the attitude of both parties on the liquor question. But Mr. Smith removed that doubt with a vast number of people. He denounced as bigots, cranks, hypocrites, and intellectual crooks all who are not in favor of tearing down all barriers against the return of the liquor traffic. He says to them in so many words, there is no place for you in the Democratic party."

155,000 FAMILIES IN COOK CO. NOW ON RELIEF ROLLS

The Illinois Emergency Relief commission yesterday made public figures showing that there are 155,000 families on the county relief rolls this month. The report shows there were 146,000 families getting relief in September and it estimates that there will be 174,000 families on the rolls in November if the rate of increase set last fall prevails this year.

The report stated that relief for 174,000 families in November would cost approximately $5,554,000. Relief for September cost $4,167,077, and the budget this month amounts to $4,121,985. The commission officials explained that the October relief bill would have been much larger except for the fact that food rations were reduced 25 per cent because of lack of funds.

These figures compare with 58,699 families on the rolls in Chicago alone in October, 1931, and 66,876 families on the rolls in Chicago in November, 1931. In these two months of last year relief, not including cost of administration or overhead, cost $1,026,351 for October and $1,612,237 for November.

In September this year, of the 146,000 unemployed families receiving aid 142,000, or 98 per cent, received it from federal funds borrowed by the state from the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

The commission announced it will seek a further advance of $6,303,150 from the R. F. C. tomorrow to meet the November relief needs. Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the commission, left for Washington yesterday and Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman of the commission, plans to leave today to present the request. The sum includes the $5,554,000 estimated for Cook county's needs and the remainder, $749,150, is considered sufficient to meet the needs of downstate counties.

ANOTHER GROUP ATTACKS LOAN FOR AQUEDUCT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Another group of taxpayers today joined the legal battle to restrain the Reconstruction Finance corporation from advancing $40,000,000 of federal money which it has pledged for construction of the Los Angeles-Boulder Dam aqueduct.

Their protest was in the form of an intervening petition filed with the District of Columbia Supreme court. It was based on the assertion that the finance corporation in agreeing to purchase $40,000,000 of southern California water district bonds acted in direct violation of a clause in the emergency relief bill providing that costs of "self liquidating projects" cannot be paid through taxation.

Follows Former Attack.

Initial proceedings against the corporation were instituted some time ago by a group of taxpayers in the Los Angeles metropolitan water district. They contended that the new $220,000,000 aqueduct was not needed to supply water to the cities of that district and that its construction would cause higher taxes.

In support of the assertion that taxpayers in the water district will be faced with increased levies, if the aqueduct is built, the new petition filed today quoted the very ordinance passed by the directors of that water district as authorization for the bonds which the Reconstruction Finance corporation has agreed to purchase. The bond issue itself, according to the petition, is predicated on increased taxes, to be levied to pay principal and interest as they become due.

Calls Burden Too Heavy.

The ordinance authorizing the $220,000,000 bond issue was passed by the directors of the Southern Metropolitan Water district on Sept. 11, 1931. It was quoted in the petition filed today as follows:

"That the estimated cost of said public improvement is the sum of $220,000,000, and that such cost is and will be too great to be paid out of the ordinary annual income and revenue of said district. . . .

"That for the purpose of paying the principal and interest of said bonds as the same become due the board of directors of the district shall . . . levy and collect annually until said bonds are paid . . . a tax sufficient to pay the annual interest on such bonds, or such part thereof as shall not be met from revenues of said district, and also sufficient to pay such part of the principal of such bonds as shall become due before the time when money will be available from the next general tax levy of said district or such portion thereof as shall not be met from revenue of said district.

". . . Said taxes shall be in addition to all other taxes levied for the purposes of said district . . ."

The section of the emergency relief bill providing for R. F. C. loans for construction of "self-liquidating projects" defined such projects as follows: "A project shall be deemed to be self-liquidating if such project would be made self-supporting and financially solvent and if the construction cost thereof will be returned within a reasonable period by means of tolls, fees, rents, or other charges, or by such other means (other than taxation) as may be prescribed by statutes which provide for the project."

The action of the Finance corporation, "in the teeth of the positive provisions of the governing statute," the petition averred, "is arbitrary and in violation of law, and such action on the part of the corporation was and is hasty, ill advised, and without consideration of the facts involved and the applicable law."

New Relief Loans Granted.

The R. F. C. authorized today emergency relief loans totaling $1,241,581 to the states of Oklahoma, Oregon, Louisiana, and Colorado. Oklahoma's was $636,656, affecting 57 counties, hit by drought, boll weevil, low prices on agricultural products, and affected by curtailed oil production and mining operations. The previous Oklahoma loan was $181,312. Louisiana already having received $2,104,928, was granted an additional $280,330 for sixteen parishes hit by low agricultural prices. Colorado received $238,035 for twenty-four counties, having had $847,600 previously. Oregon obtained $36,560 for five counties, where slack in lumbering causes unemployment. Oregon had received $134,978 before.

NEW YORK BETTING ODDS STILL 2½ TO 1 ROOSEVELT WILL WIN

New York, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The betting on the outcome of the national election, as far as the presidential contest is concerned, are unchanged. Roosevelt still is favored at 2½ to 1.

A new note came into the wagering today when one bet was made at 3 to 1 that President Hoover will not carry Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. A bet at the same odds was that Hoover would carry Pennsylvania, and others, at 6 to 5, were placed that he would carry Massachusetts.

Other wagers recorded were: 6 to 5 Roosevelt carries New York state, 2 to 1 Roosevelt carries California, 7 to 5 Roosevelt carries California by 100,000 votes, 7 to 5 Lehman is elected, 7 to 5 Wagner is reelected, 2 to 1 McAdoo is elected in California.

Mr. John C. Martin
Curtis-Martin Newspapers, Inc.
Philadelphia
Dear Mr. Martin:
As you know, we made a very interesting test in promoting our September Clover Day Sale this year and the results were so satisfactory that I thought you would be glad to know about them.
We have held these monthly Clover Days for more than twenty-six years and it has been our practice in the past to use all of the Philadelphia papers in promoting them. This time we changed our method and centered our newspaper effort in a four-page rotogravure section in the Evening Public Ledger on Tuesday, September 27 and in the Philadelphia Inquirer and Public Ledger on the morning of the 28th. We used no other newspaper advertising, with the exception of a 1000-line general announcement in a few other publications.
On September 28 our store was crowded to capacity and notwithstanding the general economic conditions and the fact that Philadelphia business was hampered at the time by the infantile paralysis epidemic, we made more individual transactions that day than on any other September day in the history of our store.
To the best of our knowledge, this was the first time that a rotogravure section of this kind had been used in Philadelphia and with the more than half a million circulation which the Evening Ledger, Morning Ledger and Inquirer give, this test proves that this type of publicity is one that deserves careful consideration when a big story is to be told to the Philadelphia shopping public.
Very truly yours,
Herbert J. Tily

Strawbridge & Clothier, one of America's great department stores, now occupies this modern new building recently erected at a cost of $10,000,000. The beauty of the structure is enhanced by the "setback" style of architecture employed in its construction.

Here is the answer...

Why has Strawbridge & Clothier, one of America's great department stores, spent 66.3% of each advertising dollar in the Curtis-Martin Newspapers of Philadelphia during the first nine months of 1932? . . . Why have Philadelphia department stores, as a group, spent during this period 59.9% of each advertising dollar in these same newspapers? . . . Why have Philadelphia department stores increased their space in the Curtis-Martin Newspapers so far this year by more than one and a half million lines, while decreasing their space in the other newspapers of Philadelphia by more than a million lines?

An answer to these questions is found in the letter reproduced above. And the answer is all the more convincing and compelling because it is based upon results, not theories or conjectures.

Philadelphia department stores know this market; know that the Curtis-Martin Newspapers provide greater coverage in each and every section of the market area—city, suburban and outside—than all other Philadelphia newspapers combined. And they know, too, that the Curtis-Martin Newspapers deliver to their advertisers more potential purchasing power for every dollar invested in space than any other Philadelphia newspaper or combination of newspapers.

When others prove with their own money that we can carry this market's advertising load, which means filling stores and profitably moving merchandise, the only answer to your advertising in the Philadelphia market is Curtis-Martin Newspapers.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

ROOSEVELT AND HIS SUPPORTERS.

Gov. Roosevelt's speech at Pittsburgh on the budget hit the bull's-eye a number of times, but it is true that nearly everything the two parties say of each other's financial accountability in the last year has justification. It is true, as Gov. Roosevelt says, that the Republican bureaucracy resisted every attempt to cut out the extraneous functions of the federal government. The things which the federal government should not do but continues to do are represented in the costs and deficits. The federal revenue cannot sustain them, but the bureaucracy does.

It is also true that the Democratic house of representatives under Speaker John Garner tried to throw the national economies still further out of gear by building postoffices where they would be absurdities, by passing the Patman bonus bill which would have finished the credit of the treasury, by proposing loans of government money to individuals and enterprises regardless of their ability to repay. So convincing are the accusations on both sides that the people must by now understand that the accountability for governmental prostration lies in both the parties. Both Mr. Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt have said that they proposed to stop these drains on national wealth and prevent the ruin which impends if costs are not reduced, but neither can show that party action in the past has afforded a guarantee of party policy.

Gov. Roosevelt in his Pittsburgh speech showed that the increase in the expenditure for the business of government between 1927 and 1931 was one billion dollars after the debt service charge is eliminated.

This increase of one billion dollars cannot be attributed to such items as national defense, because the army and navy have been curtailed. The increase represents the socialistic development of federal government. It represents the so-called social services, the extraneous enterprises which have found their sanction, if any, in the general welfare clause. Gov. Roosevelt's progressive, radical, and socialistic support from disaffected persons of the Republican party or from natural adherents of the Socialist candidate, Mr. Thomas, represents the elements dissatisfied with the older forms of American government. They are attracted to the Democratic ticket in this election by their belief and expectation that these ultra-governmental activities will be increased rather than decreased.

The billion dollar increase in costs is a sum composed of such items as Boulder dam, the grain and cotton price fixing, Muscle Shoals, federal subsidies for road building, shipping board operations, arid land reclamation, and so forth. The increase is for the irrigation of lands when the land already has undisposable surpluses. It subsidizes barge companies to compete with railroads already breaking down under socialistic regulation. It provides federal interference in education. It digs up barberry bushes, regulates the packing of meat products, chases the buffalo tick and the Mediterranean fruit fly, and provides patterns for children's jumpers. It concocts cooking recipes, advises as to the selection of furniture, tells the farmers about the bullfrog, and regiments the children of the country.

Now more, not less, of these activities are advocated by the distinctive groups of supporters whom Gov. Roosevelt has attracted, regardless of their previous party labels. The desire for government of this character accounts for the support of Gov. Roosevelt by such men as La Follette in Wisconsin, Norris in Nebraska, and Johnson in California—to name some renegade Republicans—and by men who naturally would adhere to Thomas, the Socialist, or Foster, the communist, but who are willing to compromise because of the greater practicality of working in and with a major party.

These political elements are for Gov. Roosevelt in spite of his declarations, because they believe that through the Democratic party they can obtain an extension of socializing enterprises in the United States. Their objectives are various, including the nationalization of resources, the widespreading of government ownership and operation as in the production of electric power, and of government control as in the supervision and sudsidy of education, aid in maternity and child culture, and in general an assumption by government of responsibility for the welfare of individuals throughout the land.

It is very difficult to separate Gov. Roosevelt from the support which goes to him for reasons diametrically opposite to the policies which he announced at Pittsburgh.

THE POT AND THE KETTLE.

While Mr. Al Smith's sarcastic review of the wine grape chapter of the present administration's treatment of the noble experiment will be much appreciated by most Americans, regardless of party, Senator Bingham's equally sarcastic comment on the Democratic house's interpretation of its party mandate deserves as much applause. Both agencies of government are in the same boat. Both were playing for political advantage without regard to consistency or the public good.

But the nation may take comfort in the reasonable expectation that the next session of congress will probably if not certainly find it good politics to do something substantial for the correction of conditions, and the new congress to be elected November 8 will do more, if voters will trouble to see that its membership is so minded.

OWNERSHIP OF LAND.

There was an equity in the real estate tax payers' original protest against the operation of the Illinois tax laws. The tax methods have borne down with brutal force upon real property. It was tangible and could not escape. It couldn't be hidden and in hard times it had begun to lose its profits. Even if it were the intention of the assessing bodies to trim the taxes to economic fluctuations the quadrennial assessment plan would interfere and, furthermore, in times of diminishing revenue it is seldom the habit of taxing bodies to go easy on discoverable sources of public money.

Thus, the owner of real estate found himself with diminishing resources and demands upon them which were more difficult to meet and in some cases impossible. This situation which unquestionably contained an injustice and pleaded for a reform of tax method was seized upon, however, by some racketeering lawyers. The protest was soon distorted out of legitimate purpose. Many taxpayers were glad to believe that there was an escape, not only from inequitable tax regulations and consequences but from a share in the obligation to support government. The results of this were intolerable and now, as the court decisions clear up the muddle, it is probable that many owners will regret their experience in refusing to bear any share in the public cost of the community. What the tax strikers were persuaded to do was an injustice to others who paid either in full or in part and led to a condition of government which was on about the last step to collapse.

The Illinois Supreme court in one of the decisions clarifying the situation held that the question is political and not legal. In that direction there is still hope for remedy. Reference has been made before and may be made again to the English theory which holds the occupier and not the landlord responsible for the taxes of the space used. Many advantages of this are apparent. It spreads the sense of direct tax responsibility. It relieves improved real estate of taxes when there are no profits. It encourages investment in real estate by making it possible to carry it without danger of being destroyed by taxation. Land ownership still should be regarded as a stabilizer of citizenship. It ought not to be made undesirable. Tax on occupation relieves the landowner of his duties as a tax collector. It does not seek a return from property which has ceased to show any. The advantages are worth considering. Certainly the extremities to which hard times have driven the owners of real property, whether city or country, should be studied, and Illinois should realize that it suffers and its citizens suffer from the consequences of revenue laws based upon conditions two generations old.

OUT OF THE WHEAT PIT.

The federal government has lifted some of the restrictions on futures trading on the Chicago Board of Trade in exchange for some rather indefinite assurances that the board will keep the short sellers in check. The new arrangement can be explained in either of two ways. It may be intended to stimulate bull speculation in wheat in the preëlection period; or it may be an admission that the government's restrictions did not, in reality, achieve their objective of increasing farm prices and might as well be abandoned.

The two explanations come down to pretty much the same thing. The government's regulation of futures trading was based on the assumption that the board of trade was the farmer's enemy and that control of the board's activities must result therefore in benefit to the farmers. The relaxing of the regulations means primarily that the government and the farm politicians have at last learned that the assumption was false and that monkeying with the marketing machinery does the farmers far more harm than good.

The discovery has come too late to do much immediate good. It will take some months yet, in all probability, before the consequences of the government's activities as regulator and as speculator are neutralized. Indeed, the damage done to the wheat and cotton farmers by the farm board may never be wholly undone. Because the board raised American prices above the world market, and therefore kept American wheat and cotton pretty well out of the export markets, other countries learned to cultivate these crops and did not have to face American competition in getting started. These competitors of the American farmer are now established in business. They are operating on cheap land with cheap labor. It will be no easy task to displace them.

The barn door has at length been closed. The search for the horse will now proceed.

[Wisconsin State Journal.]

Wisconsin farmers are having some concrete evidence of an improvement in the business conditions in this country.

While prices for milk are not yet what they should be to give the farmer a just return for his product the tendency is upward rather than downward, and this of itself is an encouraging sign.

The Wisconsin crop reporting service gives figures showing that Wisconsin farmers are now receiving 13 per cent more for their products than they did in June. The dollars the farmers are receiving also buy 16 per cent more than they did three months ago.

This means that farmers are not only receiving a higher price for their products but the slight increase in the return is augmented by the larger purchasing power that their dollars now have over what they would buy earlier in the year.

The figures show that prices are being adjusted and that the changes are of benefit to agriculture.

Wisconsin people will welcome an increased buying power to the farmer. Higher prices for the farmer mean more money for expenditures by him for the products of other industries. This means a larger trade for merchants in agricultural centers and a consequential increased demand on manufacturers and wholesalers for retail replacements.

Figures showing that the farmer is gradually having more money at his command presage therefore a material improvement in all lines of business.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. By F. A.

FROM PITTSBURGH comes distressing news again proving our contention that babies should be named by the state or a government commission or something and not left to the mercy of their parents. See what happened! One set of triplets recently born in that town has been named respectively Herbert, Clark, and Hoover, while another equally unfortunate trio of infants have been named Franklin, Delano, and Roosevelt. It would be a good joke on parents that do things like that if they had quadruplets. But, no, that wouldn't stop 'em. Even before the campaign is over we expect to read of at least one set of quads being named Herbert, Clark, Hoo, and Ver, while another sad eyed set of quadruplets will drag through life under the names of Franklin, Delano, Roose, and Velt. It is something awful to contemplate!

AS THE LEAVES FALL.

Colder than grief, and sadder and more mournful,
The broken leaves blow down unceasingly,
Ashes of amber flame. Ah, love, beware
Lest any moment pass without its toll;
Summer is dead, and though she rise again
Who shall assure us of another year?
Forgotten as a fagot that is burned
Stirred by the wandering winds of old delight
Into a half-forgetful murmuring.
Draw near to Beauty while the splendor shines
In its last glorious moments; be aware
While yet they fall, the dark leaves and the gold,
Of that bleak coming which shall freeze the world,
And the vast hush of winter's middle hour
When falls not any leaf through the still air
Be mindful of the end, that in this hour
While face to face we speak, and are shut out
From time and toil as with a glittering dome,
We turn away from offered loveliness
No more . . . the winter comes; the winter comes . . .
Then shall the bird be silent, and the tree
Stand leafless in the night. Forget it not: .. .. ..
Forever and forever and forever
Still as the buried summer shall the sound
Of this love be; forgotten, as the drift
Of leaves beneath the snow; no more regarded
Than the bright feather plucked and blown away
After the bird lies bleeding. We are death . . .

There shall be none of us beneath the sky;

DOROTHY KISSLING.

THE GIRLS of the W. C. T. U. are making a vigorous protest against the action of the tobacco farmers of Wisconsin, who have asked the University of Wisconsin to aid them in finding new flavors for chewing tobacco. Now, really, girls, judging from the success of your work in regard to abolishing the drinking of hip likker and white mule, we would say you had better let this chewing tobacco thing alone or you'll have everybody doing it and chewing tobacco leggers parading around four abreast.

IT WOULD BE much better, girls, to tell those who indulge in chewing tobacco the reply of John Wesley to a convert who came up to him very anxiously and said, "I want to ask you, Mr. Wesley, if a man can chew tobacco and be a Christian?" "Why, certainly," said Mr. Wesley, "a dirty Christian." And if that doesn't hold 'em nothing will.

AS WE LISTENED to Al Smith the other night, a speech that bristled with defiance, invective, satire, irony, and wisdom, that poem of Henley's kept ever running in the back of our mind as describing Al Smith himself so truly:

"In the fell clutch of circumstance,
I have not winced nor cried aloud;
Under the bludgeonings of chance,
My head is bloody, but unbowed."

WE SHOULDN'T call 'em "coppers," Charles P. Taft II. of Cincinnati tells us, because the word decreases public respect. Charles (II.) says we should invent some such term as "bobby," as used by the English, and suggests we change the name "policeman" to "Civic Guard." In the first place, the English didn't invent the name "bobby." Both "bobby" and "peeler," another term for 'em, are so called after Sir Robert Peel, who, among many great achievements, organized the London police force in 1829. In the second place, "Civic Guard" is a bit unwieldy and hard to say rapidly and repeatedly. Why, if a wicked burglar were stealing the family jewels or, worse yet, the home brew, we would not run to the window and scream. "Oh, Civic Guard! Civic Guard! Civic Guard!" Oh, no, we would say, "hellup, pleece, pleece, pleece!"

AFTERNOON TEA AT THE BAR NONE RANCH.

Curly has his tequila—

Jeff is a great one for brandy,
"The Kid" takes raw white mule,
Red wants sparkling burgundy—
With the heart of a precious jewel.

The foreman has home brewed beer,
The top hand chooses plain ale,
The wrangler drinks corn whisky
That lands him in Prescott jail.

Blondie gets lit on a highball,
"The Spic" has a "Bar None Queen"—
While Buckaroo Bill, the Terror,

AND AFTER the spanking Al Smith gave Texas they ought to be glad down there that he had Mabel Willebrandt, Mr. Hoover, the depression, the two platforms, and so many other things to talk about besides mentioning the fact that the Democrats had candidates for President and Vice President that he didn't just read 'em right out of the Union.

How to Keep Well By Dr. W. A. Evans

FACE WORRY DOWN.

WASH YOUNG has a way out of the depression. It is directed toward the individual rather than society, but then society is nothing but a mass of individuals. It is a philosophy rather than a plan. Reduced to its simplest, it is that if a person controls his fears he will be happier and will do better work for himself and all concerned. If every one is doing better work for everybody, and those interested in everybody, the laws of economics can run on a better basis than they can when men are in another frame of mind.

He makes two suggestions about worry. Both apply to prevention in greater measure, though each has some virtue as a cure. The first is the advice that every man who must worry should worry in the open. Worry is a form of mild, chronic fear.

The virtues of courage have been so dinned into our ears during the thousands of years since we left the security of the Garden of Eden that we are ashamed to admit that we have fear of any kind. Out of this shame have grown some virtues and some vices. Our shame about the fear we call worry makes us worry in secret. Both the worry and the secrecy harm us. The average person, called on to worry in the open, if at all, and never to worry under cover, is liable to stop and consider, to analyze worry, and to discover it to be a form of fear and therefore not a thing to be proud of; to realize its wastefulness, ineffectiveness, and lack of logical background and, therefore, to quit worrying in time.

Some can learn to laugh over their worries. That is antidotal and I wonder that Mr. Young did not make it one article in his creed. While the proposal has great preventive value, it will not be of much service in the cure of those whose worry habit is developed into a definite disease.

The second suggestion he made was that we cure the worry habit, and some other bad mental habits made worse by the depression, by making use of another principle that is an emotional force. That is compulsion. In plainer language, that some one in authority order the worrier to worry every day, say, from seven to eleven in the morning. To have to worry under orders for four hours daily would be worse than eating a quail a day for a month. The job would soon become very difficult. There is none of the pleasant pain in worrying when the performance ceases to be voluntary. We turn from compulsive worrying to the pleasant live-for-this-day-only policy of "don't care" with relief and happiness. When you stand a fellow up against a worrying wall for four hours daily he is willing to take on almost any frame of mind to get away.

This part of Mr. Young's proposal not only has value as a preventive, but it will cure some rather set worriers, some pretty well hooked with the worry disease.

AN UNTHINKING FRIEND.

J. E. O'B. writes:

1. Can one catch syphilis by kissing one who has been kissed by a victim of this disease? A woman victim bade goodby to a friend, kissing her directly on the mouth several times. Later several friends were also kissed by this unfortunate party.

2. This syphilitic woman is very stubborn about obeying doctors' orders. Having been afflicted for several years, she indulges in alcoholics constantly. Her eyes are badly affected, her skin becomes scaly, and she acts at times as though she were mentally deficient. Otherwise, she is sane enough, though she is always very crafty and mean. How long can one live under these conditions, and does insanity result?

REPLY.

1. No. To transmit syphilis by kissing the kisser must have either a chancre or a mucous patch on the lips or inside the mouth.

2. She may live a great many years. If she has syphilis of the nervous system she is in danger of general paresis, and this is a form of insanity. A large part of the insane population has paresis.

SENNA TEA.

F. E. C. writes: I have taken nightly for several months a teacup of steeped senna pods (not leaves) for stubborn and chronic constipation. I cannot take drugs because of long standing stomach trouble. What is your opinion of the action of the senna pods? I notice each morning a disagreeable and foreign taste in my mouth and, while the pods accomplish their purpose, I wonder whether or not they are harmful.

REPLY.

Senna tea is about as nearly harmless as any medicine you can take. A better plan, if possible, is to break the constipation habit and train yourself to do without any drug.

INTEREST ON BOND.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Recently I borrowed a small amount from a loan company, giving as security a bond I had. In the meantime the loan company completely disappeared and no doubt disposed of the bonds which they held as securities to other unsuspecting customers. The interest on this bond becomes due next month, and I would like to know what you would suggest as the most effective means to prevent the payment of this interest to the party now in possession of my bond. Also, how can I have this bond restored to me? W. B.

If, as seems probable, the bond was so worded as to be payable to bearer, then a purchaser before maturity and without notice of your rights would be in a position to defeat you.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

INSURANCE.

Lincoln, Ill., Oct. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Where can I get a copy of the life insurance laws for the state of Illinois? 2. Do the life insurance companies have to give out a financial statement? 3. If you lapse your monthly dues do you have to lose all you paid in, or does the insurance company refund some of it? H. B.

1. You can examine the statutes at the public library.

2. You can obtain such information from the state superintendent of insurance, Springfield, Ill.

3. Depends on the wording of your policy. Under some policies commonly called "term insurance" the insured pays premiums that are only sufficient to cover his current insurance protection, with no surplus to build up a reserve. In such case nothing can be recovered when the policy lapses. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER, 26, 1916.

CHICAGO.—Assuming the offensive yesterday, Chief Healey broke up State's Attorney Hoyne's raiding squad. He sent back to the stations from which they were detailed to the prosecutor's office the twenty-five policemen who raided the city hall and performed other feats of strength for Mr. Hoyne. They will lay aside civilian clothes for blue uniforms with belts and clubs. As a substitute for this squad, whose members were picked by Mr. Hoyne, the chief sent him eight "careful, conscientious law abiding" policemen of his own selection.

LONDON.—The armies of the central empires, continuing their "nutcracker" tactics, are delivering tremendous blows at the Rumanians and Russians in the Balkan fields. Field Marshal von Mackensen's army is continuing its advance all along the Dobrudja front. The Russo-Rumanian positions at Lake Tachaul, near the Black seat coast, twelve miles north of Constanza, also were captured this morning, placing Bucharest in great peril. A dispatch from Petrograd says it is stated there unofficially that preparations have been made to move the seat of the Rumanian government from Bucharest to Odessa. It is believed that the Rumanian government already has left the country. On the Transylvania front Vulcan pass has been captured by Gen. von Falkenhayn's army, the Berlin war office announced.

LONDON.—Only in Macedonia have the allies made any progress in the Balkan field. Italian cavalry from southern Albania formed a junction yesterday with cavalry and artillery from the entente forces on the Macedonian front, the French war office announced. Italian forces occupied the Albanian seaport of Avlona before Italy entered the war against Austria.

BERLIN.—A Russian gas attack on the Shara failed. An attack of Russian battalions near Kolostrow, northwest of Lutsk, was without any success. In the southern part of the Carpathian forests there were minor engagements. Positions on the heights which the Germans captured remained in their possession.

PARIS.—Three successive counter attacks by the Germans north of Verdun, in the region of Haudromont and Douaumont, were repulsed by the French today, says the official war office statement.

LAREDO, Tex.—Twenty men, principally warehouse men, were executed in Mexico City last week for participating in robbing freight consignments through fraudulent bills of lading, according to reliable information received here. Robbery of freight cars has been so frequent recently on the Constitutionalist lines that merchants have practically abandoned shipments, it was stated.

NEW YORK.—Official announcement was made by J. P. Morgan & Co. that a new British loan by American bankers, aggregating $300,000,000, has been arranged.

CHICAGO.—The marriage of Miss Mildred L. Murphy, daughter of Mrs John B. Murphy of 3305 Michigan avenue and the late Dr. Murphy, to Edward Nash Hurley Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Nash Hurley, will take place on Nov. 8.

CHICAGO.—Bread prices in Chicago and surrounding territory are likely to rise again. Flour of the kind used by bakers yesterday made a sensational jump in price and reached $10 a barrel, which bakers had previously said was the limit for bread at 6 cents per standard loaf. The price of the same flour to the housewife is $11. Speculation such as the Board of Trade has never known sent the prices of all kinds of grain and provisions soaring yesterday to marks which have not been equaled since the civil war. December wheat sold at $1.36 a bushel, shattering for the first time the record of $1.35 set during the Leiter deal of 1898.

MORE OF THE SAME.

Galena, Ill., Oct. 17.—After listening to the President's two major speeches and particularly to the one delivered in Cleveland I can't help but think that while our President is very modest in relating what he has done to keep things from being worse, his policies are drawing us into a situation which is comparable to the one which caused our present shock or dislocation.

He states that the war debts are in a certain measure the cause of Europe's plight and consequently of our trouble. It appears that he has made no provision or given no consideration to the problem as to how the various institutions, corporations, etc., which have borrowed money from the various governmental agencies are ever going to repay. It would be bad enough if the government had to take over the railroads, banks, etc., but what is going to happen if it has to take over the homes of those who will borrow from the President's latest project? Extensive credit has been the cause of our trouble and he is advocating more credit. The big question is, will the government be able to handle frozen assets any better than our private institutions have?

SOWING THE SEEDS OF ENVY.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Henry Field, Iowa's distinguished radio peddler, has just dished out a load of envy for digestion by the hicks, urban and rural. His cracks at Roosevelt's dude farm were not for the purpose of illustrating his remoteness from the problems of the Republicans' dear friend, the poor dirt farmer. They were inspired by the mean hope of arousing envy in the breasts of Roosevelt's less fortunate fellow citizens. They were on a par with the malicious innuendoes of Coolidge, America's Grand Little Man, when he alluded recently to Roosevelt's private tutors, private schools, and inherited wealth. Have Coolidge and Field, the much publicized apostles of horse sense, joined the ranks of those who want to soak the rich? Their efforts to arouse envy of the well-born, well-to-do Democratic candidate seem to indicate that they have. CHUMLEY.

A CAMPAIGN OF FEAR.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Whenever the Republican ticket faces defeat in a presidential campaign the last resort of the party managers has been the appeal to fear in the mind of the small man. The idea is to scare the owner of a small competence, a home, or a job into thinking that he might lose any or all of these things if he helps to oust the present incumbent of the presidential chair. I heard this thought raised by a number of young bank employes, none of whom were old enough to know what they are talking about. Usually the argument is supported by the assertion that a certain company received a large order, the shipment of which was made contingent upon the reëlection of the President. Their glibness of speech indicated that these men had been well rehearsed in their task of spreading the gospel of fear. Henry Ford is reported as writing letters to all his employés that he will close his plants for one year in case Hoover fails of reëlection.

That this racket will fail in this campaign is patent to any one who is not blinded by partisan bias. The number of those who still have something to lose has been reduced to a corporal's guard and their opinion will carry small weight in this election. C. WEBER.

QUESTIONS.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Has a bank receiver the right to refuse a bank customer access to his safety deposit box because that customer owes the bank money on a loan?

Has a bank receiver the right to refuse to divulge names and addresses of mortgage note holders and mortgagors to either one or the other when an attempt is made by them to get together to settle their loan problems direct? It appears that receivers withhold such information from both mortgagors and mortgage holders deliberately but cooperate with the so-called bondholders' protective committees as much as possible. Why? Do they get extra fees from such committees? Is it to a receiver's financial disadvantage to put mortgagors and mortgage holders in touch with each other? CURIOUS.

THE REGULATION OF ACCOUNTANTS.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—A communication signed by Edward Basofin, C. P. A., deplores the lack of regulation of the profession of certified public accountancy by the University of Illinois. I desire to call Mr. Basofin's attention to the fact that the C. P. A. law does not give the university the right to regulate such practice. In 1927 the Illinois legislature enacted a law placing the regulating of public accountancy in the department of registration and education. This law defines the practice of public accountancy and provides severe penalties for its violation. No one may perform the acts described in that law unless he has met certain requirements and received a license from the state authorizing him to practice. HERBERT W. CONDIT.

3 YOUNG RAPISTS OF DE KALB CO-ED GRANTED PAROLE

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Three youths, sentenced to thirteen years in prison after they had pleaded guilty in Circuit court at Sycamore to the rape of a college student, have been ordered released on parole by the state board of pardons and paroles. They have served six years and six months of their sentence in Pontiac reformatory.

Those released are Stanley Hurt and Leonard Rich, now 26 years old, and Emmerson Wilson, 27 years old. All were students in the Northern Illinois Teachers college at De Kalb, as was their victim, Miss Dorothy Westervelt. Rich is the son of William Rich, who was a supervisor of De Kalb county. Hurt is the adopted son of a wealthy De Kalb county farmer, and Wilson's parents, also prominent, reside at Charleston, Ill.

Frequent Efforts for Parole.

The youths entered the state reformatory in June, 1926, a few weeks after the attack on Miss Westervelt occurred. Since their imprisonment there have been frequent efforts to have them pardoned or paroled. These efforts have been fought by friends of the wronged girl and by the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs.

The reasons for their release at this time were explained by Miss Agnes S. McCartney of Chicago, a member of the parole board.

"There was no secrecy about the hearings," she said, "and no undue pressure was brought in behalf of the young men. The order was issued on Oct. 13.

"We took into consideration the youth of the prisoners, for one thing. They were very young when the crime occurred and they have now served six and a half years. They would, under the law, have been automatically released in fourteen months more.

Good Prison Record.

"While in prison they have been model prisoners, acting as teachers for the other inmates of Pontiac. There is not a single demerit on their records in confinement. They are not vicious characters. On the contrary, they are fine boys. I believe they are sorry for what they did and that they have been punished sufficiently. Also, I am glad that I serve on a board that could recognize the facts."

The Rev. R. Keene Ryan, another board member, is now at his home in Chicago. He has been ill and did not vote on the release of the rapists. He said tonight that much pressure had been exerted for them at nearly every meeting of the board in the last two years.

The case was one of the most sensational in the legal history of northern Illinois. Miss Westervelt had gone to ride in an automobile with the three youths. Another girl who had been with them was taken home. The car was driven to a lonely roadside, where the attack occurred.

Miss Westervelt testified that the youths attacked her in turn, assisting each other in overpowering and beating her. She added that they then took her home, warning her they would kill her if she reported what had occurred. She disobeyed the order and the youths were arrested.

Rich and Hurt have been paroled to their parents and presumably will return to farming. Wilson is paroled to friends in Detroit.

Paul Crosco, 19 years old, 663 Blackhawk street, was arrested yesterday by Chicago avenue police as he emerged from a cigar store at 104 West Oak street with an armful of cigars and the telephone coin box. A second boy escaped when he saw the police squad approach, and Crosco said that he did not know the name of his companion. He and the other boy met and decided on the burglary, Crosco said, because both were without funds.

LIFE IN PRISON FOR PREACHER AS WIFE SLAYER

Muskogee, Okla., Oct. 25.—(AP)—The Rev. S. A. Berrie, 52 year old unfrocked Cumberland Presbyterian minister, was convicted late today by a jury of poisoning his first wife, Mrs. Fannie Berrie, who died after taking a capsule at a church service. The verdict carries a life prison sentence.

Berrie appeared calm when he was returned to his cell. Sentence will be passed formally next Monday. His comely 19 year old second wife, the former Ida Bess Bright, and a Sunday school teacher in his church, also apparently was unmoved.

Iliff Berrie, the pastor's 26 year old son, and his wife, Ruth, were in the courtroom when the verdict was read. Berrie will be taken to the state penitentiary at McAlester. Berrie is the writer of numerous hymns, including "In Beulah Land."

Berrie was returned to jail, his attorneys indicated they would ask for a new trial, and, failing that, take an appeal.

Mrs. Fannie Berrie died in convulsions March 31. The minister married again May 17. The second wife was exonerated of any connection with the poisoning.

Charles Woolsey, 1004 North Clark street, rummaged through some of the old letters of his wife, Betty, several days ago, and immediately set out to get a warrant for her arrest. His action was caused by the discovery of a letter indicating that she had been married on Jan. 24, 1929, at Waukegan to one Peter M. Vallos. Woolsey married her on Nov. 12, 1931, at Murphysboro, Ill. Mrs. Woolsey was arraigned yesterday in the Felony court on the charge of bigamy. Hearing was continued to Nov. 21.

Woman and Gunman Rob Shop of Dresses and Cash

A blonde woman, accompanied by a man, took five dresses and $35 in a holdup of a dress shop at 430 North Parkside avenue late yesterday afternoon. The man carried a revolver with which he threatened Mrs. Phyllis Weiss, owner of the shop. He forced her to lie on the floor. Meanwhile the blonde, who was about 30 years old, rifled the cash drawer and then selected five dresses, valued at $40, from the rack.

ROTHSTEIN CASH ASSETS $50 AT TIME OF DEATH

New York, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The surprising information that when Arnold Rothstein, gambler, was shot and killed in November, 1928, he had cash assets of only $50 came out today. I. Gainsburg, attorney for the Rothstein estate administrators, applied for an extension of time to file an accounting.

Surrogate James A. Foley granted him from Nov. 1 to 30.

40,000 LONDON POLICE TO MEET "HUNGER ARMY"

2,000 Jobless Marchers Due to Arrive Tomorrow

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 25.—All regular police in London and special police, who are civilian volunteers, totaling about 40,000, will be mobilized on Thursday to deal with the unemployed "hunger marchers," at least 2,000 of whom are now converging upon the British capital.

The marchers are plodding along muddy roads in groups of from 20 to 200 from Scotland, Wales, and many parts of England. Most of the marchers are now within 40 to 50 miles of London. So far few incidents have occurred on the march. The unemployed have lived on the country in the sense that they have thrown themselves on the public assistance authorities of the towns through which they passed for lodging and food.

Men, Women, and Children.

In some cases local labor or Socialist organizations have provided food. Both men, women, and children are participating in the movement.

It is charged that communist agitation is behind the march and the government is certain that each group contains some communists. This explains what might seem to be excessive police precautions. It is feared that communists in London may provoke rioting and looting in the hope of inciting orderly unemployed men to clash with the police.

The object of the march is to send a deputation to parliament demanding the abolition of the "means test," which requires a recipient of the dole to furnish proof that he has no other means of support.

London county council authorities today promised accommodations for the "hunger marchers" if organizers of the demonstration failed to make adequate provisions. Officials, however, said they expected leaders of the jobless army to provide food and shelter.

Motion of Censure Defeated.

With the "hunger marchers" nearing the capital, David Lloyd George, Liberal party wartime prime minister, returned to the house of commons tonight and attacked the government's measures dealing with unemployment with his old time vigor. He spoke after George Lansbury, Labor party leader, introduced a motion of censure.

"I think the situation far too serious for any attempt to make party capital out of it," Lloyd George said. "With 3,000,000 persons unemployed and with no clear signs of recovery I hope the government will reconsider its present policy."

The motion of censure was defeated by a vote of 462 to 55 after Prime Minister MacDonald defended the government's program and said that "means test" would be reconsidered by parliament next month.

COURT BACKS UP PAPEN'S SEIZURE OF PRUSSIAN RULE

Decision Is Confusing; Both Claim Victory.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—The Supreme court at Leipzig today handed down an intricate and confusing decision on the dismissal last July of the Prussian government by federal authorities. It was interpreted by Chancellor Franz von Papen as complete vindication of his action, by Adolf Hitler's Socialists as a defeat for the chancellor, and by most other political factions as dealing with both sides equally.

The government's action in replacing the Prussian cabinet with a federal commissioner because the Prussian officials had failed to curb political disorders was sustained by the court as a proper emergency measure by President Paul von Hindenburg.

Cannot Fire Cabinet, Ruling.

On the other hand, the court ruled that it is not permissible for federal authorities to assume the state's executive power permanently. Nor was it legal, the opinion added, for Prussia's premier, Otto Braun, and Karl Severing, its minister of interior, to be removed from their posts. Such action constitutes a violation of the state's rights, the court affirmed.

"The constitutionally appointed state government must remain as the organ of the state," the opinion declared on this point.

As soon as he received word of the court's decision Premier Braun called a cabinet meeting for tomorrow, while National Socialists, who control the diet, made ready to speed the election of a new premier.

It was generally agreed, however, that the situation created by the Supreme court's decision is intolerable as it, in effect, makes Berlin the seat of three governments in Prussia—that of the reich, one headed by the federal commissioner, who is Chancellor von Papen, and the other the regularly chosen government headed by Premier Braun.

Meanwhile twenty-one political parties have received permission from the electoral board to participate in the reichstag elections on Sunday, Nov. 6. An application by the newly created Kaiser party to put up candidates was approved.

Ex-Kaiser's Son Opposes Change.

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Prince August Wilhelm, son of the former kaiser and a member of Adolf Hitler's National Socialist party, tonight declared himself opposed to attempts to alter Germany's present form of government.

"The present situation does not admit a change in the existing form of the state," he told a Hitler meeting at the Sportspalast.

The prince made the remark in the course of an attack upon the Steel Helmet War Veterans' association, which he accused of dropping its nonpartisan attitude and "reviving memories of old times." He admitted that his imperial father "occasionally had hearkened to bad advisers" and expressed regret that "men of his social status are restarting class war."

They wanted him back with them, August Wilhelm continued, but he preferred to stand by his present friends.

TWO GIRL CLERKS HELD UP.

TRIO INDICTED ON CHARGE OF USING FUNDS OF BANKS

C. R. Webster Accused of $178,600 Shortage.

Clarence R. Webster, a vice president of the Standard National bank and of the Peoples National Bank and Trust company, was charged with misappropriation of $178,600 of funds of the two banks in indictments returned yesterday before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward. Both banks, located in the stockyards district, were closed last June. Each of the total five counts in the two indictments charging misappropriation of funds and making false entries carries a maximum punishment of 5 years in prison and a fine of $5,000.

Two other bank employés were named in federal indictments yesterday. One was against William T. Nennemen, assistant vice president of the Peoples National Bank and Trust company, who is said to have operated separately from Webster, his superior. Nennemen was charged with misapplication of $5,372 in bank funds and making false entries.

Carlo Pizzorno, foreign exchange teller in the Alliance National bank, 1604 West Chicago avenue, which was closed last June, was indicted on a charge of taking $939 from the bank and covering the shortage by falsifying records.

Webster, according to Assistant United States Attorney Owen A. West, dominated the policies of the two banks and was charged with the duties of buying bonds for investment purposes and purchasing stocks on customer order. The money taken by Webster, the prosecutor said, was used for speculation in the stock market and he was trapped when bank examiners visited the two banks in October, 1931.

The method of manipulating the banks' funds used by Webster was illustrated by Prosecutor West as follows: Webster would draw a cashier's check on the Peoples bank in payment for a block of stock, West said, and would cover by placing cash items, initialed by himself, along with the stock certificates in the bank's cash fund. Confronted by a total of $70,600 in cash items on June 15, 1931, Webster drew a cashier's check on the Standard bank for $71,287, the prosecutor said, and explained the check by saying that he had purchased bonds for the Standard bank. These, he told the Standard cashier, according to West, would be kept at the Peoples vaults.

Loss Explained, Says Prosecutor.

With the loss of $70,000 explained, Webster again started to speculate and on Oct. 13, 1931, was faced with a second group of unexplained cash items of approximately $100,000, the prosecutor pointed out.

He again withdrew the cash items and certificates, according to the government, drew a second check on the Standard bank for $55,000, and covered the balance with accommodation notes signed by friends. The check was explained to the Standard officials as having been used for the purchase of demand loans, the government charged.

Webster was trapped, Prosecutor West said, when bank examiners found the check drawn for the alleged purchase of bonds for the Standard bank. Asked where the bonds were, Webster told them in the vaults of the Peoples bank, and when they were not found there he said that he had taken them to a brokerage company. The brokerage company denied having the bonds and Webster announced that he had appropriated them, the government said. Further investigation revealed the total loss of bank funds.

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—A roaring brush fire that swept down the north side of Hollywood hills, threatening for a time to wreck the Universal Film studios at Universal City, today sent actors and actresses fleeing. It burned down four of the studio's lavish movie sets. The damage exceeds $100,000.

Merna Kennedy, Gloria Stuart, and Tom Brown were three of the stars forced to run for safety.

A dry land replica of a battleship, a structure representing the high decks of an ocean liner and seaport docks, was burned. A near panic ensued as the flames sent their sparks and fumes into the Universal zoo, setting lions, leopards, bears, and tigers leaping against cage bars in an effort to escape.

Hundreds of fire fighters were recruited hastily. They diverted the flames from that portion of the film lot. Twelve companies of Los Angeles firemen made an emergency run. They succeeded in controlling the flames.

Judge Decides It Is "Too Inflammatory."

A circular issued by officials of H. O. Stone & Co., real estate concern that failed for $14,000,000 two years ago, urging its salesmen to conduct a "big game hunt," was the subject of controversy yesterday in the federal court of Judge Charles E. Woodward. The circular was identified by Arthur William Brown, former service manager of the Stone company, who was called as a government witness in the trial of Henry F. Norcott, president of the company, and eight associates on charges of using the mails to defraud.

The circular, an ornate affair, was sent out in 1929 to Stone salesmen and announced that prizes would be given for the most active salesman.

And Including Skunks.

"Yes, sir," the circular announced. "Your opportunity has come to hit the trail for big game. There will be lions, tigers, elephants, bears, and skunks." The sale of a $50 bond would credit a salesman with killing a skunk, the circular pointed out, while a $5,000 sale equaled an elephant, a $4,000 sale was equivalent to a lion, $3,000 a tiger, $2,000 a bear, and $1,000 a giraffe.

"The more traps you set the more game you'll get," the salesmen were told. After examining the circular, Judge Woodward ruled that it was "highly inflammatory" and not to be given to the jury.

William Cooperschmidt, 75 years old, of Winona, Minn., a retired postal clerk, was called by the government and told in a shaky voice of losing $9,000 in the company crash. Glancing frequently at a memorandum book, which he consulted by peering over his glasses, Cooperschmidt said he first dealt with the Stone company in 1925.

Several years later, the witness said, he had $3,000 in real estate bonds. He bought a $3,500 Stone debenture bond in 1929, paid $1,500 cash, and traded $2,000 of his real estate bonds for the balance. One of the $500 debentures came due in 1930, the witness said, and he collected it despite offers of Stone officials to trade him stock in the company or other real estate bonds.

During the morning session Basil Barron, a certified public accountant, told of signing an audit which gave the financial condition of the Stone company in 1929, without consulting the company books. He was hired, Barron said, by W. Scott Carroll, controller. He told Carroll, the witness said, that he had no auditing organization, and Carroll told him that H. O. Stone & Co. would furnish all the data.

The government charges that Barron was called in and signed the audit, after Stone officials had rejected an audit made by Arthur Anderson & Co., which showed a deficit of $300,000 for the year. The Barron audit showed a profit for Stone & Co. of $500,000, the government contends.

The trial was resumed yesterday after a two weeks' recess because of an injury to Attorney Fletcher Dobyns, representing Marshall W. George, secretary of the Stone company. Attorney Elwood G. Godman appeared for George and asked that his client be given a severance because he was unable to digest the 1,550 pages of testimony already heard. Judge Woodward denied the motion and ordered the trial to proceed.

JOBLESS TO ASK FOR PERMIT TO PARADE DOWNTOWN MONDAY

Permission to hold a parade of the unemployed through downtown streets on Monday will be requested of the city council this morning. At the same time Karl Lochner, secretary of the committee advocating the so-called "hunger march," will present demands for a reform in the administration of relief.

These demands include: Rescinding of the relief commission's cut in grocery orders; stopping of all evictions for nonpayment of rent; class relief for both married and single men, and free gas and electricity.

Organizations represented will be the unemployed council of Cook county, the Chicago workers committee on unemployment, and the Workers League of America. Lochner said that at least 100,000 would march Monday from the north, south and west sides and converge on the city hall. There they plan to present their demands to Mayor Cermak.

Police Commissioner Allman announced that heavy police guards would be placed at all the emergency relief stations, which are now being picketed. The three organizations have planned large demonstrations in front of each station as a preliminary to the parade.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Quebec, Oct. 25.—A branch of the Banque Canadienne Nationale, leading French-Canadian banking institution in the central part of Montreal, was held up by three armed men shortly after noon today and $12,000 was stolen. The robbers locked six employes of the bank in the vault.

TESTS PROVE SUPERIORITY OF VAPEX

Unbiased tests by a prominent medical research laboratory prove that the vapor of a single drop of Vapex kills dense colonies of germs present in head-colds. In exactly similar tests, other inhalants (often offered as substitutes for Vapex) were shown to be greatly inferior in germ-killing power.

Many cheaper imitations of Vapex are said to be "just as good." But Science proves they are not. Vapex has a remarkable germ-killing power. This is the extra value that Vapex brings you at very little extra cost.

THESE photographs of tests on germs always present in the nose during a head-cold, tell you more plainly than words that cheap imitations of Vapex are not "just as good"!

They prove that Vapex kills the bacteria . . . while most other inhalants are almost useless as germicides.

You'll find that Vapex is also the pleasantest way to relieve the distress of head-colds. Breathing the soothing vapor is as refreshing as breathing mountain air. And all you need do is sprinkle it on your handkerchief in the daytime and at each end of your pillow in the night-time to have twenty-four-hour relief. Always insist on V-A-P-E-X at your druggist's.

Digestion out of order?—

advises the famous DR. JANUSCHKE, of Vienna

"Acid stomach," indigestion, etc.—these are generally symptoms of an unclean condition inside you! Fresh yeast cleans intestines—regulates digestion in a normal way, doctors explain.

YOU know the symptoms. "Sourness." Gas. That "stuffed" feeling after meals.

You know these are signs of a digestion that's seriously out of order. And you know it's not just the food you eat that is wrong.

To get rid of indigestion—heartburn—that "bad taste" in the morning—you must get rid of their cause.

And in most cases this cause is simply that commonplace evil . . . failure of the body to eliminate its waste!

To find out what doctors recommend in such cases we went to the celebrated Dr. Hans Januschke, of Vienna. Dr. Januschke is the well-known author of "The Treatment of Constipation." He said—

"Cathartics and laxative drugs . . . are not successful in correcting constipation—they almost always produce an irritation which disturbs the whole digestive process."

What Dr. Januschke recommends

"Eating fresh yeast," he explained, "corrects constipation in a natural way by . . . softening the food residues and strengthening the fatigued intestinal muscles.

"For stubborn digestive troubles," he added, "fresh yeast is my first thought."

If you want a better digestion—a trouble-free system—health and energy to spare—take the advice of noted medical experts.

Eat it just plain, or dissolved in a third of a glass of water—before meals, or between meals and when you go to bed.

Then note, after a few weeks, how much better you feel.

Your tongue should be cleaner, your breath sweeter, your complexion clearer. You should tire less quickly . . . have fewer colds and headaches than before.

And remember—Fleischmann's Yeast is the richest known food in three vitamins essential to good digestion—vitamins B, G and the "sunshine" vitamin D.

Isn't it worth trying? Why not go to your grocer, or to a restaurant or soda fountain and get a supply of Fleischmann's fresh Yeast today?

Lorna Rea Writes of Young Author and First Play.

"First Night," by Lorna Rea. [Harpers.]

LORNA REA, author of that enormously successful novel "The Six Mrs. Greenes" and the less fortunate "Rachel Moon," gives in "First Night" another proof of her technical originality and her talent for close, clipped realism.

LORNA REA.

"First Night" is the opening night of Cecil Williams' first play. He is a young accountant who has a modicum of talent and a quite terrifying amount of ambition. Somewhere deep in him, the author tells us, is a sincere, if overanxious, belief in his own powers. Up to the last few pages, however, the reader is not only convinced that the young man is without inner fire but also that he doesn't care one way or the other about it.

His main interest in life is one Elaine Hogarth, who is the epitome of superficiality, pettiness, and stupidity. She is a fairly beautiful girl who at the age of 29 is beginning to get panicky about her matrimonial chances. She decides to marry Cecil if his play goes over and his income is consequently assured.

There is also a very personally interested aunt who observes the play with raised eyebrows, wondering just how her nice, polite ineffectual young nephew could possibly have conceived such a risque play. Critics by the bushelful sit in their ivory towers pretending to a superb and superhuman disinterestedness. The degree of disinterestedness depends upon whether the digestion is good [one of them is in a rage at his wife because she gave him indigestible crabs for dinner and because his seat in the theater is farther back than his position merits] whether marital relations are running smoothly [another critic vents his spleen on the play because his wife has peeped into his pockets] and whether the other critics seem to be unfavorably inclined still another, just elevated to the dramatic editorship on his paper, is forced into an adverse criticism of the play because his superiors in rank and experience, seem to disapprove.

Then there are the leading lady, beautiful to the extent that she has learned the art of preservation; the great lover, a black sheep in a noble family; the producer and his silly, selfish wife; another member of the nobility who fears to smile in an anguish over the wrinkles that might appear on her face; a famous playwright who suavely assures himself of his superiority; an American millionaire; a young and naive daughter of a famous author, and the Collins family, one of whom is the head servant in the producer's household. Except for the daughter of the novelist, there is not a single character in the book who is either interesting or pleasant.

The setting is in London and the action covers the period of one night. The structure in itself is admirably handled. The author shifts from one character to another, and in each case unfolds a separate drama. The anticipated structural monotony is averted by alternate use of the first and third person and by a satisfying mastery of structural emphasis, revealed in the treatment of themes, characters, and scenes, and in the varying rhythms of chapter lengths.

Where the monotony does occur—and it would have been much better had it occurred in the structure—is in the characters. Most of them are vapid and affected people. No matter how brilliantly the author writes of them they are in the last analysis, even in fictional form, not worth reading about. And here again is the main artistic inadequacy of uninspired realism.

Lorna Rea's style is careful, restrained, beautifully and effectively disciplined, but style—and in this particular case her approach is implicit in her style—must go either below or beyond the subject matter. But in this book it is so toned down, so perfectly representational that it becomes pure statement, without the artistic value of understatement or overstatement. Such is the limitation of realism that cannot or will not transcend itself.

The superficial depiction of a London theater and its people, professionally and unprofessionally attached to it, is effective and ironical. The value of the book lies in the structure and the calm, terse, somewhat cynical understanding of isolated psychological states, their origins and their manifestations. M. D.

It has had the impact of a classic. It is rich with the sardonic truth of life itself. It is a book to linger long in the memories of its readers. $2.50

MRS. CHARLES R. WALGREEN JR.

MRS. MALCOLM McADOO [LEFT] AND MISS MARJORIE HORTON.

Formal Clothes Mark St. Luke's Fashion Show

Charming Models Wear Lovely Outfits.

BY JUDITH CASS.

"I Love a Parade" was the title of the music the orchestra played just before yesterday afternoon's fashion showing for the benefit of St. Luke's hospital in the ballroom of the Stevens hotel and it seemed a particularly appropriate thing to have played just then, for show me the woman [or man] who doesn't love a parade, especially when it is such a parade of fashion and youth and beauty as was on display at St. Luke's sixth annual fashion show.

The pick of the season's debutantes and the loveliest of the older girls and young marrieds were in the show, along with several of the older women who are noted for their good looks. The afternoon audience was a feminine one—and such a fashionable and swanky one as it was! The evening one was about half and half and it, too, was composed of society's smartest.

Although it is too soon to know the exact proceeds, Mrs. John W. Gary, chairman of the woman's board of the hospital which staged the affair, and several of her committee estimated that upwards of $20,000 and perhaps as much as $30,000 had been made. One year, it was before the slump of course, $40,000 was realized for the hospital by the show. The merchants who display their merchandise pay for that privilege and the hundreds who see the display pay for their tickets, so the board makes money on both sides of the footlights, which is unusual in benefit or professional performances.

Evening Styles Predominate.

This year's showing was particularly effective, due perhaps to the predominance of evening fashions in the parade. Some daytime ensembles were exhibited and a few negligees and tea gowns—pajamas are "out," if one may judge by yesterday's show, for not one pair were shown—but most of the costumes were for evening wear. The mannequins, as pretty and walking with as much grace and poise as any professionals, came so fast it was almost impossible to take notes on their costumes, but here are brief descriptions of some of those that especially caught this reportorial fancy:

Seven year old Jean and two and a half year old Louise Unander-Scharin in powder blue coats and hats. White fur trimmed their cunning outfits and they wore white gloves and shoes and socks.

Miss Edith Behr, one of the prettiest of last year's debs, wore an evening ensemble of a black velvet gown with an ermine bodice—very low in back and high in front as are all the evening gowns this season—and a short ermine cape and muff, each sporting a floppy black velvet bow.

Nancy Traylor In Ball Gown.

Miss Nancy Traylor, a bud of this year, with a wistful, blonde beauty that is most appealing, was the personification of youth in a starched silver tissue ball gown in pale lemon yellow. Roses nestled under the outstanding wisps of sleeves at the shoulders and there was a faint suggestion of a bustle at the back. So many of the gowns shown yesterday had little bustles and some of the coats, too.

Miss Mary Reed, piquant and blonde, with rosy cheeks that make her look even younger than she is—she is a debutante, so she probably is seventeen—in a smart gray and brown tweed plaid coat with a hat to match and leading a Scotty dog.

Mrs. M. Scott Bromwell, unbelievably lovely in a moyenage silhouette

Good Morning!

Is there a radio, big or little, in your home? Then hop over to the Chicago and see what the people who make all the funny noises look like.

In between and all around its introduction of the w. k. entertainers listed above, "The Big Broadcast" tells a little love story. Its principal characters are Bing Crosby as a popular and irresponsible crooner beloved generally by all women and specifically by the Misses Leila Hyams and Sharon Lynne, the two ladies mentioned, and Stuart Erwin as a gentle, wealthy Texan who buys a radio station and a national hookup in order that Bing and Leila may—but never mind . . . !

It's not such a very smart little story, but it proves that young Mr. Crosby can act when he wants to. He has an easy manner, a nice smile and he and Vallee are not unlike in approach.

Stuart Erwin is lovable, pathetic and comical as is his wont. Misses Hyams and Lynne perform ably. An office girl depicted by that lively brunette, Gracie Allen, will hand you several laughs. Her unlimited flow of conversation reveals that she has brothers on the football teams of both San Quentin and Sing Sing and a father who roots for them in a straitjacket. She is also the proud possessor of another relative who manufactures nickels, dimes and one, five, and ten dollar bills.

Aside from broadcasting numbers rendered by famous radio folk, this picture's best bet is in droll bits here and there, cunningly photographed. One example is a black cat that miaows in time with the ticking of a clock and vanishes through the crack under a door when danger threatens.

The picture's not remarkable for its brevity, but, at that, I didn't catch anybody yawning.

Miss Phyllis Pratt of New York Is Engaged to Paul H. Nitze

Daughter of Congresswoman to Become Bride of Son of Prominent Chicago Family.

BY JUDITH CASS.

SUCH an interesting engagement announcement as came to our desk last evening! That of Miss Phyllis Pratt, daughter of Mrs. Ruth Sears Baker Pratt of New York, to Paul H. Nitze, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Nitze of Chicago. The lucky young man has been living in New York since his graduation from Harvard in 1928, so it doesn't mean that Chicago is to gain an attractive young matron, but since his parents and his sister, Mrs. Walter Paepcke, live here, Chicago will have frequent opportunities to meet and to see the young lady after she becomes Mrs. Nitze. And, of course, there always is the chance that he will return to Chicago to live.

Mrs. Pratt, as every one knows undoubtedly, was the first congresswoman from New York state, and Phyllis is the youngest of her three daughters. Mrs. Pratt has five children.

Miss Pratt attended the fashionable Foxcroft school in Middleburg, Va. Before going to Harvard young Mr. Nitze prepared at Hotchkiss. His father is at the head of the romance language department at the University of Chicago and the Nitzes are prominent in university and social circles. Mrs. Nitze was elected president of the Friday club last spring.

Mrs. Paepcke is noted as one of the most beautiful young matrons in the city and one of the most talented artistically. She has designed many of the settings and costumes for the Junior league Children's theater productions. The Pratt-Nitze wedding is scheduled to take place in December.

Another interesting engagement today: Mr. and Mrs. H. Stillson Hart of Barrington are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth, to F. Donald Bateman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd L. Bateman, also of Barrington. Miss Hart attended Miss Porter's school at Farmington. She did not make a debut as did her sisters, Mrs. Harold B. Smith (Polly Hart) and Mrs. Dennis L. Harmon (Miriam Hart), as the gayer social activities do not interest her. Mr. Bateman is a graduate of Brown university. No date has been set for the wedding.

Dance of Men Without Wives

The Men Without Wives club, which started out so casually last season, is not languishing into the disorganization which frequently befalls such informal groups, but is flourishing again this year and planning to begin another gay winter with a dance on Nov. 5. The original roster of a dozen charter members has remained intact since last season, since not one of the young men has yet been lured into the ranks of the benedicts.

The club originated last fall when these young men used to meet at the Harvard-Yale-Princeton club on Saturday afternoons to listen to broadcasts of football games. Out of it grew the plan to entertain occasionally for the ladies and several parties were given with members of last year's

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Mrs. Hoover had a charming tea this afternoon in the White House with the wife of the chief justice, Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, and the wives of the associate justices of the Supreme court of the United States as her guests. They were entertained in the family living room, which is the wide corridor on the second floor, which is fitted up into a cozy place in the east end of which Mrs. Hoover has her desk, canary bird, and such personal things.

The secretary of commerce and Mrs. Roy D. Chapin returned to Washington today from their home in Detroit and are established at 1627 New Hampshire avenue, which they have leased for a year.

The secretary of labor and Mrs. Doak left today for Cumberland, Md., and will go from there into New England before returning. Secretary and Mrs. Doak were entertained at dinner last night at the Willard by Mr. and Mrs. William L. Hutchinson of Indianapolis.

Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, wife of the associate justice, was the guest of honor at luncheon today of Mrs. George Oakley Totten Jr.

CAN YOU SOLVE IT?
By H. A. Ripley

Copyrighted, 1932, by News Syndicate Co., Inc.

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

O'MALLEY IN CHARGE.

Officer O'Malley, in charge until Inspector Kelley's arrival, stood up, dusted his knees and remarked, "Broke her watch and smashed the crystal when she fell all right. It gives us the time of death—7:15."

Fordney turned the body over, raised an eyelid and said, "Poisoned."

"Say, where were you at 7:15?" demanded O'Malley of Tita, Zara's maid.

"Yes, sir."

"May I see the medicine?" inquired Fordney.

Reluctantly she handed him the bottle. He noticed it contained a sticky substance and without a word slipped it into his pocket.

"I can't prove it! I left by the side entrance and saw no one."

"O, yeah? Well, when Inspector Kelley drags you down to headquarters——"

"I'm afraid he can't do that on the evidence you have so far, officer," interrupted Fordney. "She lived at least twenty minutes after taking the poison."

"Hmmm. Is this her medicine spoon, Tita?" demanded O'Malley.

"Yes."

"Look—it's clean, professor! What did I tell——"

"You're jumping to conclusions, O'Malley," again interrupted the professor.

WHERE WAS THE OFFICER WRONG?

Officials of Fair Disclose Plans for Horticulture Group

Ground will be broken this week for the Horticultural building of the Century of Progress, a J shaped structure with an area of 91,000 square feet. The horticultural section will be located on Northerly island between Enchanted island and Hollywood, and will occupy an area of 223,000 square feet.

Adjoining the Horticultural building will be an outdoor exhibit laid out into 50 gardens of different types, ranging in size from 20 by 30 feet to 40 by 100 feet. One section of gardens will be devoted to water gardens, rock gardens, perennial gardens, green gardens, with added water effects of cascades, waterfalls, and pools. Beginning with the opening of the Fair on June 1, 1933, there will be a series of flower shows bringing together in competition the leading flower growers of the world, Fair officials said.

A Job a Day

Every little improvement we make in our home right now helps us—and the other fellow, too.

A bathroom is only as modern as its shower! Not all of us may be able to afford a shower compartment, inclosed perhaps in glass with a marble floor, but we can have shower attachments to our tub. This, too, without any remodeling, breaking of walls or fuss of any kind. Shower fixtures there are which may be attached to or replace the present faucet, depending on the kind of bath faucet one has. Automatic diverters on shower fixtures operating by water pressure and gravity are excellent preventives against the "unexpected shower."

The Murder of Caroline Bundy

By ALICE CAMPBELL.

SYNOPSIS.

Neil Starkey, American biographer, is engaged by Caroline Bundy to compile the life and letters of her late father, a famous English biologist. Miss Bundy is in poor health and acting peculiarly. She had hired a photographer, named Tilbury, as bailiff, and he and his wife, an ill-bred pair, hold a strange influence over her. Natasha Andreyev, Caroline's half Russian niece, acts as her aunt's secretary. She detests the Tilburys. Caroline tells Neil that her father, a man of science, was also a mystic. Caroline and the Tilburys hold nightly seances in the library. Giles Gisborne, vicar of a nearby parish, and his sister, Rachel, are friends of Neil's. Neil is attracted to Natasha, but is baffled by her odd behavior. She is giving money to a man she meets secretly. Caroline promises to visit Emily Braselton, an old friend, in Paris. Natasha drives her to London. Natasha returns a few days later and tells Neil that her aunt gave her a pearl necklace, which she sold. She receives a wire which Caroline sent from London, asking her to look for an alligator bag left in the car. The bag is not found. Caroline doesn't reach Paris. The police are notified. Her body is found in a ditch near her estate. She'd been brutally murdered. The Tilburys are left Caroline's fortune, on condition they search for the Holy Grail in the ruin of an ancient abbey on the estate, which Caroline believed to be her father's wish. Natasha is arrested. It is learned that the man she'd been meeting secretly was her wastrel brother, Michael, who has fled the country. Natasha is brought to trial.

INSTALLMENT XXXIX.

DETRIMENTAL EVIDENCE.

Mass-consciousness has its responses set on a hair-trigger. In the present instance there was small doubt that the prosecuting counsel had released a full charge of hostility against the girl, who, from first to last, had sat motionless, hands in her lap, quietly facing her accuser.

Mr. Justice Warlock, sixty, spare, glacial, with eyes like blue electric sparks—was he a fair minded man, one who could be trusted to safeguard the prisoner's interests in the face of adversity?

Since the indictment Neil had spent every hour in a feverish pursuit of evidence which eluded his grasp. Grew had proved indefatigably resourceful, no stone had been left unturned, but the net results of his labors represented little indeed—so little that even the noteworthy K. C., whose services had been retained, could hardly be expected to accomplish more than an able fencing against overwhelming odds.

One after another their tools had failed them. Serge Wassilieff, eager to help, promised meager support. He either had not known or dared not admit knowledge of Michael Andreyev's misdemeanor, hence the conclusion that Natasha had deliberately deceived him.

Mrs. Ivy Grace Woods, of 12 Magellan road, Bath, stated that early in February the prisoner, calling herself Miss Addison, engaged a room for her brother, said to be ill with a nervous breakdown.

The Kosloffs threatened an even greater disappointment. Warmly loyal as they were, their parrot-like repetitions suggested only too strongly a fiction dictated by Natasha herself.

One witness only remained, and on her their chief hopes centered. This was the waitress, Gwendolen Pitcher, difficult to ensnare and, now they had got her, a most uncertain quantity. Would she recognize the prisoner? After long and doubtful study of Natasha's photograph she had refused to commit herself, and though her indecision might vanish when she was confronted with the living girl, it was just as likely she would say No as Yes. Yet if she let them down, what was left?

Neil ran his eye along the witness benches to the insignificant couple now staring with strained intentness at the judge. There sat the two beings with the real, indisputable motive for removing Caroline Bundy—Alfred and Connie Tilbury, inheritors of virtually all the dead woman possessed, schemers in the opinion of many, yet with not one iota of legal proof against them.

All these past weeks he had had them shadowed by a private detective, and what had he learned? Only such facts as might have been guessed by the most unimaginative observer, the worst being the verdict that they were drifters, having moved from one town to another for the space of twelve years. A large number of decent folk had been found who could and did vouch for their honest character. In Chester a chemist with whom they had shared lodgings spoke highly of their affable qualities, their mutual affection, and of Alfred's serious, inquiring turn of mind. On several occasions they were reputed to have been on fairly close terms with elderly women of means, and these periods undoubtedly coincided with unwonted prosperity; but as these women were now dead—in inconspicuous circumstances—there was no way of determining what, if anything, the friendships had gained them.

Since their rise to fortune they had conducted themselves in a modest, exemplary fashion, holding frequent consultations with the vicar on matters ranging from the impressive stone ordered for Miss Bundy's grave to the proper method of carrying out their benefactress' wishes.

Meanwhile the excavation, well on its way, was the talk of the countryside, and scarcely a day passed that some antiquarian did not come to prowl about the ancient crypt and propound theories as to the probable location of the tunnel, which as yet was shrouded in mystery. One could not pick up a Sunday paper which did not contain either views on the work or some reference to the Glastonbury legend.

Neil had a fleeting notion that the public, like a vast pack of hounds, had been drawn off pell-mell on a false scent, while directly under their eyes the real quarry merged into the landscape. Was this so?

He came to with a start to find Inspector Mayo of Scotland Yard detailing his interview with the prisoner, following this detrimental evidence by a description of Miss Bundy's car as seen in the Glastonbury garage. The interior had shown an entire absence of bloodstains, and no fresh scratches or abrasions. Reassuring—but was it conclusive?

Crabbe, Mrs. Hickson, and Pritchard, upper housemaid, spoke loyally of Natasha, denied quarrels between her and her aunt, and declared her to be just, efficient and, though sometimes moody, never disagreeable. Crabbe admitted the young lady's frequent excursions at night, though where she had gone he could not say. He knew she had full permission to use the car when she liked, and had never heard her questioned on the subject.

All three servants had noticed the prisoner's depression during the weeks preceding the crime. Pritchard averred that from the beginning of the year Miss Andreyev had become "very saving" and had once remarked that from now on she was not likely to want many new clothes. For her part, Pritchard had always found Miss Andreyev kind and considerate. When she, Pritchard, was suffering from an infected knee, the young lady had supplied her with hot fomentations all through the night. She had certainly tried hard to persuade her aunt to look after herself—not an easy task, either, for Miss Bundy had been very self-willed of late.

Generally speaking, a point scored, but it was speedily neutralized by what came next.

Mrs. Ivy Grace Woods, of 12 Magellan road, Bath, stated that early in February the prisoner, calling herself Miss Addison, engaged a room for her brother, said to be ill with a nervous breakdown. She and her daughter had instantly taken to him, even though his habits were distressingly erratic. He had no sense of time, stayed up all night and lay in bed by day if it pleased him, and now and then drank far too much.

Miss Addison visited him several times a week. On one occasion she turned up long after midnight, rushed up to her brother's room and flung open the door in a distraught manner. Mrs. Woods caught a storm of what sounded to her like reproaches, though as it was in a foreign language she could not be sure what sort of things were being said.

Counsel: What was the date of this occurrence? Witness: I can't say exactly, but it was the last week in February—round about the twenty-sixth or seventh, I think.

Counsel: After this did you observe any alteration in either? Witness: Yes; Mr. Addison seemed very jumpy but sobered, if you understand my meaning. His sister looked worried to death.

On March 18, late in the afternoon, the accused drove up, and her brother went out to speak to her. Both seemed eager and secretive.

On the afternoon of the 20th Addison received a telegram which threw him into intense excitement. Informing his landlady that he would be gone for several days, he quitted the house at 7 o'clock, carrying a suitcase.

The week-end passed without news, but on Monday evening the two Addisons drove up together, both looking exhausted, and the brother in a really shocking state—blue under the eyes, every inch of him shaking as with ague. The young lady explained that he had caught a severe chill and must stay in bed. He did so all next day, scarcely touching food and starting at the slightest sound. In the evening, about nine, her lodger was summoned to the telephone and held an agitated conversation with his sister.

A quarter of an hour after this, Addison, fully dressed and carrying his suitcase, presented himself to the witness and asked for his account. With that and a hurried word about sending back for his things, he was out of the house before the bewildered woman could ask a single question.

Counsel: Did you make no inquiries? Witness: How could I when I'd never known the sister's address? Besides, though I was pretty sure something queer was going on, it wasn't till the police called that I guessed what really was wrong.

L. E.: I THINK YOU MUST BE generally undernourished and need a complete building up. Lots of outdoor air, long sleeping hours, and good nourishing food will take those lines out from under your eyes.

N. S.: LOTS OF SOAP AND water and a scrubbing brush is the treatment for removing blackheads on the upper part of the back. Finish by getting under the shower and giving yourself a cold water rinse.

Movie to Tell Story of Film Stunt Stars

'Lucky Devils' Gives Credit to Thrill Makers.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—For the first time in movie history, so far as is known, a studio is going to give screen credit to its stunt men—those $50 and $100 a day fellows who jump out of planes, ride horses down cliffs, get themselves blown off sinking ships, and put on skirts to pose as lady lion tamers.

The credit will be given in Radio-RKO's "Lucky Devils," whose story embraces a lot of the real thrills the stunt men put into past film successes.

The first to be signed is Bob Rose, veteran death flirter, who was Ruth Roland's double for years in the old days when Ruth had some especially hazardous feat handed her for her silent serial thrillers of 15 years back. Rose is the one out of four stunt men who came back alive from running the rapids in the Abercrombie river for "Trail of Ninety-eight."

In "The Last Frontier" he's the daredevil who jumped in front of the stampeding buffalo herd. He may never have seen his name on the screen before, but there were a couple of times when St. Peter had it written down in his list and then had to erase it when Rose's crackup wasn't fatal.

Dr. James Wingate, former director of the movie division of the New York state department of education, took up his new duties here today as "administrator of the motion picture code." In other words, he's chief Hollywood whip snapper over the studios on matters of censorship losses for the Hays office.

When Kenneth MacGowan took a friend with him to see a film show he chose Julian Huxley, the scientist, who solves problems of the universe. MacGowan took him to see "Bill of Divorcement."

Zasu Pitts is reported much improved after being stricken at Universal City and rushed to a hospital for observation for possible operation for an intestinal ailment. She has gone back to her home.

Richard Bennett had to get up out of a sick bed to finish his scenes in "If I Had a Million" at Paramount today, after which he went back to bed again. It's a mild case of the flu.

I didn't know this till yesterday, but sometimes they paint the leaves of trees a bright, artificial green for movie scenes to intensify their photographic quality.

Good and Plenty in a Side Dish

"10-Minute" Cranberry Sauce
(Stewed Cranberries)

Boil 2 cups of water and 1½ to 2 cups of sugar together 5 minutes, then add 4 cups Eatmor Cranberries. Boil without stirring (5 minutes is usually sufficient) until all the skins pop open. Remove from fire when the popping stops, and allow the sauce to remain in vessel undisturbed until cool.

We will gladly mail to you free our new Eatmor Cranberry recipe book.

Kinky Wave Results from Too Much Heating in Permanent

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"How can I get the wide, loose wave that other girls seem to get with a permanent? My hair always looks woolly after a permanent.—Em."

Some one has wisely remarked that the most important thing about a permanent is the operator. Here's where you have to do a little scouting around. But, if one's friend managed to get the satisfactory wide, loose curl, why not follow their directions to an operator who understands the condition and texture of hair and knows how to wind it properly?

True, some types of hair come forth more fuzzy than others. But it is up to operators' knowledge of hair to regulate the heat waves so that fuzzy hair will not result. It is better to tell an operator that you'll gamble on the duration of the wave and you'll take less heat in the waving process.

It is the excess heat, as a rule, that makes the hair woolly. It will have to be doused in oil frequently to get that straw harshness out of it once the deed is done with too much heat. But if your experience is that your hair is too tightly and too harshly waved, the only advice I can offer is to choose a better operator next time and insist upon less heat, even if the wave will not last so long.

And speaking of permanents, a hairdresser tells me some women will not admit that preparations have been used on their hair. I don't know why women should feel sensitive about revealing this secret. It's no disgrace. And honesty with the hairdresser is imperative to the success of the wave.

If one has been in the habit of using rinses or bleaches, or even tonics and oil packs it is wise to forego the practice for a couple of weeks before the permanent. Any preparation is apt to affect the permanent lotion so that more heat is required.

If you are having a very first permanent insist that not too much heat be given. In this way you can find out how your hair reacts.

Avoid Giving Your Photo to a Boy Friend

BY DORIS BLAKE.

With Christmas approaching and girls probably lining themselves up at photographic studios, a word of warning about "promiscuous" handings out of said photographs to boys may not be amiss.

It amazes me how often this photograph gift from girl to boy becomes an issue later on. Girls put infinitely more store by this photograph of theirs than boys do. Often I wonder what the boy does with the picture after it has been pressed upon him by the girl. Often she cannot recover it on demand when a quarrel arises. He may tear it up. Or he hides it and doesn't know where he put it.

It isn't contempt for the gift as often as it is embarrassment over it that causes the boy to destroy or hide the girl evidence around his home. Until he has himself bound with the lifelong promise the average young man likes to avoid family querying, which a photograph of a girl inspires.

It's all right to give over a photograph of oneself to the young man whose one and only girl you know yourself to be. It isn't of this sort of photograph giving we speak. But because girls are inclined to attach a great deal of sentiment to the acceptance of their photograph we hold that they should wait until they are sure there is the sentiment on the other side to warrant the trust.

Looks 10 Years Younger Brushes Away Gray Hair

Now you can really look years younger. Simply brush away those unsightly streaks or patches of gray. It is so easy to do—and at home—with Brownatone. Over 20 years of success recommend this proved method. With an ordinary small brush you just tint your hair back to its natural shade—whether blonde, brown or black. Guaranteed harmless. Active coloring agent is purely vegetable. Does not coat the surface. Actually penetrates the hair. Defies detection. No tell-tale, flat "dyed" look. Cannot affect waving of hair.

No need to guess. First cut a lock of hair from your head and apply a little of this famous tint. If Brownatone does not give your gray, streaked, dull, or faded hair its natural color, youth and sheen, your money back. Only 50c.

New York Girl Will Be a December Bride.

debutante set as guests. These same girls are to be asked to this year's parties and the gentlemen hosts are not planning as yet to invite this year's debutantes.

The dance on Nov. 5 is to be held at the H-Y-P club, where the M. W. Ws. have been meeting again this fall for luncheon and listening-in on the football games.

The club has no officers nor official meetings. Stewart Boal will be missing from this winter's activities, as he has been transferred to Boston by his firm, but he is still considered a member.

After pro-ing and con-ing for weeks, like most of the parents of this season's debutantes, the Louis K. Boysens have decided to give their attractive young daughter, Bobette, a formal debut, but the affair will be small and simple. It is to be a dinner dance on Thursday, Dec. 22. Miss Boysen will return from Vassar, where she is a freshman, on Dec. 16, to spend the holidays with her family.

When Mrs. Mary Alexander Brumback and John Pierrepont Porter were married yesterday afternoon in Kansas City the bride wore a lovely afternoon ensemble of brown lace and velvet with a tiny hat in shades of brown and carried yellow orchids.

The service was read by the Rev. Charles Gray in the living room of the residence of the bride's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Christy Sharon, at 5:30 o'clock in the presence of the immediate families.

Mr. Sharon gave the bride in marriage and she was attended by her sister, Mrs. John Milton Walker, who wore a black velvet gown and a small black hat and a corsage of gardenias.

Ralph N. Isham of Chicago acted as best man for the bridegroom, whose mother and sister, Mrs. Henry Homes Porter and Miss Mary Porter, received with Mr. and Mrs. Sharon and the bridal couple at the small reception which followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Porter left after the ceremony to fly to California and will be at home in Chicago after Jan. 1.

Lecture at Arts Club

Advance reservations indicate that a great many of the Arts club members will be on hand this morning to hear Laura C. Boulton's illustrated lecture on "Africa, the Cradle of Art." The lecture is to be accompanied by some of Mrs. Boulton's records of African music which have never been played before for a public audience. The lecture will be given at 11:30 o'clock and will be followed by numerous luncheon parties.

The Chicago Council of Foreign Relations is looking forward to the luncheon it is to hold on Friday at the Palmer house as one of its most important meetings of the season. The speaker is to be Dr. Julius Curtius, former German minister of foreign affairs, who is making a brief visit to the United States. His topic, "Germany and Disarmament," is one in which the fashionable intellectuals who attend the council's meetings are much interested.

Graham Aldis, president of the council, will preside and at the speakers' table will be Dr. and Mrs. Curtius and their son, Mrs. Aldis, Dr. Hugo Simon, the German consul general, and Mrs. Simon; Dr. and Mrs. Otto L. Schmidt, Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Dawes, Mrs. Wilhelm L. Baum, Mr. and Mrs. Silas H. Strawn, Thomas E. Donnelley, Mr. and Mrs. Ayres Boal, Frank McNair, Mr. and Mrs. Roy C. Osgood, and Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Affleck.

Among those who have made reservations are Mrs. John Paul Welling, Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson, Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr., Russell Tyson, Mrs. Henry C. Bartholomay, Mrs. Walter Heller, Mrs. W. Calhoun Smith, Stephen Y. Hord, William B. Hale, Stuart H. Otis, Mrs. Frank H. Montgomery, and Mrs. Floyd Evans.

Architects Design Gowns.

What are we to see at the Red, White and Blue ball on Armistice night? That has been the question of all who intend going to the party since it was announced that an unusual feature never before given in this country would be part of the entertainment, and, now that the secret is out, it would seem that it still would be a pertinent question, for the feature will be a fashion parade of gowns designed by prominent Chicago architects.

The gowns will display each architect's interpretation of the motifs used in the architecture of the Century of Progress translated into the world of dress design and it is the belief and the hope of the persons arranging the feature that this fashion show will be a forerunner of what the styles of 1933 will be. They think that our Century of Progress will influence the trend of fashion everywhere in the world where Parisian fashion mandates rule, and they hope that the designs will extend even to fabrics.

The gowns will be exhibited by professional mannequins at the ball, which is to be given for the benefit of the Red, White and Blue club in the Hotel Sherman ballroom. Mrs. Edward R. Fifield is general chairman and some of the other women working on arrangements are Mrs. C. K. Corsant, Mrs. Warren Ripple, Mrs. William Scudder, Mrs. Thomas Gowenlock and Mrs. Lockwood Honore.

Complete Cast for Play

The complete cast for "The Secret Garden," the Junior league Children's theater play to open on Nov. 5 at the Playhouse, is as follows: Colin, Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr.; Dicken, Mrs. Stephen Harrington; Ben Weatherstaff, Mrs. Richard Gambrill Jr.; Mrs. Medlock, Mrs. Robert M. Curtis; Dr. Craven, Frances Weary; Mrs. Craven, Mrs. Norman MacLeish; Jane, a maid, Evelyn Bouscaren; Martha, a maid, Helen Bell; Station Master, Mrs. Robert McKenna.

The play will be given every Saturday morning at 11:30 o'clock during its six weeks' run. Tickets will be on sale on Saturday of this week at the box office. The prices are from 50 cents to $1.50.

Luncheon for Martha Lee.

Mrs. William E. Graham [Jane Lee] will give a luncheon today at the Saddle and Cycle club for her debutante sister, Miss Martha Lee, who is to be presented to society by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. George Lee, at a dance on Dec. 29 at the Blackstone hotel. Among the guests will be the Misses Nancy Traylor, Lydia Swift, Julia Kramer, Eleanor Litsinger, Janet Bard, Virginia Cross, Helen Marie Castle, Betty Brawley, and several other sister debutantes as well as a few of Mrs. Graham's friends.

Associate alumnæ of Northwestern university will give a tea on Friday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Edward P. Welles at 1315 Forest avenue, Evanston. A recently completed portrait of Miss Mary Ross Potter, former dean of women at Northwestern, who held that position for 26 years, will be exhibted at the tea.

The portrait, which is the work of Charles Sneed Williams, will be presented by the alumnæ to the women of Northwestern and will hang in the new Deering library until a woman's building materializes.

Miss Potter will receive with Mrs. Welles, as will Mrs. Edwin B. Fowler, president of the alumnæ. Among those who have been invited to pour are Mrs. James A. Patten, Mrs. Robert L. Scott, Mrs. Walter Dill Scott, Miss Cornelia Lunt, and Mrs. E. Crane Wilson.

Clarkes Will Return Today

Mr. and Mrs. John Vaughan Clarke III. (Helen Rend), whose marriage was solemnized on Oct. 4, are to return today from their honeymoon in Bermuda. Their new apartment at 222 East Pearson street is all furnished and ready for their occupancy.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Selz of 2130 Lincoln Park west returned on Monday from a week's stay at French Lick Springs, Ind. Mrs. Selz will depart next Tuesday for Detroit to visit her father, Frank C. K. Oldfield.

Mrs. Margaret Grover Tagmose has returned to her apartment at 244 East Pearson street after a summer in northern Michigan where she gave recitals at Charlevoix and at Roaring Brook.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Bodman of Lake Forest are entertaining at dinner tonight at the Tavern, later taking their guests to George Seaberg's recital in Kimball hall.

Cards with black cats and pumpkin decoration announce a Halloween luncheon and bridge party to be given by the Ladies of the Consuls on Tuesday, Nov. 1, at the Belden Stratford hotel.

WOMAN'S AND MISS' SLIP.

You will find this slip a great addition to your wardrobe, for no dress will look as it should unless the slip worn with it fits properly. This one is fitted to well below the hips, widening from there gracefully to the bottom. Crepe de chine and washable satin are favorite materials.

The pattern, No. 2668, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2⅝ yards of 35-inch material with 2 yards of binding.

And others.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Walter Hampden's authoritative and stirring production of "Cyrano de Bergerac" is now in performance at the Apollo theater for a week's stay, and so there is a refreshing breeze of poetic drama in the air. Swords are clashing in a dashing duel scene; there is a gallant wooing by proxy under the balcony by moonlight; the Gascony cadets are dying for king and cardinal, and chivalry of the old school makes its flamboyant gesture to the stars.

Here is a great play and a masterly interpretation of its fantastic, possibly immortal hero. Mr. Hampden's portrait of Rostand's amazing cavalier, gether and wearing a single colossal gether and wearing a single, colossal nose, has become a tradition for the playgoers of this generation during the eight years that have passed since it was first revealed. It is a ripe and commanding example of romantic biography in acting. Mr. Hampden will place Cyrano in retirement after this tour, and therefore this brief engagement may easily be Chicago's last opportunity to see a characterization that will have an honored place in the history of the American stage.

This interpretation of the role of Cyrano is possibly not the most comic or the most dashing in the play's records. For those aspects of the character it may easily be that one must turn to the Cyranos of thirty years ago—Mansfield's and Coquelin's. But veteran playgoers with high-grade memories who have followed the Cyrano cult usually agree that Mr. Hampden's study is the most touching.

His gifts and schooling as a tragic actor make his Cyrano of the last act a veritable triumph. His treatment of the death scene, with its preliminary reading of Cyrano's "gazette" of court gossip, is superb and, I think, incomparable.

Mr. Hampden's company is the same as that of last spring in its major roles.

tea gown with a peach slip and a turquoise blue robe.

Mrs. Solomon B. Smith and Mrs. Stephen Y. Hord, wearing smart wool cashmere outfits, Mrs. Smith in powder blue and Mrs. Hord in bright red, and pushing a refreshment cart. If their dresses had hems that would snap up underneath for daytime wear they would be ideal for women too busy to change from day to evening clothes, for with the jackets and little caps Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Hord were dressed for any time of day, except for the length of the skirts, and when they removed their jackets they were in evening gowns.

Mrs. McLallen Appears as Bride.

Mrs. Walter F. McLallen, as lovely as a bride from a picture book, in classic white velvet and carrying white chrysanthemums. Her attendants, Mrs. Malcolm McAdoo and Miss Marjorie Horton, wore stunning velvet gowns of a rich gray, tight to the knees and flaring below, and narrow brimmed sailor hats of the same velvet. They carried russet chrysanthemums.

Miss Jean Schweppe, looking enough like her cousin, Miss Reed, to be her sister, although Miss Schweppe's hair is dark, in a cocoa color wool dress with a luxurious mink cape and muff. Miss Schweppe also is a debutante this year.

Miss Ethel Dixon, about whose fascinating performance in the Service club revue people are still talking, in pearl gray cashmere with gray fox trimming and a saucy red hat.

Mrs. Waller Borden and Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson, "a mother and daughter gone wrong," so the announcer said, the former in red ruffled taffeta with orchids on her shoulder and the latter in black tulle and jet sequins. They "went right" by covering their unsuitable gowns with suitable wraps. Mrs. Borden with a black velvet one with an ermine collar and Mrs. Stevenson with a henna cashmere one with a mink collar.

Mrs. Linn Wears Rubies.

Mrs. Howard Linn, who showed how beautiful rubies and diamonds are on a woman, especially one so lovely as Mrs. Linn, who wore a pale green gown.

Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen Jr., chic in a beige cloth outfit trimmed with galyak, and a narrow brimmed hat with a provocative nose veil.

Lack of space necessitates our limiting this—we could run on for columns describing the varieties of velvet and fur that were shown, but we must stop. The other mannequins were Miss Isabel Gordon, Miss Jeanne Wingfield, Mrs. W. Press Hodgkins, Mrs. Clifford Rodman and her sister, Mrs. Russell Kelley, Mrs. William H. Mitchell, Mrs. Lawrence Williams, Mrs. Harry B. Clow Jr., Mrs. Alexander Carqueville, Miss Frances Weary, Mrs. William K. Meyers, Miss Julia Kramer, Mrs. Louis C. Sudler, Miss Virginia Waller, Miss Dorothy Morehead, Mrs. John B. Drake Jr., Miss Eleanor Litsinger, Miss Caryl Bloomingston, Miss Helen Marie Castle, Mrs. Ernest Byfield, Mrs. Franklin Clement.

Hospital Benefit.

The South Side Catholic Woman's club will hold a card party and fur fashion show tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the Stevens hotel. Proceeds will benefit a ward supported by the club at Misericordia hospital. Mrs. Earl R. Reynolds is president and Mrs. George J. Gibson is chairman of the card party.

Stock Orders Bright Music for Rainy Day

BY EDWARD MOORE.

There is such a thing as a composition being too good for its own good. Cesar Franck's Symphony in D minor is one of these. Mr. Stock made a leading number of it at the Chicago Symphony orchestra program yesterday afternoon, which according to official records is the thirtieth time it has been played in these concerts.

The number shows how popular it has been with audiences in general. But it is so direct in its lovely melody, so sunny in mood, so vigorous in expression, that some of the best minds in music are beginning to grow restive over it. Acting on the principle of one school of criticism, which holds that anything easily understood is by that token unworthy of respect, they are getting ready to assign it to the second class symphonies.

There is only one thing to do. It is to remove it altogether for a few seasons. In the interval some of the other listeners may remember that the second movement is one of the most charming compositions in all orchestral literature, and that Mr. Stock and his experts gave it an altogether charming performance yesterday.

In the course of the concert Mr. Stock introduced a novelty, a Symphonic Intermezzo by Florence Grandland Galajikian of Chicago. It is another in the list of five radio prize winners in a contest wherein Mr. Stock was one of the judges. The work has considerable attraction, atmospheric rather than directly melodic, tranquil in mood, well scored, and compressed into logical and definite length.

In fact the whole program was in a mood of sunshine and far removed from that of the weather outside. It began with Glazounow's "Carnaval" overture, and, after the symphony and Mrs. Galajikian's novelty, ended with Dvorak's Scherzo Capriccioso and Johann Strauss' "Emperor" waltzes. At least one vote is unreservedly cast for all of it.

The opera company at the Chicago Stadium is reorganizing as to its business side, and in the process the performance of "Il Trovatore," scheduled for Saturday night, will be postponed until Nov. 12. Beginning then, it is told by the proponents of the company that a Saturday night season will continue throughout the winter. The same cast will appear in the deferred performance of "Il Trovatore," namely, Anna Leskaya, Sonia Sharnova, John Pane-Gasser, and Martino-Rossi, and patrons who have already purchased tickets may either transfer them to that date or have their money refunded.

Charles Massinger, New York tenor, came to Kimball hall last night to give a song recital here, and in the process disclosed quite a number of the major merits of good singing. His voice is of good quality and moves easily within the altitude limit of concert songs. It has a wide range of expressive color and is under first rate control for the purpose. It also projects words clearly, particularly English words. With these qualifications he sang a group of Bach, Handel, and Beethoven, another of classic and modern Lieder, a third by Gabriel Fauré, and a fourth by American composers.

BY MARY MEADE.

How is the food budget looking these days? Rather weak, watery and down in the mouth? That seems to be the status quo with so many kitchen budgeteers that one wonders if there isn't a leak in the purse, perhaps, or a flaw in the methods of the cook.

Actually there are two ways to save money in the kitchen. One is by buying low priced foods and cooking economically, and the other is by studying the markets and knowing that we are not only paying little, but are getting the most possible for our money. All this involves some personal research on our parts, because no blanket rule can be laid which will cover marketing at all stores. For instance, do we understand why eggs are graded and what each grade is to be used for? What a 92 score butter is? Whether large prunes or small give the most meat for the money? Which potatoes are most economical for salad and which bake best?

The following notes, while necessarily incomplete, should at least act as a good sendoff: The habit of shopping around and constantly comparing prices, of estimating food prices by the pound and not by the container, of buying in season, and of choosing foods for definite purposes are what we will have to acquire for ourselves.

First, watch sales. Week-end sales and other special offers do not always reduce prices, but it has been estimated that at least two-thirds of the time they do, so a habitual sales hound will save on at least two out of every three articles she buys. Savings on "specials" may run all the way from 10 to 50 per cent. Often baskets of miscellaneous cans of foods are offered at one-half or one-third of their original price.

Next, learn not to buy so much "by eye" as by knowledge of food value and flavor. Large, brilliant red apples are more handsome to set on the sideboard, true, but they are frequently dry and lacking in flavor, besides being much more expensive. If the city in which we happen to live decides it prefers dark red cranberries instead of lighter ones, and yellow onions instead of red ones, the prices of those foods is going to soar, even though the opposite types are just as nutritious and may be made every bit as attractive in service. If brown eggs cost less in your community than white, give a cheer. They're quite as good.

Moreover, don't be bashful about adventuring with a market basket. Stores which do not offer delivery service to their customers are almost always lower in price than those which do. You will have a better notion of the season's inexpensive fruits and vegetables. You will be able to select foods more carefully than would the hurried merchant. You are bound to find foods you forgot were back in season and thereby haul yourself out of a yawning food rut.

Next, read the labels. If a certain brand of imitation maple sirup is acceptable to your family, all right. But don't be caught paying for the real sirup only to discover later that it is a cheap substitute. The pure food and drug act is safeguarding us against dangerous ingredients in canned foods, but unless we read labels we are frequently going to find ourselves paying high prices for imitations.

In buying eggs, we should know that a dealer has a right to label his eggs "fresh" only if they are fancy or grade A eggs which are not over thirty days old. Fancy eggs are the highest grade—fine for poaching and egg drinks, and are correspondingly high in price. However, grade B eggs, while not so ideal for these purposes, are quite acceptable for cooking, and when economy is important may be used in all types of service with considerable saving.

When buying canned foods, first of all know the sizes of the cans and the quantity held by each size. Frequently a No. 3 can will supply food for two meals and will save considerable expense. The average quantity in the standard sizes of cans are as follows:

Size of can.	No. of cups
8 ounce	1
No. 1	1 1-3
No. 2	2 2-3
No. 2½	3½
No. 3	4¼
No. 10	14

BY RHEA SEEGER.

You'll lavish plenty of enthusiasm over the new collections of high colored sports coats or topcoats that one shop in town is all enthused about. They are stunning things with a lot of dash and swank that seemingly only experienced topcoat designers know how to sew into every seam.

They are ideal hug-me-tight and trim affairs for football games, with belts that can be bunched effectively about your lower ribs, and outsize pockets patched over each hip and the best looking fur collars that have ever been seen around the town.

You can wrap yourself in the folds of a flaming success, a bright red diagonal tweed with a warm, mighty flattering collar of kit fox, nutria, platinum fox or cross fox, whatever pelt interests you the most. Bright green models, high blue shades and also all shades of brown and black and deep blue are available in the same low priced assortment.

Besides the delightfully modest price tag that will tempt the girl who knows her values the interesting sleeve treatments are something to cheer about. If you are decidedly against huge puffed varieties, these conservative coat sleeves will take your vote, for they are merely moderately extended over the elbow, a clever sort of a trick to please all the shoppers.

Sweaters that must have been planned for any wind swept stadium have arrived in overwhelming quotas, fuzzy warm things in both texture and color combines. You will be swamped with kinds, colors, styles, zippered and unzippered models. There are all sorts of stripes, goofy zigzags, electrical effects, diagonal, vertical and horizontal stripes, all with the one admirable desire to keep you warm and cheerful.

Some rather lumberjack affairs are smooth of surface, but a bit thicker, and they are made in a simple way with an obliging zipper streaking up the center of your chest. Others are good copies of your brother's pet turtle neck model, such as a most striking creation made of angora wool with russet and light brown colored two inch stripes over a creamy beige background.

Some Mussolini black shirt sweaters look frightfully fascisti until you see the giddy neckline. The black shirt effect is gained with a form fitting thin wool and the sporting neckline, such as it is, is made of three-color wool contrast in one piece. This attached scarf collar is tied in a double knot and the ends dangle over your chest.

Shivering, shuddering spectators that stay in place on the congealing surface of a seat of concrete have been remembered with lots of wild colored striped and plaid blankets as usual, but some efficient soul has designed the gaucho blanket body cover that ought to revolutionize the industries that exist just to keep the football rooters warm.

It is a primitive affair. A heroic sized blanket is used, either fringed and fancy or the plain variety, and a slit is cut through the exact center and the appreciative football fan nonchalantly sticks a head through the slit, wraps the remainder about his slowly freezing anatomy and settles into place in peace and almost tropical heat snuggled in the swaddling and shapeless folds. With football apparel such as this defeats can be swallowed with creditable placidity.

Sees Little Evidence That Span of Life Can Be Increased

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 25.—(AP)—There is little, if any, scientific evidence as yet that the maximum span of human life can be materially increased, declared Dr. Lewellys F. Barker, professor emeritus of medicine of Johns Hopkins university, in a lecture here tonight before the assembly of the Interstate Post-Graduate Medical Association of North America.

Although the average duration of human life has been steadily increasing during recent years [from 35 in 1880 to 55 in 1920] Dr. Barker said it is the expectation of life of children at birth and of people in the earlier decades of life that has markedly increased.

"Biostatistical studies have thrown much light upon the factors that determine the span of life for the human individual," Dr. Barker continued. "Though longevity depends partly upon inherited constitution and partly upon environment, the evidence strongly favors the view that, on the whole, factors of inheritance are of greater importance than environmental factors."

CATH: I don't know why—but my silk things just don't last as yours do.

SALLY: I wash mine after every wearing—with Lux . . . Want to know why that makes silk things stay like new longer?

"Everybody perspires, you know, and your lingerie is always absorbing perspiration acids. These tend to rot silk and discolor it. But Lux is made to float out all these perspiration acids—odors, too. So if you Lux underthings after each wearing they'll stay like new ever so much longer. Stockings wear a lot better when Luxed each night, too. It's a great economy! As you know, anything safe in water is safe in Lux."

LAWYERS FIGHT ESTATE TAXES BEFORE BOARD

Ruling to Be Sought from Attorney General.

Two attorneys, representing estates of deceased persons, contended yesterday before the board of tax appeals that the assessor had no right to demand taxes from estates of persons who died subsequent to April 1, 1931, the day as of which assessments are made for the 1931 tax rolls. George F. Nixon and Fred W. Brummel, members of the board, made no ruling on the pleas.

Attorney F. W. Swett, counsel for the estate of C. L. Butterworth, 521 Euclid avenue, Oak Park, which was assessed at $10,455, said the valuation should be stricken from the tax books, because Mr. Butterworth died on May 22. The board promised to take the case under advisement and seek an opinion on the subject from Atty. Gen. Oscar S. Carlstrom.

Attorney Walter D. Herrick appeared before the board last week and charged that trust companies were getting a special consideration from the assessor. Yesterday he advanced contentions similar to those of Attorney Swett. Attorney Herrick represents five estates. One of these is that of C. A. Schroyer, 911 Ontario street, Oak Park, whose property was assessed at $20,813.

Calls Assessment Illegal.

"Mr. Schroyer was alive on April 1, 1931," Mr. Herrick said. "Consequently there can be no legal standing for an assessment against his estate, which did not exist on that day.

"However, if the board will cut the assessment to $3,700 in accordance with the arrangement given to the trust companies and the recommendations of Mr. Fairweather, I'm sure the tax will be paid without question."

At the hearing last week Attorney Herrick told the board that George O. Fairweather, chairman of the joint commission on real estate valuation, had advised the large trust companies to file schedules on only 50 per cent of their property and to demand that a 20 per cent equalization factor be applied, instead of the standard 37 per cent factor given all other property.

"We can't recognize the Fairweather report," Mr. Brummel replied. "Besides don't you see that your offers are inconsistent? One moment you tell us the assessor has no right to value the estate and the next you offer to pay the tax if it is made low enough to suit you."

"Of course we can't," added Mr. Nixon, "we'll not decide your cases until we have the attorney general's opinion on your technical contention."

Explains Failure to File.

The board closed the day's hearing with the case of G. S. Peaslee, 917 Chicago avenue, Oak Park, who failed to file a schedule and then protested an estimate of $405, which included a 50 per cent penalty for his failure to list his holdings. Peaslee said that his assessment should be $37 and told the board that he had failed to file because of the conflicting advice given him by his friends.

"In not filing you failed to coöperate with the county assessor who has a big job on his hands trying to make a fair and equal assessment for every taxpayer," Mr. Nixon told Peaslee. "As a consequence the assessor had to do the best he could with the information available to him."

"And if you had filed a schedule," said Mr. Brummel, "you would have avoided the 50 per cent penalty, aside from saving us a lot of work around this office. We'll confirm your assessment."

Night Railroad Agent Is Slain by Robbers

PAY CREDIT PLAN FOR COUNTY IS OPPOSED BY BELL

County Attorney Hayden N. Bell yesterday gave the finance committee of the county board an opinion holding that legal difficulties would make inadvisable the adoption of the proposal of County Commissioner Peter M. Kelly to provide credit for unpaid county employes.

Commissioner Kelly proposed that county employes be given credit slips up to 50 per cent of the amount of their unpaid wages, now more than four months overdue. These slips they would give to merchants from whom they made purchases, who would be able to redeem them at the office of the county treasurer when county pay rolls are met.

These would in effect be wage assignments. County employes are prevented by law from making assignments of unearned wages, but they may assign past due salaries, Mr. Bell held. However, he pointed out other disadvantages.

"This plan would give rise to questions between assignor and assignee," his opinion said, "including forgeries and all other causes of disagreement, and would be outside of the official legal channel of handling business. The danger involved in the extra legal processes required to assure payment to transferees, in my judgment, is great enough to overcome the advantages of the plan."

Gets Year in Prison for Each $1,100 That He Stole

New York, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Basil L. Allaway, 33, former cashier at the Colony club, 564 Park avenue, today was sentenced by Judge Max S. Levine in General Sessions court to ten years in Sing Sing prison. He pleaded guilty to stealing $11,000.

HUNGRY PUPILS' FUND IS CALLED SAVER OF HOMES

Judge Bartelme Praises Feeding of Children.

Judge Mary M. Bartelme of the Juvenile court yesterday described THE TRIBUNE's Hungry School Children's fund as "one of the finest things that is being done for childhood in Chicago." She stressed the importance of continuing the fund throughout the winter.

"I feel that the Hungry School Children's fund is of the greatest importance in child care because it keeps the children in school," Judge Bartelme explained. "Truancy leads to delinquency. Delinquency leads to family disintegration.

Fund Holds Homes Together.

"The school children's lunch fund has kept many a home together. Many children are taken into our court because their parents can no longer feed and care for them. I believe that if the children are fed in school it will be of the utmost help in keeping families from getting into court.

"Children cannot sit in school all day long if they have not had food. They become nervous and worn out. They take no interest in their lessons. Presently they drop out of school. On Thursdays when truant children are brought into court we ask the principals if the children are given meals regularly at noon. We find in many cases that the truant children have not been fed at school or at home. On the other hand, we find that if truant children do get a warm meal at noon they stay in school."

Day's Gifts Acknowledged.

Three Children Die as Fire Destroys Nebraska Home

Scottsbluff, Neb., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Three children burned to death today when fire destroyed the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Meier, four miles east of here. They are Violet, five; Melvin, three, and Harold, one year old. They were alone, their parents being in a field.

FINANCES DELAY NEW BOULEVARD TRAFFIC LIGHTS

Installation of a system of progressive traffic lights in Michigan boulevard yesterday appeared to depend on the commissioners of Lincoln park. The south park board appropriated $16,407 for its share of the improvement. The city is ready to go ahead any time, according to Leslie Sorenson, traffic engineer.

"The Lincoln park commissioners favor the improvement," said H. Otto Weege, superintendent of the park system, "but there is a serious problem of finances. The question will be considered at a meeting, probably next week."

The south park board's share of the improvement runs from Roosevelt road to Randolph street; the city is responsible thence north across the bridge; and Lincoln park is responsible for the remainder of the project north to Oak street.

EX-CONVICT SAYS HE KILLED WIFE OF PRISON CLERK

Columbus, O., Oct. 26 (Wednesday).—(AP)—Prosecutor Donald J. Hoskins of Franklin county announced early today that John Downing, 44 year old ex-convict, had confessed the slaying of Mrs. Daniel J. Bonzo, 44, wife of the chief record clerk at Ohio penitentiary. Mrs. Bonzo was beaten to death in the basement of her home here yesterday.

Downing, Hoskins said, failed to give a motive for the act, saying he "didn't know why he killed her."

PRESTO! NOW YOU ARE A BUM TO MR. CURLEY

Or Presto, and You're a Champ, if—

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 25.—Although I am of a believing nature and like to think only wholesome thoughts of all my fellow men, there is something about the current affairs of the wrestling industry which makes me to wonder whether all is sincere and sportsmanlike among the large orders of meat, blubber and hair who go about the country beating their chests and meowing and mooing in the wrestling shows.

Mr. Jack Curley, who owns the New York herd, has been sending me circulars and personal notes containing insinuations of the most sinister character against Jim Londos, the Greek, who used to be his own champion, and other parties, similarly interested, have sent me equally scurrilous innuendoes against Mr. Curley—him and his.

A couple of years ago, when Londos was Mr. Curley's champion, they were as thick as cold soup, and many's the time that Mr. Curley has taken me on his lap, fixed me with his great confiding eyes—and the eyes are the windows of the soul, aren't they?—to tell me that Jim Londos was beyond question the greatest wrestler that ever whinnied a note in the ring.

O, but After That——

"And Strangler Lewis?" I would inquire of Mr. Curley, looking into his great, confiding eyes, as big as portholes. "What about Strangler Lewis? Can he wrestle any at all?"

"Strangler Lewis," Mr. Curley would reply, undulating slightly from the pressure of his emotions, "is a great big hairy bum. He cannot wrestle any whatever and he never was anything but a great big hairy bum. O, what a bum! The worst kind of a bum. Why should I let my Jim Londos wrestle bums? The public does not want to see bums. The public likes to see Londos wrestle genuine gladiators like Ray Steele and Jim McMillen and Serge Kalmikoff and Ference Holumab."

Then, last winter, something happened between Jim Londos and Mr. Curley and love to hatred turned with the result that before long Mr. Londos was, in Mr. Curley's opinion, all the sorts of bum that Mr. Lewis had been so short a time before and Mr. Lewis' great, quivering mass of spare chins, his waves, folds, laps, and billows of flesh became the repository of all the virtues and talents which once he had ascribed to Londos.

You Gotta Think Fast.

Now Mr. Curley invites me to sit on his lap and look into his orbs again as he tells me this and that about Lewis and thus and so about Londos, but I do not wish to do so. For what is an easy believer to think of all this? It causes confusion and doubt and Mr. Hoover, himself, was saying only the other night that this is not the time for doubting, but for believing and faith.

Mr. Curley sends me a circular and what does it say in red, green, and white, under his own name?

It says that Stranger Lewis [that bum, that great, big, hairy O-what-a bum as of the winter of 1930] is the outstanding, the dominant, the most sensational living marvel of physical perfection, skill, grace, and courage that ever adorned the heavyweight championship of the world, and it adds that Jim Londos [that bum supreme, as of last winter and henceforth until further notice] succumbed to him 14 times. Fourteen times that wonder man Lewis licked that bum Londos.

Londos, Alias Jack Dalton.

"Beware," Mr. Curley writes under his name, "of Jim Londos' sidestepping tactics. Jack Curley and all his associates and the fans all applaud the action of the New York prize fight commission in depriving Londos of the title of champion. Strangler Lewis [that past grand bum] by right of defeating Dick Shikat and Jack Sherry stepped in where Londos was dropped out. Lewis will wrestle Londos at a minute's notice.

"Remember, Mr. Wrestling Fan and lover of fair play and square dealing in clean, manly sports, that all last season Londos [that bum, as noted] refused to meet Lewis. The promoter and commission listened to your clarion call of distress and when Londos refused to beard the issue fair and square he was dechampionized.

"Londos says Lewis is a fat old has-been. The wrestling fans and lovers of decency and square shooting which

Football Death Toll Reaches 14; Freshman Dies

Oakland, Cal., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Harry Lawler, freshman at St. Mary's college, who was injured in an interclass football game last Thursday, died in a hospital last night. The fatality brings the gridiron death toll throughout the country for the season to 14. Lawler suffered an injury to his spine when he tackled Harry Masterson, sophomore player.

Regulation football as an interclass sport has been abandoned following the death of Lawler, Brother Leo, chancellor of St. Mary's announced. Hereafter, "touch tackle" will be played, he said.

FRACTURED RIB COSTS MICHIGAN RUSSELL OLIVER

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Russell Oliver, former Culver academy star and promising sophomore back, sustained a fractured rib in football practice at Michigan yesterday, it was disclosed today.

He will be out of the Princeton game Saturday, for which Michigan is pointing. Coach Harry Kipke feels that Coaches Fritz Crisler and Tad Wieman are pointing for Michigan and that Princeton may spring a surprise. Crisler and Wieman coached the Minnesota teams which held Michigan to 7 to 0 and 6 to 0 in 1930 and 1931, respectively.

The team worked on offense this afternoon. Ted Chapman, who worked alternately at tackle and end last year and was back at tackle this season, was shifted over to end again today.

OHIO EXPECTS 25,000.

Columbus, O., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Indications today were that 25,000 would witness the annual dad's day celebration to be held in connection with the Ohio State-Wisconson game Saturday.

Coach Willaman had his first string lineup back in practice today after a vacation Monday and a long forward passing drill was held. The Buckeyes were far from consistent in this department, trying sixteen against Pittsburgh and completing five, these being of the short toss variety.

Ferrall, injured end, will be unable to play Saturday and Salvaterra will continue in his place. The remainder of the Buckeye line will remain intact with Gillman at the other end, Rosequist and Conrad at tackles, Varner and Galus at guards, and Smith at center. Willaman also plans to keep Hinchman and Carroll at halves, Cramer at quarter back, and Vuchinich at full back.

Much time was spent today with the kickers, Hinchman, Keefe, Cramer, McAfee, and Thomas being the best of the back field booters.

BADGERS GO INDOORS.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The Wisconsin football squad was forced to run signals inside the university field house this afternoon. A driving rain flooded the practice field.

Because the floor of the field house is earth covered with cinders, there was no scrimmage. The effect of scrimmage was obtained by placing linemen opposite each other and directing their movements in slow motion.

PURDUE RETURNS TO ACTION.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Purdue's varsity football squad was back in uniform today, apparently fully recovered from the strain of three successive hard games, and started immediate preparation for the battle with New York university at New York Saturday.

Latonia, Ky., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Gilbert Elston, called by some racing experts the year's best jockey on American tracks, suffered a fracture of the skull today in a tumble with his mount at the Latonia Jockey club track. Hospital authorities said his condition was serious.

Elston was astride Black Dust in the last race when the filly fell while in close quarters on the final turn. Lady Couvin went on to win.

Jockey Monte Parke, who rode Lady Couvin, later was blamed by the stewards for the accident and was suspended for the remainder of the meeting.

Appoint Geis Coach of Track Team at Princeton

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Matthew Geis has been appointed Princeton track coach to succeed Keene Fitzpatrick, it was announced today by Thurston J. Davis, supervisor of sports and acting chairman of the Princeton board of control. Fitzpatrick resigned last week after twenty-two years of service.

My Greatest Thrill in Football

BY TOM YARR.
[As told to Charles Bartlett.]

TOM YARR.

THE greatest personal thrill I ever got out of football was not derived from any individual play, but from the efforts of an entire team during a whole game—the 1930 battle between Notre Dame and the University of Southern California at Los Angeles before a crowd of 90,000. We won that game, 27 to 0, and with it the national championship.

Newspaper comment throughout the country, particularly on the coast, predicted that Southern California, with the greatest team in its history, would win. So it was that we left for the game absolute underdogs, with Coach Rockne given only an outside chance of pulling the game out of the fire.

There was some reason for this situation, as we had come out of the rest of a strenuous schedule with a number of injuries, the most serious of which was that suffered by Larry [Moon] Mullins, the most popular player on the team and one of the best plunging full backs Notre Dame ever had. Larry went into the Army game the preceding week with a bad knee, and in giving everything to pave the way for a 7 to 6 Notre Dame victory made it worse. We knew he would be unable to play against the Trojans before we left South Bend.

O'Connor Becomes Inspiration for Team.

We stopped at Tucson, Ariz., for practice, and there it was that Rock played his trump card, the one which eventually defeated Southern California and also furnished the inspiration for the entire team that day. Rockne moved Paul [Bucky] O'Connor, Mullins' best friend on the squad, from right half back, where he had played with the shock troops for three years, to Mullins' place at full back on the varsity.

Mullins was the subject of Rockne's talk, following the shift of O'Connor to full back. Rock later called that team the "friendliest" he ever had known.

"They all like each other," he said. "There was never any dissension. They got just as big a thrill out of seeing some one else star as when they did something spectacular themselves."

[Note—This was borne out in a questionnaire recently conducted at Notre Dame in which most of the players who are still at Notre Dame and played in 1930 state that their biggest thrill in football was Marty Brill's three touchdowns in Notre Dame's 60 to 20 victory over Penn that year.]

Rockne told how Mullins, a Californian, after giving three years of his best work to Notre Dame, was unable to play before his own people in a game for which he had pointed during his entire collegiate career. Then Rock mentioned that O'Connor was going to carry on for his pal.

Bucky Gets Loose for 80 Yard Run.

"Try to shake O'Connor loose," he said. "Keep relaxed. Take all the time you can. Use the huddle to kill time, so you won't tire. Walk, don't run, back to the huddle after each play. Southern Cal is overrated and you've got a good chance to win. Do it for Mullins."

We did it for Mullins, all right. Carideo scored in the first quarter on a pass from Schwartz, and we got O'Connor loose a few minutes later for an 80 yard run for touchdown. He scored later on a pass from Schwartz and Nick Lukats added a touchdown in the last quarter. I got my thrill out of the way the team worked together that day. Every play clicked. It just seemed to be our day. I got my kick out of just being a part of that team, which won this last game that Rock ever coached and the last game for Bucky O'Connor, who played so well for Larry Mullins after three years on the shock troops.

Tommy Yarr, captain and center of last year's Notre Dame team, is of Irish-Indian extraction and a native of Dabob, Wash. He played with the shock troops in 1929, understudying Tim Moynihan, but was a regular in 1930 and 1931. Last year he was regarded as one of the best pivot men in the game, following the Notre Dame tradition of great centers. He is now an assistant coach to Heartley Anderson at Notre Dame, devoting most of his time to the line.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 15.—A neck injury has ended the career of Orville Mohler, Southern California quarter back, in midseason of his senior year.

Drs. Packard Thurber, head of the Trojan athletic department's medical staff, and Walter Fiezler, football trainer, called specialists today, and after a consultation in which X-ray pictures of Mohler's neck injury and his injuries of last season were studied, it was announced that it would be dangerous to permit Mohler to play. Mohler and Coach Howard Jones concurred in the decision.

Blocks Tackle.

Jones issued a statement commenting on Mohler's play, in which he called Mohler "not only the best broken field runner I ever coached but the best I ever saw."

Mohler was injured running interference against Stanford last Saturday when he drove Grey, 201 pound Stanford tackle, out of play. Mohler dropped unconscious on the field. Drs. Thurber and Fiezler got him off the field and to a Palo Alto hospital.

Hurt Last Year.

Mohler was hurt and out of play for two weeks last season when struck in the head in the California game. He recovered, however, and played against Notre Dame and Tulane.

Mohler played quarter back during Southern California's fourth quarter rally against Notre Dame. It was he who called the play and held the ball for the place kick by which Johnny Baker won the game, 16 to 14, and broke Notre Dame's string of twenty-six games without a defeat.

He is president of the U. S. C. student body and is a licensed aviator. Mohler recently escaped with bruises and a shaking up when he and Tay Brown, captain of the Southern California team, crashed in attempting a takeoff at San Bernardino, Cal.

Coast Teams to Use 12 Men in Game on Nov. 4

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Occidental college of Eagle Rock and the Santa Barbara State will use 12 men on a side when they meet in a football game at the Rose bowl, Pasadena, on the night of Nov. 4.

The twelfth player will be termed a field general. On the offense he will go into a huddle with the other 12 players to decide what plays will be employed. When the formation moves forward he will drop back with the referee to see just how his brain-child works out and to detect weaknesses of the opposition.

On defense, he will stand with the head linesman, taking no active part in the functions of his team. The plan is to have the field general dressed in a distinguishing uniform.

The step is considered by Occidental athletic authorities as another in their plan to give the game back to the students. Before the season opened it was announced the team would be run by a board of strategy, with players in entire control.

Ben Creech Resigns as Coe Stable Trainer

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Ben Creech announced today he had resigned as the trainer of the W. R. Coe stable, which includes the champion 2 year old Ladysman. It was reported that Willie Knapp, who recently resigned as the trainer of Mrs. John Hertz's Chicago stable, will train the Coe horses next season. Creech said a reduction in salary prompted his resignation.

HAWKS, FULL OF PEPPER, IGNORE ATTABOY STUFF

Making Baseball Practice Different from Hockey.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Duluth, Minn., Oct. 25.—Fall training in the hockey business is a great deal different from spring training in the baseball business in that hockey players do not shout "Attaboy" all the time to show people they are full of the old pepper and happy to resume work.

This is a very striking difference even at the Chicago Blackhawks' camp here, although Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, owner and inspiration of the Hawks, has concentrated on hockey players born in the states. The Hawks' roster carries more fellows who can vote Nov. 8 than all the other major league hockey teams combined.

You would think that the attaboy stuff, so standardized in United States athletics, would be found on the Hawks, if any place. Today, however, we watched three hours of rough scrimmage hockey and didn't hear a single attaboy. In fact, the only real significant chatter we heard was "What in 'll kind of passing is that?"

Gardner Takes Ungraceful Sprawl.

Only once did the real American vernacular resound. Goalie Charley Gardiner, taking his first drill of the year, and about two weeks behind in the matter of training, did a rather ungraceful sprawl. Quick as a flash one of the players admonished Chuck to stay up and get a draw. This scintillating crack is on the first page of the glossary of snappy American sports comment, but hardly ever is employed in Canada.

The practice was more spirited than usual today, however. The lads all became exuberant when a doctor pronounced Mush March, brilliant forward, o. k. after it had been thought for a few frenzied seconds he had been killed.

The snappy little forward was trying to put on a body check play with Capt. Helge Bostrum for the benefit of the photographers. In some manner Mush was hit in the solar plexus, suffering a temporary paralysis. It was thought for a time he had swallowed his tongue. As Mush's teeth set and symptoms of strangulation set in, Coach Emil Iverson shouted, "Boys, we're losing him." This, of course, caused a lot of excitement for a few minutes.

Farrell Leads Party Home.

Iverson, an expert in first aid procedure, eventually succeeded in reviving the athlete and later a physician conducted an examination, after which it was said March had not suffered any lasting injury.

Joseph C. Farrell of Chicago, experienced Indian scout, who played a valiant part in a 30 hour trek which brought Chicago hockey experts safely into Duluth yesterday, started out overland for home with his party late today.

There are 21 hockey players in training here and each had a personal route to Chicago, all different from the other 20. These combined with 38 other routes which Scout Farrell already had made the prospect of an exciting trip home a startling likelihood.

The hockey players, who advised Guide Farrell, will make the trip south by train, stopping en route for exhibition games before opening the season in Detroit on Nov. 10. The Chicago season will open on Sunday night, Nov. 13.

Santa Paula Wins First Game of Polo Tourney

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 25.—The Santa Paula polo team of South America today defeated La Pampa, representing North America, 15 to 7, in the opening game for the Argentine open polo championship. Seymour Knox and J. C. Rathborne were in the La Pampa lineup. The Meadowbrook team of the United States is scheduled to play its first game in the tournament Saturday.

Phelps Gets Decision Over Levandowski in 10 Rounds

Saginaw, Mich., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Owen Phelps of Phoenix, Ariz., came back strongly in the last three rounds tonight to win a ten round decision over Martin Levandowski of Grand Rapids.

A CARDINAL AGAIN

Rogers Hornsby, who was removed as manager of the Cubs during August, signs to play second base for the St. Louis Cardinals. Hornsby led the Cardinals to their first baseball championship in 1926.

BACK TO CLUB HE LED TO FIRST WORLD TITLE

Plans to Play at Second Base.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Rogers Hornsby is back where he started—with the St. Louis Cardinals. The club that brought him up from the minors in 1915 and fired him after he had managed the team into a world series triumph over the Yankees in 1926 announced yesterday that it had taken him back as a player.

The announcement, made by Sam Breadon, the Cards' president, who originally banished Hornsby as the aftermath of a spat, set forth that there was no sentiment behind the move and that it wasn't made with the idea of elevating the veteran athlete to the team management at some future time.

Hornsby was tendered a one year contract, at the expiration of which he will again become a free agent unless some other big league club should claim his services. In that event Hornsby would be privileged to take whatever amount the claiming club would be willing to pay.

Plans to Play Second.

Hornsby himself, as soon as the formality of signing had been completed, disclaimed any knowledge of the Cardinals' plans to use him except as a player.

"Breadon thinks I am still young enough to play baseball and that I might be able to help the Cardinals into a pennant," declared the man who was fired as Cubs' manager on Aug. 2 of this year.

"I'll go to spring camp with the idea of playing second base. If I can make the grade Frankie Frisch can be moved to third where he has played before. At least they tell me that is the scheme they have in mind."

Despite Breadon's insistence that he is not thinking of Hornsby as a future leader, it is thought that if Gabby Street, the incumbent, fails next season, Hornsby will be promoted to the job. Breadon always has been an admirer of Hornsby's baseball judgment.

Rumors Set at Rest.

The return of Hornsby to baseball will set at rest, for the time being, the rumors in circulation that the magnates had secretly agreed to refuse him employment. According to reports, Hornsby himself feared this and is supposed to have been making attempts to induce Commissioner Landis to clear him, as well as a few Cub players, of the cloud which has hung over them since the race track betting investigation conducted so sensationally, and with no results, two months ago.

Landis, after taking yards of testimony from the players alleged to have bet huge sums on the ponies, simply handed out copies of what transpired at the hearing. He refused to clear the players or to charge them with any offense against the so-called code of the game.

Traded to Giants.

Hornsby's original row with Breadon is supposed to have resulted from a remark dropped by the then manager of the Cardinals. Breadon heard the remark and not long after that Hornsby was traded to the Giants for Frisch and Pitcher Jimmy Ring. Hornsby had just won a pennant and world series; so the switch naturally came as a great surprise.

At New York Hornsby and Manager McGraw were the closest of friends, so much so that when the latter was ill he placed Hornsby in charge. But Hornsby didn't get along with President Stoneham of the Giants and the upshot was another surprising move. Stoneham traded him to the Braves. After a short time with the Braves, Hornsby supplanted Jack Slattery as manager and subsequently was sold to the Cubs for a large sum of cash and five players. The late William Wrigley, Cub owner and great Hornsby fan, was responsible for this transaction.

Helps McCarthy Win Pennant.

The day that Hornsby became a Cub was the day that Joe McCarthy was a marked man as Cub manager. Wrigley obtained Hornsby with that thought in mind. It was Hornsby's bat that made it possible for McCarthy to win a pennant in 1929, but he had one more year to go on a three year contract and was not dismissed until the end of the 1930 season. Hornsby then took over the job and remained until Aug. 2 of this year when William Veeck, the Cub president, who, with the death of William Wrigley, took over complete charge of the club, announced that Hornsby had been fired and Charley Grimm given the vacancy.

Hornsby at no time had been overly popular with Veeck and did not help his case by repeated statements, for publication, that the team needed a hard hitter and a left handed pitcher. Veeck argued from the outset that the team was strong enough to win the pennant. What Hornsby had stood for was revealed with a vengeance in the world series. The club now is in the market for an outfielder who can hit and a left handed pitcher of worth.

From a business standpoint alone the Cardinal bosses probably moved wisely when they took Hornsby aboard. Large crowds undoubtedly will turn out for his first few performances in Chicago and the extra receipts accruing therefrom will offset a large part of whatever salary he is to draw. The St. Louis fans also may come back now. They almost boycotted the Cardinals when Hornsby was dismissed in 1926 and since then the patronage has been slim, considering the Cards' position in the races of recent years.

In the Wake of the News

FIRST DOWNS.

FIRST downs are becoming less and less valuable as a gauge of the relative merits of two opposing football elevens. Michigan is a fair example of this statement. The Wolverines, unbeaten in the Big Ten, recorded fewer first downs than Northwestern or Ohio State in those contests. Yet there was no doubt in the minds of a vast majority of spectators that Michigan was the better eleven as the games were played.

There are several reasons why first downs are not conclusive, even if they do afford a certain amount of satisfaction to the losers when the losers make their distance more often than the winners. One reason is that a successful pass or long run of 40 yards counts only one first down. Yet it accomplishes as much as four first downs made by inches. Another reason is that teams often choose to kick and wait for the breaks rather than scrimmage. Still another reason is that a first down in the scoring zone is worth several times as much as in enemy territory or in the middle of the field.

In the matter of counting first downs, too, The Wake finds himself at variance with many of the best authorities. Many statisticians do not include in their statistics as a first down a touchdown play, even if that play is made from a distance of 80 yards. We've argued the matter back and forth without convincing or being convinced.

Our argument is that any time the ball is carried over the goal line from a distance of more than ten yards it should be called a first down. In fact, we'd go further and count a first down for any scoring play, because of its importance, even if the distance was only one yard. Perhaps that is stretching the point too far. Frankly, we see no valid argument on a technical basis.

But isn't it reasonable, if first down statistics are to mean anything, that a touchdown play from midfield, for instance, should be counted a first down when ten yards gained anywhere else in the field of play, whether important or not, or even when obtained on a penalty, is called a first down?

We suggest the rules committee issue some advice on this subject to statisticians in order to have uniformity.

Leveled at Last.

My possessions are few, my stature is small—
Not so with my neighbor next door.
He is stately and tall, his manner proclaims
Him master of riches galore.
My appearance goes well with a rented flat,
And his with a mansion grand.
When I'm hungry for music I whistle a tune,
My neighbor just hires a band.

But when we have finished this earthly career,
Have shuffled this mortal coil,
He'll take as little on that journey as I,
And be laid in about the same soil.
With wealth and distinction all left behind
He'll lie in his little plat:
He only can occupy six feet of earth,
And I'm also entitled to that.

Wake: Your article on football betting reminds me of my first and last bet while in college. It was in 1915. My allowance for all expenses was $75 per month. Michigan had lost only one game to Michigan A. C. and that was regarded as something of a fluke. So when a bunch from East Lansing came over looking for bets, it seemed like a shame to take their money. I had just received my allowance and, although I had to put up the whole $75 against $35, I figured the swell time I would have with this extra $35. Well, Michigan A. C. walked all over us, 24 to 0, and yours truly practiced real economy, with a minimum of food, until the next allowance check.

KANSAS PLAYER QUITS; DOESN'T LIKE HIS WORK

Lawrence, Kas., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Arch Stuck, end on the University of Kansas football team of 1930, who returned to the Jayhawk squad after a year's absence, quit the team today. Stuck said he was dissatisfied with his own play and believed another member of the team could do better work.

Stuck plans to return to his home in Salina, Kas. It was reported recently that Stuck had married a Salina girl, but he denied it. He was one of the leading ends in the Big Six conference in 1930 when the Jayhawkers won the championship.

Blood Lines Tell in Test for Juveniles.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Our baby thoroughbreds, the 2 year olds, were asked for a distance test at Sportsman's Park yesterday. Nine paraded to the post in the Stickney purse at a mile and 70 yards.

Most of them possessed blood lines that should enable them to run as far as the Rocky mountains and back. But until the Stickney they had begun to linger in five and six furlong dashes.

It would have been difficult to test the juveniles under more exacting conditions. A heavy rain was beating down, the track was heavy with mud, and the clouds hovered so low that the horses almost needed lanterns to find their way around the curves

Blood Lines Tell.

Blood lines told the story. The winner was Paul T., a son of Paul Weidel-Lotta Miles. Paul T.'s sire was one of the great mud runners of the American turf. He could run faster in the mud than many horses can run in fast going. Lotta Miles was bred to be a route runner, hence the name Miles.

Some folks in the rainy day gathering of 4,000 thought Paul T. scored a lucky victory. Sunny Side Up was far out in front during the early stages. Her daddy was Cherokee, another great mud runner in his time. On the last turn Sunny Side Up rushed for the outside fence, losing a dozen lengths. When she swerved Paul T. skidded through on the rail and the race was as good as over.

Paul T. went on to win by a length and a half from Dark Star, which also improved her position when Sunny Side Up ran out. Sunny Side Up, after her visit to the outside fence, recovered quickly and managed to save third money.

Closes at 6 to 1.

Paul T. ran the mile and 70 yards in 1:58. It was slow time, but he ran hock deep in mud. He opened as the favorite in the betting, but closed at nearly 6 to 1.

Paul T. races for E. J. O'Connell of Chicago, who has developed many famous horses. He trained Spanish Play for many of his victories. He's pretty high on Paul T. after yesterday's victory and thinks the colt might be able to beat most any man's horse over a distance in the mud next season.

Character Wins Empire City Feature

New York, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The Carlaris gelding Character, piloted by Apprentice Jockey Dominic Bellizzi and bearing the colors of the B. B. stable for the first time, captured the Beechnut claiming handicap, feature at Empire City, today. The time for the six furlongs was 1:09 2-5, the fastest of the meeting, and there was little surprise when it was announced, as there was a duel all the way.

Rally Round, owned and trained by George Odom, was a joint choice at 5 to 2 with the winner, but the best he could get was third, four lengths back of J. H. Louchheim's Miney Myerson, which was beaten two lengths by the winner. Miney Myerson formerly was owned by the B. B. stable, but recently was claimed by Mr. Louchheim. The field was completed by Orphean, Fly On, and Little Lad, which finished as named. Little Lad had up top weight of 116 pounds.

KNOX BEGINS PRACTICE FOR BELOIT GAME

Galesburg, Ill., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The Knox college football squad today opened practice for the homecoming game with Beloit college here Saturday. Blocking and tackling were stressed and there was a long punting practice. The workout closed with scrimmage against the freshmen. Spence Vasen was shifted from a wingback to a tailback position and the change added considerable power to the back field.

Saturday's game will be the 26th contest between Knox and Beloit. Beloit has not won since 1926 but has a better record this season. The Wisconsin school has lost only one game while Knox has lost four.

OPEN SEAT SALE FOR HARVARD AND YALE TO PUBLIC

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The public will be able to purchase tickets for the Yale-Harvard game Nov. 19 in unlimited numbers, the Yale Athletic association has announced. All applicants

GOPHERS GUARD AGAINST WILDCAT PASSING ATTACK

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Capt. Walter Hass was back in the Minnesota lineup of regulars and reserves this afternoon as defensive play was stressed in preparation for the homecoming game with Northwestern here Saturday. Hass was at right half back in a dummy scrimmage that found the freshmen showing the varsity some of the Wildcats' tricks, especially passes.

Gay and Bruhn, regular linesmen, continued to take it easy. Trainers announced that they would not know until late in the week whether Gay and Bruhn could play Saturday. Bengston, a sophomore, replaced Gay and Koski went in at Bruhn's position.

Between 40,000 and 45,000 will see the game with Northwestern, ticket sales indicate.

N. U. REGULARS REST.

Northwestern regulars received another day of rest yesterday, most of the practice being devoted to the reserves. A heavy workout is in prospect for today, the usual mid-week scrimmage with the varsity working on both offense and defense.

The team will leave tomorrow night for Minneapolis, where headquarters will be set up for the game with Minnesota on Saturday. About 1,500 Wildcat fans will journey to Minneapolis on a special train which will leave the North Western station Friday night.

HAWKS LEAVE TODAY.

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Scrimmage on a rain soaked field, marked the last regular home practice for the University of Iowa football team today. The squad of 33 men will hold a short limbering up session tomorrow before boarding the train for Washington, D. C., to meet George Washington university on Friday night.

Coach Ossie Solem retained the same first team lineup which started against Minnesota last Saturday, with the exception of Francis Schammel at right tackle. Schammel was still out of the practice session today with boils and Dorsey replaced him.

Rain and a wet ball limited the play to straight football. Freshmen attempted to execute Washington forward passes against the varsity but had no success. Teyro, Laws, Schneidman and Page were the starting first string backs.

HOOSIER LINEUP REVAMPED.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—A number of new players may be in the lineup Saturday when Indiana opposes Mississippi here.

A revamped lineup worked out on a rain soaked practice field today as Coach E. C. Hayes shook up the squad. In the back field Dauer was shifted from quarter back to full back, while Veller was sent to quarter back. Sabik, star passer, and Stickann, both sophomores, were used as half backs.

In the line Tiernan and Howorth, ends, are being used frequently. Zoll and Beeson, tackles, Busbee and Sprauer, guards, and Atonini, center, complete the foraward wall. Zoll, Beeson, Busbee and Spauer are sophomores.

PLAN DOG SHOW AT ARMORY ON NOV. 19 AND 20

Plans were made yesterday for a dog show to be held in the First regiment armory, 16th street and Michigan avenue, Nov. 19 and 20, under the auspices of the Western Specialty Clubs' association.

There will be sixteen classes:

Bull dogs, bull terriers, collies, cocker spaniels, Dobermann pinschers, Irish terriers, Scottish terriers, Boston terriers, wire and smooth fox terriers, pomeranians, chows, Pekingese, great danes, shepherds, English stringer spaniels, pointers, and setters.

Dogs from all parts of the United States will compete and 1,500 entries are expected. E. W. Leach, 644 Wrightwood avenue, superintendent of the show, announced entries will close Nov. 10.

Organizations participating in the show are:

Chicago Bulldog club, Chicago Bull Terriers' association, Chicago Collie club, Cocker Spaniel Club of the Middle West, Dobermann Pinscher Club of America, Irish Terrier Club of Chicago, Scottish Terrier Club of Chicago, Western Boston Terrier club, Wire and Smooth Fox Terriers Breeders' club, Western Pomeranian club, Midwest Chow club, Western Pekingese club, Great Dane club, Shepherd Dog Club of the Great Lakes, English Stringer Spaniel Club of Chicago, Western Pointer and Setter club.

STOCKHOLM, HILL TEAM UP AGAIN IN SIX DAY RACE

Carl Stockholm, Chicago's outstanding six day bicycle star, will be paired with Norman Hill of San Jose, Cal., in the twenty-eighth international six day race which gets under way a week from tonight in the Stadium.

Stockholm rode with Hill a year ago at the Stadium and they finished in fourth place. Stockholm has won two races, finished second in two, third in two, fourth in four, and fifth in six races. He is one of the veterans of the game, having started riding soon after the war. Stockholm was shot through the knee in the war and rode a bicycle to get his leg back in shape. Stockholm is also an alumnus of Northwestern and now has a prosperous drying and cleaning business.

Chocolate Late Reaching Detroit; Bout Called Off

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The Kid Chocolate-Harry Blitman bout scheduled for Thursday night here has been canceled, Matchmaker Scotty Monteith announced today. According to Monteith, Chocolate failed to arrive in Detroit yesterday, thus violating the state boxing commission rules. Luis Gutierrez, manager of Chocolate, telephoned that he had missed train connections, Monteith said.

DICK TRACY—Third Degree

OH-SO YOU FINALLY GOT HERE, EH KID? LISTEN, I WANT TO TALK TO YOU! WHAT DID YOU OPEN THAT PACKAGE FOR THAT YOU WERE SUPPOSED TO BE DELIVERING LAST SATURDAY? HUH?
WHAT?
YOU OPENED THAT LOAF OF BREAD AND TOOK SOMETHING OUT OF IT, DIDN'T YOU? EH? ANSWER ME, BRAT!
WHAT PACKAGE DID YOU MEAN?
DON'T GIVE ME THAT DUMB STUFF! UNDERSTAND? TALK!
SMACK
AND WHERE DID YOU PUT THOSE BOTTLES YOU TOOK OUT OF THAT CABINET IN THE BACK ROOM? HUH?
IT LOOKS BAD FOR THE KID—VERY, VERY BAD.

Frosh Open Maroons' Eyes to Illini Peril

There was nothing smug about the spirit of the Maroon football team yesterday after a freshman team, drilled in Illinois plays, got through with the varsity reserves. The frosh, using the tricky triple pass and short forward pass attack the Illini are alleged to know, coupled with a few end sweeps, found the Chicago seconds all too vulnerable. The workout took place in he Midway field house because of rain.

There was nothing complacent about the varsity before the practice began, for that matter. Chicago's players believe that the Illini will be pointing for next Saturday's game at Stagg field as their biggest chance of the season. Coach Stagg regards Illinois at least as warily as he did Indiana last week.

The first string team for the second day had no strenuous work, but sought to perfect the execution of its plays. Peter Zimmer, most dangerous man on the team this season, continued his sessions with the trainer, Si Benson, who says that the odds are against Pete's being able to play Saturday. Zimmer is more optimistic.

Chicago's line, manned by veterans from end to end, should halt Illini plunging, but unfortunately that is not the specialty of the Champaign team. Coach Stagg expects Gil Berry's passing to drive his boys as frantic as the pitching of Opasik and Edmonds did last Saturday. Also, he is not too sure about those sweeping end runs of Berry and Yanuskus.

Pat Page Jr. will return to the Maroon back field Saturday, which will give Chicago a badly needed heavy blocker. Tom Flinn, pony sophomore who returned a punt 52 yards against Indiana, is likely to start at half if Zimmer is unable to play. Don Birney apparently has taken over the kicking assignment. Sahlin is a fixture at quarter back.

ILLINI WORK IN RAIN.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—A driving rain failed to postpone scrimmage for the University of Illinois football squad today. Three freshmen teams formed the opposition.

Gordon Bailey, end last year, who was shifted to guard a week ago, was played at that position on the first string, with Chuck Bennis at center and Julius Hoeft at right tackle, Hoeft has been at end. Bod Hladik was the other guard. Van Van Meter was at left end, with Schustek at right. Bart Cummings was the other tackle.

Defensive tactics to cope with the Maroon attack will be stressed the rest of the week.

DE BARRYS MEET CLASSIC LEAGUE LEADERS TONIGHT

The Lorenz Knitting team will meet the De Barrys tonight at 9 o'clock at the Garden alleys, 4074 Milwaukee avenue, in the Classic Bowling league's most important match. The De Barrys are only three games behind the first place Lorenz quintet.

DE PAUL ELEVEN OPENS DRILL FOR GAME AT OMAHA

De Paul university football squad yesterday settled down to preparations for its sixth game of the season with the University of Omaha at Omaha Saturday.

Like the Blue Demons, the Nebraskans are also undefeated. De Paul so far has gained four triumphs, being held to a scoreless tie in a game with Western State.

The 19 to 7 victory over St. Mary's was accomplished without serious mishap Sunday. Jim Doody, first string quarter back, was the only casualty. He was injured on the second play of the game and it is doubtful whether he will be in condition to start against Omaha.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

NOTRE DAME, they say, is headed for another national football championship, but in the opinion of Coach Walter Steffen of Carnegie Tech the Irish have a rocky route to tour.

JUDGE W. P. STEFFEN.

Judge Steffen's team was steamrollered, 42 to 0, at South Bend last Saturday and you would expect him to predict that an undefeated season was just a cakewalk for Notre Dame. He admits he has seen few teams with the all round strength of this year's Notre Dame squad, but he looks for Pittsburgh to provide an extremely interesting afternoon for the Irish Saturday.

"If Pittsburgh is such a formidable foe, how do you account for their tie score with Ohio State last Saturday?" we asked the judge.

"That's easy," he said. "Pittsburgh took a terrific physical beating from the Army the previous week, even though it did come away with an 18 to 13 victory. No team can go through a contest like that without letting down.

"I know that Pittsburgh has one of the fastest back fields in the country. It deploys behind a strong line. It will play its best ball of the year against Notre Dame, for everybody connected with the squad has been preparing for this battle since the Panthers were defeated at South Bend last fall.

"Notre Dame was the only team that whipped Pitt in 1931. Immediately after the season the coaches and players began talking about how they would even it up this year. Team psychology is in Pittsburgh's favor."

The judge was not willing, however, to go on record as predicting a Pittsburgh victory. He still is undecided whether team psychology can stop that roaring Irish line and those whirling, driving backs that Coach Heartley Anderson unleashed against Carnegie.

"I don't believe I ever have seen a squad with such numerical strength as Notre Dame has this year," Judge Steffen remarked. "Their second team is much stronger than any reserves we have encountered down there before."

No matter what the writers and other coaches say about Notre Dame's prospects of going through its schedule undefeated, I don't think Anderson or his players are giving the question any consideration.

It was a little later than this in 1931 that metropolitan correspondents were shouting from the top of the dome about a national title, but their cries were not heard in the far east or in the far west. Along came Southern California and then the Army to make them swallow their words.

Notre Dame plays a strong opponent this week-end, but its big test comes at the tail end of the season—Northwestern, Army and Southern California. Until these foemen are disposed of, let's not talk about championships.

Roy Horstmann, Purdue full back, who scored the Boilermaker touchdowns against both Wisconsin and Northwestern, and Jim Carter, sophomore half back, are leading the ground gaining activities of the Boilermaker ball carriers. Horstmann has gained 303 yards on 67 attempts for an average of better than 4.5 yards a clip, while Carter has picked up 278 yards on 54 attempts for an average advance of better than five yards a crack.

Here's a Story About Punts, First Downs and Extra Kicks

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The longest and best punt we've seen this year in a conference game was Ollie Olson's kick, the final play of the first half of the Purdue-Northwestern game last Saturday. Purdue had lost possession of the ball after failing to complete a forward pass in the end zone. Northwestern put the ball into play on its 20 yard line after the touchback.

Olson kicked the ball 66 yards from the line of scrimmage and the ball bounced out of bounds, so that this distance also was net gain.

Now 66 yards isn't a record kick by any means. We remember a punt by Duke Hanny, former Indiana end, when he was a member of the Bears professional team in 1923. The Bears were playing the Cardinals. With the ball on the Bears' five yard line Duke stood in his own end zone and kicked the ball out of bounds on the Cardinals' five yard line. Wind and roll frequently combine to make gains greater than 66 yards, but it isn't done many times in college football, so that the opponents are unable to run back the ball.

Which brings up this point: How is the length of a kick measured? Although the kicker must stand back of the line of scrimmage, the distance is measured from the point where the ball was put into play. This is the same rule for measuring yards gained by running or plunging.

Kickers customarily stand 10 yards back, advancing two or three steps to get drive in the kick, depending on the coaching, so that when the ball is punted the kicker probably is seven or eight yards behind the scrimmage line. Michigan's kickers stand back 12 yards. When Coach Stagg two years ago used a kick from flanker formation, the kicker stood back 15 yards. This required less protection, or rather protection for a shorter time, but unless the center is exceptional his pass to the kicker will be much slower and possibly not as accurate. There also is loss of distance on the kick to be considered.

It is obvious, however, that a 40 yard kick, covered properly so that the receiver cannot run it back, is better than a 60 yard kick on which the receiver has time to get under way for a gain of more than 20 yards.

From the standpoint of yards gained, first downs made, etc., Northwestern may have been fortunate to have tied Purdue. Even so the Wildcats came very near to winning. With the score tied Moss kicked on fourth down from his own 46 yard line. Rentner took the ball and came up the west side line. He eluded the first wave of Purdue tacklers and the last man barring his path made the tackle on Northwestern's 49 yard line.

"For a second I thought I was loose," Rentner said after the game.

Purdue's last minute rally carried the ball to Northwestern's 22 yard line in two plays. A third, the last of the game, was a pass and it was intercepted by Rentner. Only an unusual set of circumstances permitted the advance. Carter passed to Moss for 14 yards and Moss fell out of bounds after catching the ball. Thus time was out until the ball was put into play again. About 15 seconds remained.

Purvis then passed to Carter. Interference was called on the pass and the ball was given to Purdue on Northwestern's 22 yard line. Again the watch was stopped, husbanding the seconds so that Purdue had opportunity for another play. If the pass had been completed without the penalty of interference the game would have been over almost at once, as the time would have continued.

It is almost a universal custom in scoring to mark first downs only when the yard sticks are advanced. In other words, a touchdown is not a FIRST DOWN. One paper in New York calls touchdowns first downs, and so do Ohio State's statisticians. Elsewhere in the Big Ten the former custom is observed. Thus at Ohio State Michigan was credited with six first downs, two of them touchdowns. The score was 14 to 0. We reported that Michigan made four first downs in that game, two by passing and two by rushing.

So far this season in the Big Ten, only one point after touchdown has been lost (or made) as a result of a penalty called on the try for the point. Newman of Michigan place kicked the extra point after the second touchdown in the game last Saturday with Illinois. Michigan was offside. Two years ago the offside would have canceled the point, but under the rule now in force Michigan was penalized five yards and Newman tried again. He missed the try, however. Had Newman missed the first time Illinois would have declined the offside penalty, with the same final result.

Hunters Send Bird Cripple Toll Too High

BY BOB BECKER.

Although waterfowl are more abundant this year than last fall, wild game authorities throughout the country are hammering away on the familiar slogan: "Don't waste any birds. Get the cripples." The reasons for repeating this injunction to the millions of waterfowl hunters are obvious. Birds may be more plentiful this fall, but there are several species which must considerably increase in number to regain population losses.

American sportsmen have been careless about cripples. This is the usual waste situation which comes in times of plenty no matter whether it concerns waterfowl or something else. When waterfowl are plentiful why take time to chase a wing tipped bird? There will be another one along in a few minutes. This is the attitude which conservation authorities ascribe to many duck hunters.

There is no doubt that wing tipped birds will be brought down in any kind of bird shooting. Even the crack shots do not always center their patterns to drop clean kills. Game authorities have no quarrel with this situation. They are indicting the careless, or the lazy hunter as well as the "spray gun" type of shooter who keeps firing at a bird after it has flown beyond the killing range when the best that can be expected is a slightly wounded bird.

This urge to keep firing at a disappearing bird is nothing new in hunting. The great emphasis on supercharged shells undoubtedly has increased the tendency to try for long range shots. Without doubt there is nothing quite so thrilling to the waterfowl hunter as reaching for a high flying duck and bringing it down with a quick shot. An experienced hunter can gauge these shots within range and get his birds quite consistently. But the fellow who is average or below average with a gun and who opens up with a five shot automatic and keeps it going as long as the duck is in sight can't help wounding far too many birds in a day.

Casualties Are High.

All this is great fun, is fine business for the ammunition manufacturers and produces real noise. Without a good retrieving dog to send out for wing tipped birds, many a duck will sail away eventually to drop down slightly wounded as a result of such rapid fire shooting when ducks are beyond the killing range.

On one 10,000 acre western bird reserve the caretaker rescued 1,860 crippled ducks and geese after the hunting season in addition to 1,359 mortally wounded birds which couldn't be saved. He started gathering cripples on Nov. 25 and continued the work until early January. These figures give one an idea of the number of birds touched by shot during a hunting season. One of the interesting things to us about this rescue work was the fact that a springer spaniel was used to retrieve the crippled waterfowl.

TELEGRAPH POLL UPHOLDS BAN ON VANDERBILT END

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Dr. L. C. Glenn, faculty chairman of athletics at Vanderbilt university, announced tonight that the Southern conference executive committee voted "quite decidedly" to sustain the ruling by Vanderbilt coaches that Julian Foster, varsity end, was ineligible because of violation of the summer baseball rule.

Dr. Glenn today took a telegraphic vote of the committee members on the Foster ruling. He announced the vote was taken at the suggestion of Dr. C. P. Miles, president of the conference.

"I have not received the vote from every member of the committee," Dr. Glenn said, "but the votes not yet received could not change the decision."

Benny Friedman Is Good, but So Is This Joe Lillard

Joe Lillard, colored half back of the Cardinals, will be counted upon by Coach Jack Chevigny for his usual contribution of yardage, when Benny Friedman's Brooklyn eleven comes to Wrigley field for a National Professional Football league game Sunday.

While Lillard's showing against the Bears, his only Chicago appearance of the season to date, was impressive, a slow field kept him from getting away for any of the long runs which marked his play in the Cards' recent victorious invasion of the east.

Against Boston last Sunday, Lillard averaged 6.6 yards in gains from scrimmage, returned punts a total of 125 yards, one a dash of 44 yards, did some good blocking, and tossed several successful passes.

Friedman has admitted Lillard has him worried. The Cardinals, on the other hand, are deeply concerned as to what Friedman may do. They expect him to use his extraordinary ability at tossing forward passes, but on one occasion when such was expected against the Bears, Friedman gave a demonstration of hitting the line for enough gains to win.

An indication of the spirit with which the Cardinals are playing every game on their schedule was given last Sunday at Boston, when Frank McNally, star center, was ordered from the game.

McNally, ordinarily a quiet chap, protested an official's decision with such vehemence that he was ousted, his first experience of the kind.

Carroll Next Opponent for Lake Forest

Lake Forest college football team will journey to Waukesha, Wis., Saturday to play the Carroll College Pioneers, leaders of the Wisconsin Big Four conference.

Coach MacIntosh was pleased with the showing of Lake Forest in its 7 to 0 victory last Saturday against the heavy North Central team. The Foresters were outweighed, both in the line and backfield, but scored on straight football in the first quarter, and while holding the visitors at bay in the second and third quarters, came back in the fourth period to the North Central five yard line. A 15 yard penalty prevented the impending score.

At Carroll, Glen Thistlewaite, former Northwestern university and Wisconsin coach, has brought his team to the top of the Wisconsin collegiate conference in the half season that he has had charge with victories over Milwaukee Teachers, Beloit, and Lawrence.

NOTRE DAME SET TO USE ALL OF THOSE 140 PLAYS

Quarter Backs Thumb Notebooks for Pitt.

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—A regulation hour's scrimmage, in which the Notre Dame quarter backs were instructed to use everything in their notebooks, occupied both the first and second Notre Dame teams today as preparations went on for Saturday's game with Pittsburgh.

Charley Jaskwhich of the varsity and Laurie Vejar, the little Spanish field general of the shock troops, turned on a brilliant display of passes, bucks, off tackle slices, reverses, spinners, and laterals for the benefit of those who are allowed to watch Notre Dame go through its paces.

May Use Every Play.

After the practice Coach Hunk Anderson said: "We have more than 70 plays, most of which go either to the right or left. That gives us a total of more than 140. If we need them all Saturday we'll use them, because I think this game may prove to be the toughest on our schedule.

"Pitt was the hardest team we played last year. They met us when we had our full strength, which Army and Southern California did not do. We were lucky to win on some fourth down passes, which could just as easily have failed.

"After beating Army in that 18 to 13 game, Pitt naturally suffered a letdown, but they should bounce right back stronger than ever. We'll have to pour it on plenty to win Saturday."

Reserves to Texas.

The first team back field of Nick Lukats, Jaskwhich, Ray Brancheau, and George Melinkovich stopped the Pitt passing attack today, and the ground advances of the reserve team using Pitt plays were negligible.

The Notre Dame reserve team will leave here tomorrow morning for Lubbock, Tex., to play the Texas Tech varsity. Twenty-two men will make the trip under the direction of Freshman Coach George Kozac. The Texas team defeated Southern Methodist and Colorado School of Mines this year, and lost by six points to Texas A. & M.

PITT TEAM GLOOMY.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Pittsburgh's football team, which for a time considered itself unbeatable, won't be burdened with overconfidence when it meets Notre Dame's high scoring eleven here Saturday.

Pitt didn't know what sort of a team it was going to have when the season opened, but after the first four games decided that everything was going to be rosy, as Ohio Northern, West Virginia, and Duquesne fell before what appeared to be a powerful eleven.

Then came the Army game and another victory, but during the game the Pitts saw their makeshift front wall riddled by the cadet running attack and a secondary confused by Army passes. A great goal line stand and three sensational scoring drives allowed Pitt to win.

Then Came Ohio State.

Ohio State repeated the Army's performance, being the first team since the Notre Dame eleven of 1931 to outgain the Panthers from scrimmage. The season has been a disappointing one to the Pitt coaches. Capt. Paul Reider has been on the bench most of the year and will likely remain there Saturday.

Pitt came out of the Ohio game badly battered, and Coach Sutherland is going to be hard pressed to find a starting eleven for the Notre Dame game.

Despite the fact that Pitt is expected to take a defeat at the hands of the Irish, there are expected to be 75,000 people in the stands. Over 45,000 tickets have been sold, and no tickets have been placed on public sale.

New Teams to Get Places in Prep Semi-Final Games

Based on performances thus far, two new sectional champions will appear in the semi-final round for the Chicago Public High School league football championship. They are Morgan Park, which is headed toward the first south section championship in its history, and Englewood or Bowen in the central division.

Morgan Park's last opponent is Parker, 1931 sectional champion, which has failed to score a point. An easy victory is predicted for Morgan Park when they meet on Nov. 5.

Bowen has to beat Hyde Park Saturday to match Englewood's record of three victories. Saturday's game is expected to be just a workout for Bowen, as Hyde Park has shown little power in its two league games.

Thus, unless an upset occurs, Bowen and Englewood will be undefeated and tied for first place when they meet on Nov. 5 at Normal park. Here are the scores for Englewood and Bowen in their league games:

BOWEN.		ENGLEWOOD.
13—Tilden Tech	0	6—Tilden Tech	0
6—Lindblom	0	12—Lindblom	2
		24—Hyde Park	6

In the other two sections of the league—west and north—the teams which won the titles last year are getting ready to compete again in the semi-finals. Harrison Tech, defending league champion, which took the west division lead by defeating Austin last Saturday, has two weak opponents, Marshall and McKinley, remaining on its schedule.

Schurz, defeated by Harrison Tech in the final last year, has also scored two straight victories to lead the north section. Schurz will meet Lake View, which has won one game and lost one, Saturday at Logan Square park. The other team on its schedule is Lane Tech, which occupies the cellar in the north section standings.

Louis Miller, Marshall full back, will be unable to play when Marshall meets Crane Tech at Mills stadium Saturday afternoon. He suffered a fractured elbow in the McKinley game last Saturday.

John Rowe, Fenwick center, who incurred a slight concussion of the brain against St. Philip last Saturday, left the West Suburban hospital yesterday. He is expected to return to school next week, but will be unable to play again this season.

Mount Carmel, leading the south section of the Chicago Catholic High School league, will conclude its sectional schedule against St. Rita on the latter's field Sunday.

CAMP DEFEATS OLSON IN CUE TOURNEY, 100-58

Marcel Camp of Detroit defeated George Olson of Minneapolis in the third game of the Northern Sectional pocket billiard championship match at the Kleckhefer Recreation yesterday, 100 to 58 in 20 innings. Camp's high run was 29, Olson's 21.

Pasquale Natalie of Chicago leads the quartet with two games won and none lost; Camp is second with one won and none lost; Joseph McCann is third with no victories and one defeat, while Olson is last with two defeats.

Today's schedule calls for McCann to meet Camp in the afternoon game and in the evening Olson again meets Camp in the first game, and Natalie in the second.

Paddy Waltier Outpoints Manweller in Five Rounds

Bobby Groshek beat Ian Grant (4).
Bobby Vernon and Jack O'Brien draw (4).
Jimmy Richards beat Adam Morales (4).
Joe Scrietie beat Jimmy Hagner (4).

PLEADS FOR PITY AT RITES FOR TRIO SLAIN BY MOTHER

Pastor Calls Mrs. Carrell Victim of Depression.

Mattoon, Ill., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The three children of Mrs. Inez Steed Carrell, Chicago widow, whom she drowned in the bath tub of a hotel here last Saturday, were buried today in old Tippett cemetery, beside the grave of their father, Ellwood Carrell, who died five years ago.

Ill from poison which she took in an effort to die with her children, Mrs. Carrell lay under guard in the Methodist Memorial hospital. Throughout the day she moaned, "I want to die, I want to die."

Hundreds at Funeral.

The funeral of the children—June, 11 years old; Robert, 7, and Mary Ellen, 5—was attended by hundreds of farm and town people, many of them friends of the Carrell family. Mrs. Nora Carrell of Charleston, grandmother of the youngsters, was also present. Services were held in the Cottonwood church, one mile from the cemetery, with the Rev. H. L. Hayes of Charleston, officiating.

The clergyman's sermon was drawn on the depression, which he blamed for the Widow Carrell's deed. She should have pity rather than censure, he said. Why she killed her children will be a sad puzzle to her as long as she lives, he predicted. Her troubles, he said, began with the death of her husband. She found work in Chicago, he said, and eventually invested the $3,500 insurance left her by her husband in the stock market. She lost this, the Rev. Mr. Hayes went on, and then, recently, lost her job in a Chicago financial office.

No Formal Action at Law.

"There is need of pity," said the clergyman. "Perhaps we can understand it all when we realize that there are men who lose part of their fortune and leap out of windows. She lost everything."

Thus far no formal action beyond keeping a guard over Mrs. Carrell has been taken. An inquest is to be held this week, and this, it is believed, will determine whether she will be charged with murder.

DIPLOMATIC CORPS BUYS UP ALL FOOD IN MOSCOW STORE

MOSCOW, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The diplomatic corps of virtually all countries represented here bought up all the stock of a food store operated for their benefit today—the last day they were permitted to use soviet currency in the shop.

Under a new rule, effective tomorrow, the store will sell food for foreign currency only. Hundreds of persons, including attachés and employés of various embassies and legations, besieged the store from early morning and by mid-afternoon the shelves were emptied.

Many embassies were reported perturbed over the new ruling, which will not permit them to devote the receipts from sales of visas and other consular transactions in this country to living expenses, which they hitherto had done because the ruble has no exchange value abroad.

DOUBLE PARADE IS PLANNED FOR ARMISTICE DAY

Charles V. Falkenberg, general chairman for the Armistice day celebration by American Legion posts in Cook county, announced yesterday that all plans for the observance will be complete on Nov. 1.

There are to be two parades of the veterans, one forming in Wacker drive between Wabash and Michigan avenues and the other in Grant park at Jackson boulevard. Both parades will march to the reviewing stand in La Salle street near Washington street, where at 11 a. m. taps will be blown by Bugler James Mason.

A large proportion of the 193 posts in the county are expected to participate. H. C. Ridgeway of Woodlawn post will be parade marshal and will have as assistants E. C. Clamage of Forges post and Fred Boissey of Forges post. George A. Rohde of Logan Square post will be music chairman.

FAMOUS SURGEON BECOMES KING'S AGENT IN ONTARIO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 25.—Dr. Herbert A. Bruce, internationally known surgeon, today accepted the job of being the king's representative in Ontario. The vice regal post of lieutenant governor has gone begging for a year despite a million dollar palace to live in and a salary and expenses of $60,000 a year.

The post entails wearing a gold embroidered Windsor uniform twice a year when parliament meets and adjourns, reading the king's message and signing all bills passed by the Ontario legislature. It also involves holding a levee for the men of the province on New Year's day, a garden party in the summer and a few state dinners.

When W. D. Ross resigned as lieutenant governor a year ago just before his son secured a divorce it appeared as if Toronto's nearest approach to royalty had disappeared for good. Despite the salary and the palace, the post has cost its holders thousands of dollars. Dr. Bruce accepted the appointment on condition that the vice regal entertainment costs be slashed.

FAKE DOCTOR IS SENTENCED TO 6 MONTHS IN JAIL

Francis Howard Punchard, 45 years old, pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of practicing medicine without a license and was sentenced to six months in the county jail and fined $100 by Municipal Judge A. M. Eberhardt yesterday. Punchard practiced under the name Dr. F. H. Clark at his home at 1062 Bryn Mawr avenue. Judge Eberhart characterized the defendant as a "charlatan." Punchard testified he was a graduate of Trinity college, Oxford university, and that he had lived in the United States ten years. He said he had been a licensed physician in England. A patient testified that his "cancer treatments" neither harmed nor improved her condition.

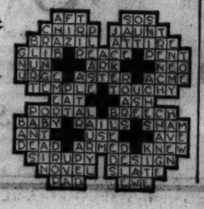
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



3 NEW FLOGGINGS ARE REPORTED TO FLORIDA POLICE

Number of Victims Now Stands at 19.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 25.—(AP)—With three additional reports today of floggings, authorities pushed their search for members of a whipping band reputed to have beaten at least nineteen persons here recently.

Officers said they believed the floggers are members of one gang, "self-appointed guardians of the public morals."

To date the records in the police department and the sheriff's office showed nineteen persons had fallen victim to the lash, including five white women.

Tells of Beating by Mob.

One of the men who reported today told police he was beaten so badly he had to lie on his face for a week. He said the mob informed him he was not taking proper care of his family. That was last June, he said, and he had been out of a job for months before and ever since.

Meanwhile the Duval grand jury has been called into special session tomorrow to investigaet the lawlessness. Five men have been arrested, and were identified, police said, by Mrs. Sallie Geringer and her 20 year old daughter, Ola Bell Gilstrap.

These women told the police they were forced from their home, taken six miles into the country, and flogged with a leather strap by eight white men. The mob, they said, accused them of selling whisky.

Denies Klan to Blame.

The police have withheld the names of other victims on the ground that it might hinder their investigation to make names and details public.

A paid advertisement appearing in a newspaper today over the signature of George J. Garcia, grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, said that organization was "in no way responsible for the recent epidemic of whippings or floggings that have occurred in this vicinity." The advertisement pledged the klan's coöperation with authorities in arresting those responsible.

MRS. M'LAUGHLIN LOSES FIGHT TO EXEMPT SHELTER

The Lake county board of review last night denied the appeal of Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin for tax exemption on her dog shelter, Orphans of the Storm, which is located near Deerfield. The tax amounts to about $150.

Mrs. McLaughlin had asked the exemption recently on the grounds that the shelter was a charitable institution, organized not for profit, and supported largely by donations. She added also that animals of many families, now too poor to care for them, were being sheltered. The board of review took the matter under advisement, and obtained an opinion on the legality of the question from Assistant State's Attorney Wilfred Hall. His opinion was against the exemption.

"The board of review is unanimous in denying the exemption," said Frank Stanton, chairman of the board, last night. "It is our opinion that Orphans of the Storm is not a charitable institution, worthy of being exempted from taxation.

Fake Notary Fined $50, Sentenced to 30 Days

Chris Bray, 42 years old, 4500 Woodlawn avenue, a former deputy assessor, was found guilty yesterday by Municipal Judge Harold P. O'Connell of impersonating a notary public by affixing a notary's seal to a number of personal property schedules, and was fined $50 and sentenced to 30 days in the Bridewell. On the motion of Assistant State's Attorney Joseph Krause a hearing on a motion for probation was set for Nov. 3.

Mrs. Lydia Heppner, Wife of Merchant Tailor, Dead

Mrs. Lydia Heppner, 63 years old, died yesterday of heart disease in her home at 222 East Chestnut street. She was the widow of Henry Heppner, who founded the tailoring company bearing his name at 310 South Michigan avenue. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at the chapel at 936 East 47th street, with burial in Rosehill cemetery. Mrs. Heppner is survived by one son, Lawrence.

Funeral Rites Held for Flo Ziegfeld's Mother

Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock for Mrs. Rosalie de Hez Ziegfeld, 84 years old, mother of the late Florenz Ziegfeld, the producer, and widow of Dr. Florenz Ziegfeld. The Rev. Albert E. Coe, pastor of the Oak Park Congregational church, preached a brief sermon in the home at 1448 West Adams street, where Mrs. Ziegfeld lived for many years. Interment was in Graceland cemetery.

R. F. SCHUCHARDT, NOTED ENGINEER, DIES IN BOSTON

Rudolph Frederic Schuchardt, chief electrical engineer of the Commonwealth Edison company, died suddenly yesterday in a Boston sanitarium. He had been suffering from a glandular ailment for several weeks, but his condition had not been considered critical. He was 58 years old.

Mr. Schuchardt was considered one of the foremost engineers in the United States. He was president of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers in 1928 and 1929, and in the latter year was a delegate to the world engineering congress in Japan. Mr. Schuchardt was a member of the science advisory committee of the Century of Progress exposition. He was a former chairman of the public affairs committee of the American Engineering council and former chairman of the great lakes district power survey.

Mr. Schuchardt was graduated from the University of Wisconsin, shortly after which he joined the Edison company. He became electrical engineer of the organization in 1909. Mr. Schuchardt lived at 185 Green Bay road, Glencoe. Surviving are two children, John and Elizabeth. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

RAIL LOCOMOTIVE CHAIRMEN HOLD WAGE DISCUSSION

About a hundred general chairmen of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, representing employés of virtually all railroads in the country, met yesterday in the Great Northern hotel to discuss wages. The present 10 per cent wage reduction agreement expires in February.

Alvanley Johnston of Cleveland, grand chief of the brotherhood, said the meeting had not discussed the proposal of railway executive that all railway workers take a 20 per cent wage cut when the present pact expires in February.

"No action on a new wage scale will be taken before the meeting of union heads with railway executives on Dec. 10," Johnston said.

Always Dead Tired?

How sad! Sallow complexion, coated tongue, poor appetite, bad breath, pimply skin and always tired. What's wrong? Chances are you're poisoned by clogged bowels and inactive liver. Take this famous prescription used constantly in place of calomel by men and women for 20 years—Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. They are harmless yet very effective. A compound of vegetable ingredients. They act easily upon the bowels, help free the system of poison caused by faulty elimination and tone up liver.

Rosy cheeks, clear eyes and youthful energy make a success of life. Take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly. Know them by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c. All druggists.

U. S. STEEL PAYS REGULAR RATE ON PREFERRED

Dividend Is Seen as Vote of Confidence.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 25. — The United States Steel corporation today declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on the preferred stock for the final quarter of the year, the board of directors thus expressing its confidence that the recovery movement has definitely set in.

At its meeting three months ago, the board warned no further dividends, common or preferred, would be voted unless conditions warranted it.

By voting the regular rate of $7 a year on the senior stock, which directors consider more in the nature of a bond than an equity, the board maintained unbroken a dividend record which stretches back to the formation of the company in 1901.

After several previous reductions in the rate, the corporation omitted further payments on the common stock at the April meeting this year.

September Deficit Grows.

The results for the September quarter reflected vividly the condition of almost complete stagnation which marked the steel industry through the summer months. Operations for the period resulted in a deficit of $4,474,719 after all expenses incident to operations including ordinary repairs, maintenance and taxes, but before reserves for depreciation, obsolescence, etc., and interest on bonds of the corporation and its subsidiaries.

This compared with a deficit of $3,362,736 in the June quarter and with total net earnings of $9,181,091 in the September, 1931, quarter.

After provision for depreciation, obsolescence, etc., and interest on bonds, the loss aggregated $15,155,072 as against a deficit of $3,973,835 in the preceding quarter and a deficit of $3,973,825 in the corresponding quarter last year.

Surplus Cut $27,176,628.

After provision for the preferred dividend, calling for $6,304,919 there was a final deficit, provided for through recourse to profit and loss surplus of $27,176,628.

This compared with a deficit of $26,757,092, when a special charge in the amount of $5,887,160 was included in the June quarter and with a final loss of $11,822,371 after preferred and common dividends reported for the September quarter last year.

The corporation's cash balance on Sept. 30 stood at $82,000,000 and the market value of its holdings of United States government securities was $48,773,000. This compared with cash on Jan. 1 in the amount of $84,509,000 when holdings of U. S. government securities totaled $72,978,000. Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the company, refrained from commenting on the statement.

Net loss for the first nine months of this year amounted to $54,542,431, compared with net income of $17,343,543 for the corresponding period of 1931, equal to $4.81 a share on the preferred stock. The latter figure includes $14,321,932 special income receipts.

OTHER STEEL REPORTS

Earnings reports were also issued last night by several of the smaller steel companies, including Inland Steel company, Republic Steel corporation, and Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation.

Inland Steel in the third quarter of the year showed a net loss of $768,000 after charges. This compares with a net loss of $619,982 in the preceding quarter and a net profit of $90,166 after all charges, in the third quarter of last year. For the first nine months of this year the company showed a net loss of $2,209,111, compared with a net profit of $1,496,796 after taxes and charges in the corresponding period of last year.

Republic Steel reported a net loss of $3,419,353 for the quarter ended Sept. 30. This compares with a net loss of $2,744,826 in the preceding quarter and a net loss of $2,728,077 in the third quarter of last year.

For the first nine months of this year the net loss amounted to $8,640,471, against a net loss of $5,512,975 in the corresponding period of 1931.

As of Sept. 30, the company reported cash amounting to $9,150,922 and a ratio of current assets to current liabilities of 4 to 1.

Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation reported a net loss of $6,192,859 for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1932. This includes earnings of subsidiaries. During the corresponding period of last year the company operated at a loss of $733,511. Net loss for the third quarter of this year was $1,682,919, compared with a net loss of $2,110,851 in the preceding quarter and a net loss of $934,352 in the third quarter of 1931.

STOCKS RISE IN S. F.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Speculative sentiment received a mild injection of optimism today by declaration of the regular United States Steel preferred dividend, and stock attracted buyers, lifting prices moderately.

The action of stocks here was watched closely because of the fact that eastern markets had closed before the announcement of the dividend.

Steel common sold even with the Wall street finish at $34.62, with the bid rising to 35¼ on the curb in informal trading. The bid on Steel preferred was $73, up $1 from the east's close.

American Telephone rose $2.37 from its position just before the dividend announcement, and at $103.37 was up $1.87 for the day. United Aircraft gained 37 cents on the day, and General Motors 25 cents.

Assail U. S. Farm Banks on Both Sides

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Irate investors who years ago bought the bonds issued by the governmentally sponsored joint stock land banks because they were offered as "instrumentalities" of the United States government now threaten to make things still more interesting for the federal farm loan board.

The work of this board, headed by Paul Bestor, is to supervise the affairs of the joint stock land banks and the federal land banks.

Both the "joints" and the "federals" sold bonds to the public, the former having about 485 millions of bonds outstanding and the latter about 1,148 millions. The assets of each consist of farm mortgages, a large percentage of them in default.

Charge Foreclosures Forced.

Farm leaders recently have charged that the federal farm loan board has been bringing pressure to bear on the land banks to force them to play Shylock and foreclosure on farm mortgages.

Spokesmen for the farm loan board have hastened to explain that this is not the case, and that the board has urged upon the banks the necessity of being exceedingly lenient in order not to be hard on the borrowers.

Now the investors who furnished the money for the farm mortgages by buying the land bank bonds demand that their rights be considered.

The farm loan board, having originally promised the farmers credit and the creditors safety, is between two fires.

Helped One, Not the Other.

Holders of joint stock land bank bonds also are particularly irked because the government has recently extended financial aid to the federal land banks, but did not give similar aid to the joint stock land banks, a number of which have gone into receivership.

In the report of the committee on government and farm loan bonds, approved by the Investment Bankers' association at their annual meeting at White Sulphur Springs this week, there is contained a resolution calling attention to the fact that all federal and joint stock land bank bonds issued under the federal farm loan act carry this statement engraved on their face:

"Farm loan bonds issued under the provision of this act shall be deemed and held to be instrumentalities of the government of the United States."

Demand Equal Help.

In the discussion before the committee speakers expressed the opinion that federal officials seemed to desire to limit the government's responsibility on joint stock land bank bonds and not to limit such responsibility on federal land bank bonds.

It was brought out that $125,000,000 has been directly furnished by congress to help the federal land banks with no direct relief for the joint stock land banks.

The resolution passed by the Investment Bankers' association concludes with this demand:

"That all land bank bondholders, including federal land bank and joint stock land bank bondholders, shall receive equal consideration in any constructive legislation by congress."

Form Protective Groups.

Delegates to the convention privately stated that plans are already under way for the formation of associations of joint stock land bank bondholders for their mutual financial and political protection. The belief was also voiced that at the coming session of congress a more determined effort would be made to have the federal government stand behind its sales talk 15 years ago in which these bonds were offered as "instrumentalities" of the government.

Mortgages made by both the "joints" and the "federals," many of which are now in default, were approved by the agents of the federal farm loan board. This board now has the difficult task of choosing between the farmer who can't pay the mortgage and the widow, orphan or trust company demanding that the bonds offered as "instrumentalities" of the government be made to live up to the name.

The Investment Bankers' association committee that presented the resolution at the convention is headed by F. Seymour Barr of Barr Brothers, New York.

Show "Collection" Letter.

To support their contention that the farm loan board authorities are playing ball with the debtors, but not the creditor, members of the committee exhibited a "collection" letter sent on Oct. 11, 1932, to borrowers of the Chicago Joint Stock Land bank by J. B. Gallagher, receiver. The letter was addressed to borrowers on mortgages in default.

"While it is my duty as receiver to require all borrowers who can do so to meet their maturing obligations," Mr. Gallagher wrote, "nevertheless, I recognize the present extended circumstances of many borrowers brought on by the distressed agricultural conditions.

"I desire to assure you that it is my wish to coöperate with you in the solution of your problems to the end that you may be able to meet your payments on time or to work out some plan, if feasible, under which you may continue to hold your farm.

"The receiver is appreciative of the full coöperation given by many borrowers to the bank in the past under trying circumstances and solicits the continuation of such coöperation for the benefit of creditors of the bank, who in the first instance supplied funds with which your loans were made."

STUDEBAKER AND PEERLESS WILL PAY DIVIDENDS

The regular preferred dividend of $1.75 a share was authorized yesterday by directors of the Studebaker corporation. The dividend is payable Dec. 1 to stockholders of record Nov. 10. Another motor concern, Peerless Motor Car company, yesterday declared a dividend of 50 a share payable Nov. 10 stock of record No. 5. Previous distributions this year were $1 a share on May 14 and $3 on April 25.

City National Bank Makes First Report

The first statement of condition of the newly organized City National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago is now being distributed to customers. The statement reveals the institution to be in a highly liquid position with more than 75 per cent of its total resources in cash, funds due from banks and United States government securities.

The bank was launched Oct. 6 with new capital raised by a group headed by Gen. Charles G. Dawes, former chairman of the Central Republic Bank and Trust company. The new bank took over the deposits and the commercial banking business of the Central Republic.

Total Resources $81,307,563.

The statement gives the condition as of Oct. 17. Total resources are carried at $81,307,563, including cash and funds due from banks of $61,113,853 and United States government securities of $1,213,093. Other resources include state, municipal and other securities of $905,000 and loans and discounts of $17,856,183.

Deposits are listed at $76,161,231. Thus the cash resources totaling $62,326,936 amount to more than 80 per cent of the deposit liabilities.

Deposits together with the capital of $4,000,000 and surplus of $1,000,000 represent all but $146,320 of the bank's total liabilities of $81,307,563. The new bank has no bills payable. The $146,320 represents miscellaneous liabilities including reserves and letters of credit outstanding.

Drew on R. F. C. Credit.

A comparison of the statement with the last report of the Central Republic bank indicates that the latter drew on its $90,000,000 credit with the Reconstruction Finance corporation when it turned over its deposit liabilities to the new institution.

The statement of the Central Republic as of Sept. 30, issued Oct. 5 just prior to launching of the new bank, showed cash and funds due from banks of only $24,344,761. The new bank has $61,113,853 in this liquid form. The statement indicates that the Central Republic drew funds from the R. F. C. to turn over to the new bank in return for which the latter assumed the Central Republic deposit liabilities.

The Central Republic also listed bills payable of $35,511,374 in its report. None of these bills were transferred to the new bank. The new bank also took over only a fraction of the Central Republic loans, the statements show. The new bank has loans and discounts of only $17,856,183, as compared with $91,806,756 carried by the old bank in its statement as of Sept. 30.

UNION CARBIDE REPORTS THIRD QUARTER PROFIT

Union Carbide and Carbon corporation last night reported third quarter net income of $1,984,917, after all charges, equivalent to 22 cents a share on the 9,000,743 shares outstanding. This compares with net of $4,773,085 or 53 cents a share on the same capitalization in the September quarter of 1931. In the June quarter this year the corporation earned 25 cents a share while net in the first quarter equaled 22 cents a share.

Norfolk & Western Orders Regular Dividend of $2

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 25.—An offer of a substantial amount of funds at ½ of 1 per cent for sixty days loans today set a new low record for bank money in time loans on stock exchange collateral. Heretofore no bank money is known to have been available for sixty days at less than ¾ of 1 per cent, although some outside funds may have been offered at that rate.

Even on bankers' bills and government securities the lowest point at which bank money has been available has been ¾, though other leaders have been willing to lend at ½ on these high grade securities.

The offer of sixty day money at ½ of 1 per cent was made in the face of a very small demand. It signifies the extreme point to which banks, overloaded with idle excess reserves, are willing to go to obtain at least some return pending a possible better opportunity later when the United States treasury undertakes its December financing. Meantime, the banks evidently desire to retain their liquid position.

With the offer of bank money at ½ for sixty days, dealers believe the bottom of the money market must have been reached. In view of the huge excess reserves held by New York banks and in many other financial centers of the country, they see no reason to criticize the low rate, since, they say, it results from an artificial condition.

CANADA TO DROP 5 CENT BONUS ON EXPORT WHEAT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 25.—Canada will discontinue the federal government bonus of five cents per bushel on export wheat, Prime Minister Bennett tersely told the commons today. The announcement came in answer to a question that "the present financial condition of the country will not permit payment of a wheat bonus in 1932."

To get a continuation of the United Kingdom's 10 per cent preference on Canadian lumber, and the new empire trade conference guarantee of protection against Russian lumber dumping on the British market, Canada gave to Britain over $100,000,000 worth of business formerly done with the United States. This was revealed by George Nicholson, Ontario conservative and big lumber operater, in today's further debate on the empire trade pacts.

Canada, he said, is placing duties against articles used in the lumbering industry of which in 1929 she purchased over one hundred and seventy-five million dollars worth from America and only thirty-one million dollars worth from Britain.

MILLION DOLLAR SUIT QUASHED BY "DOG COLLAR"

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 25.—A million dollar conspiracy suit against Fox Film, Vitagraph and United Artists collapsed in the United States court this afternoon. A New Hampshire paper expert produced a watermarking stamp, looking like a rubber dog collar bearing the negative imprint "par value 100 0-0," and swore paper so watermarked was never marketed before April, 1930. It had been used in a lease dated April 13, 1927.

The lease was the basis of a suit that the Majestic Theater company, Inc., had been put out of business by a combination of the big film companies.

Sterling Dips 3 Cents, but Rallies Later

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Sterling experienced another abrupt break at the start of business today, but it was only half as severe as that of yesterday. After a decline of more than 7 cents yesterday the opening was nearly 3 cents further down, bringing another rush by shorts to cover and forcing a sharp rally. Sterling in London was quoted in dollars about 1 cent under the bottom touched here, illustrated well the foreign origin of the pressure and lack of support by official agencies. After the initial break the price of the pound became fairly steady here around $3.305.

The latest break in sterling brought new low prices for the year not only for the British rate but for all three Scandinavian exchanges. French francs again moved downward by a large fraction, guilders broke 4 points more, and Swiss francs were 3 points down.

Canadian dollars lost more than half a cent. In the Far East division yen were steady, but the silver exchanges went lower with the lower market locally for silver metal.

Chamberlain Silent.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 25.—A continued fall in the exchange value of sterling is causing uneasiness and gave rise to several questions in the commons today, all of which Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, refused to answer.

One rumor in the city of London is that an attack is being made by French and Balkan speculators, and the British treasury and the Bank of England are letting them have their way, in the hope of catching them short and giving them a salutary lesson.

Another theory is that the present fall is the usual seasonal fall of sterling, exaggerated by the fact that the pound is off the gold standard, and a third theory is that the treasury and bank are experimenting to find the true value of the pound before taking steps at revaluation.

Dollar Up in Paris.

PARIS, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Another two centime rise for the dollar on the exchange today was attributed in American banking circles to discontinuance of a movement to sell dollars, described as due to increased confidence in the dollar. The British pound continued to fall.

Earmark Gold Release Increased U. S. Stocks

New York, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The country's monetary gold stock gained $4,178,000 today as a result of a net decrease in gold earmarked for foreign account of $4,152,100 and an import of $23,400 from Mexico.

WHEAT DOWN TO ALL TIME LOW AT WINNIPEG

Chicago Prices Drop More than 2 Cents.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A sudden withdrawal of the aggressive support which had held December wheat at Winnipeg at the 50c level for around three weeks was followed by a debacle in the grain markets both in this country and Canada. Wheat prices at Winnipeg dropped to an all time record low for that market and all deliveries of wheat, corn, rye, and May and July oats fell to a new low for the season in Chicago.

For an hour after the opening the quotation on Winnipeg December was quoted at 50c. Suddenly the price started downward, and touched 47½c before support developed, and messages from that market said it was almost impossible to fill selling orders on the way down.

December wheat here dropped to 45½c shortly before the close on persistent liquidation by longs, and came within ½c of the all time record low for any future, which was established last fall. May touched 50¾c on the break, and at the inside prices were off 2⅝@2½c from Monday's finish.

Wheat Lacks Support.

At no time did the wheat market here show much disposition to rally, and the finish was about the bottom, with net losses of 2⅛@2¼c, with December finishing at 45⅝@45½c, May at 51c, and July at 52⅜@52¼c. Winnipeg, while recovering rather sharply at one time, closed with losses of 2@2¾c, the December being 48c and May 52c.

While there was evidence of support at Winnipeg on the decline of a similar character as that which has held the market for 50c for December, messages from the Canadian market were extremely cautious in expressing a belief that "pegging" operations had been resumed. There was nothing in the general run of the news to account for the drastic decline.

According to trade gossip the break at Winnipeg was on account of the persistent declines in wheat prices in Chicago, which placed this country in a position where it was feared that export business might develop with Europe. However, Canada had apparently no intention of losing its export trade before the southern hemisphere was in a position to ship heavily. Therefore Winnipeg prices were permitted to decline to a point where they would continue to keep in line for the export trade. The only foreign sales claimed during the day, despite the break in futures, was 500,000 to 600,000 bu Manitoba wheat in all positions.

Short Interest Lacking.

Failure of the wheat market to rally here was regarded by a majority of traders as indicating the lack of a large short interest. Houses with eastern connections were persistent sellers, which was regarded as the liquidation of long grain. The unsettlement in sterling exchange has had considerable influence on sentiment, although Liverpool December closed at 53¼c, or 6½c over Chicago, or about the widest difference of the season, and within 3⅜c of what is regarded as a spread sufficient to permit sales

U. S. Gold Base of All Trade, Bankers Told

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Oct. 25.—The stability of the American dollar is the greatest factor in the world economy today and our demonstrated ability to meet all demands for gold is the cornerstone on which we have started to rebuild the structure of world business. This was the essence of the report made here today by the committee on trends of business to the convention of the Investment Bankers Association of America.

The committee, headed by Albert P. Everts, of Paine, Webber & Co., Boston, buttressed its optimistic report with the results of a questionnaire sent to the association's membership which showed an overwhelming belief "that the return of confidence" as evidenced by the recent increases in security prices, indicates a definite movement toward recovery from the depression.

Two Runs on Gold.

"In the last 13 months we have seen two great international runs on American gold, each of about sixty days' duration," the committee related. "The first covered roughly the months of September and October, 1931. During these two months the United States exported $728,000,000 in gold. The second covered the months of May and June, 1932, and resulted in the withdrawal of $487,000,000 of American held gold. It is significant to note that the successful stemming of the tide of this second great gold movement coincided almost exactly with the lowest price levels for commodities and securities in the United States and Great Britain.

"As the gold value of the American dollar is inseparably interwoven with American and world securities values, we have cause to note with satisfaction that during this year of unprecedented demand the United States has never refused a call to convert its money into gold upon demand, whenever and wherever the demand was presented. Your committee feels that with every regard for its responsibilities it is justified in stating from the facts at its disposal that the summer of 1932 has witnessed the actual passing of this crisis."

Excess Reserves Logical.

Pointing to the accumulation of excess reserves in the banks as a logical development following the demonstrated soundness of our money system, the committee voices the opinion that "our potential national strength has at least been marshaled for defensive and offensive operations against the forces of depression and disintegration."

Referring specifically to the work done by the Reconstruction Finance corporation the committee prophesied that the government would be in the market for a large amount of money, not only to fund early maturities but to the extent to which the government may have to continue to pump credit into the economic structure of the country and to the degree of success in balancing the national budget. On this score it was pointed out that the banks in their very liquid position have tremendous resources for the purchase of new government securities.

Bishop Has Big Claim in Bankrupt Stock Firm

New York, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Schedules in bankruptcy filed today for Daniel O'Connell Co., Inc., an investment house, listed among other creditors the Rt. Rev. Thomas H. O'Leary, bishop of Springfield, Mass. The bishop was listed as an unsecured creditor to the extent of $460,000.

INDUSTRY RUNS AT FASTER PACE IN SEPTEMBER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—Industrial activity, shipments of commodities by rail, factory employment, and pay rolls, all showed a more than usual seasonal increase from August to September, according to the monthly summary of the federal reserve board published today.

The general level of prices, on the other hand, after advancing for three months showed a decline beginning in the early part of September, the summary stated.

As measured by the board's seasonally adjusted index the volume of industrial production increased from a low point of 58 in July to 60 in August and 66 in September.

Where Activity Rose.

"The advance in September," the summary stated, "reflected chiefly large increases in activity at textile mills, shoe factories, meat packing establishments, and coal mines. In the steel industry, where activity had shown none of the usual seasonal increase in August, operations expanded considerably during September and the first three weeks of October to about 20 per cent of capacity. Daily average output of automobiles and lumber in September showed little change from recent low levels."

Factory employment increased from 58.8 per cent of the 1923-'25 average in August to 60.3 per cent in September, according to the summary, which stated that considerable increases were reported in the cotton, woolen, silk, hosiery and clothing industries, and smaller increases at car building shops, foundries, cement mills, and furniture factories. In the automobile, tire, and electrical machinery industries employment declined.

Freight Loadings Pick Up.

Building contracts awarded during the three months ending in September were about the same in value as those during the preceding three months' period, despite a normal drop in awards during the third quarter. In the first half of October the daily average of contracts declined somewhat.

"Volume of freight car loadings increased by considerably more than the usual seasonal amount in September, reflecting chiefly larger shipments of coal and miscellaneous freight," the summary continued. "Department store sales increased from the low level of August by somewhat more than the usual seasonal percentage."

Wholesale commodity prices showed little change from August to September, it was reported. During August and early September there was a general advance in prices which was followed by a decline that continued through the first half of October, when the average was 2 per cent below the high point in early September and 1 per cent above the low point of early summer. Substantial decreases occurred after the beginning of September in the prices of many domestic agricultural commodities, including cotton, grains, and live stock, and also in prices of gasoline, nonferrous metals, and imported raw materials.

New York, Oct. 25.—Lower prices ruled in the bond market today. Fresh liquidation occurred in the rails, shedding a depressing effect upon the whole domestic list. A further drop in sterling had a similar influence upon foreign bonds.

Losses extended to 3 points in Australians, though trading volume was not large. Selling here was attributed to the decline in wheat and to reduced buying of dollar bonds from London coincident with the weakening of sterling exchange. Ability of Argentines to withstand the drop in wheat was attributed to the sharp decline suffered recently by these issues.

Domestic Bonds Soggy.

Both speculative and high grade domestic bonds were soggy. Losses in rail issues included Nickel Plate 6s, as well as such bonds as issues of Alleghany corporation, Baltimore and Ohio, New York Central, Southern Pacific and others.

British 5½s dropped further to a price around 105, reflecting uneasiness over the movements of sterling.

United Drug Declines.

Continued selling in United Drug 5s due 1953, depressed the issue 5½ points to a new low for the year at 43½ before support produced a rally. The present price level compares with a level around 63 last week and with a high for the year of 93.

Heavy selling of the issue, which is outstanding in the amount of $40,000,000, called attention in speculative quarters to the official announcement on Sept. 26 that the Liggett organization would have to undergo a reorganization unless it could obtain a substantial reduction of rents on its retail chain, numbering 555 units.

Gulf States Steel.

Please furnish me with the latest report on the following: Gulf States, Steel.—R. C. R.

Gulf States Steel company is a relatively small unit in the steel industry compared with some of the giant corporations operating in that field. It is, however, the second largest in the south.

During 1929, 1930, and 1931 it pursued a program of expansion to lessen its dependency on wire products. As a result, 3c per cent of total output in 1931 was wire products, 32 per cent sheets, 22 per cent plates, and 10 per cent bars; whereas in 1929, 68 per cent was wire products and 32 per cent bars.

The company has to compete with southern branches of larger companies and with northern companies that take advantage of low cost inland waterway shipping.

Profitable operations in September, 1932, the first profitable month for more than a year enabled the company to report net loss of $472,000 for the first nine months of 1932, against loss of $783,000 for the corresponding 1931 period.

Net loss for the first half of 1932 was $360,000, against net loss of $521,000 for the corresponding 1931 period. Net loss for 1931 was $976,000, against an $815,000 loss for 1930. Net income for 1929 was $1,310,000, or $5.93 per common share, against net income of $925,000 for 1928.

On Dec. 31, 1931, current assets were $3,906,000 and current liabilities were $1,517,000. Cash was $433,000, about one-third of notes payable, totaling $1,242,000. Working capital was $2,389,000, against $2,964,000 the year before.

Funded debt totals $5,375,000. There are outstanding 20,000 shares of 7 per cent cumulative preferred [par $100] and 197,500 shares of no par common.

Nothing has been paid on the preferred since the $1.75 disbursement on April 1, 1931. The preferred is speculative and the common is more so.

Arizona Edison.

I am interested in Arizona Edison company 5s of 1948, and would like some information on them.—S. R. C.

Arizona Edison company is part of the Tri-Utilities system. It furnishes utility services to 28 communities in Arizona, one in California, and two in Mexico. About 55 per cent of gross is from electricity, 18 per cent from water and 15 per cent from gas sales. The company was placed in receivership on Jan. 14, 1932.

Gross revenues for 1931 were $1,710,000, against $1,909,000 for 1930 and $1,765,000 for 1929. Charges were earned 1.40 times in 1931, 2.28 times in 1930 and 2.71 times in 1929. On Dec. 31, 1931, current assets were $861,000, and current liabilities were $448,000.

The $3,964,000 first 5s, due 1948, are secured equally with $1,401,000 first 6s, due 1945, by a first mortgage on all assets of the company. There are $1,500,000 of unsecured notes in default.

The first 5s, due 1948, are speculative.

BY FRED HARVEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 25.—The stock market continued in its accustomed pre election calm today and the list drifted in a narrow circle, with small losses slightly in the majority at the close. The turnover was not much above half a million shares.

The assumption was general that the street had its ears cocked toward the offices of the United States Steel corporation for news on the preferred dividend. As usual, the announcement of the regular $1.75 disbursement came after the close of the market and, cheering as it was, it was too late for traders to do anything about it.

On the other hand, however, there was plenty of evidence that election uncertainty was keeping the market in the doldrums, holding up many orders.

U. S. Steel Steady.

The shares of the U. S. Steel corporation were held to a narrow groove throughout the session, but the undertone in them was somewhat steady. The common closed off a fraction and the preferred dipped more than 1 on a few sales.

As depressing factors outside, the market had to contend not alone with a fresh drop in wheat to a new season's low and corresponding weakness in other commodities, but with another abrupt dip in sterling.

There were signs of general improvement rather early in the session, when gains of from a fraction to a point or so were scattered through the list. But buyers still remained out of the mood to make commitments and before long values slid back into a stodgy heaviness.

Some Selling Targets.

Rather than resort to a heavy selling drive, traders appeared content to let the list continue its sluggish way regardless of lost commissions. And with price fluctuations so small and uncertain even specialists on the floor of the exchange have lately found it next to impossible to make a dollar.

A couple of specialties were singled out for sellers' targets. One such stock to come under pressure was National Biscuit. Pool selling, it was said, made Drug another soft spot. International Business Machine showed a recession of about 2 points at one time. Loose Wiles was a feature of heaviness among the food shares.

The farm implement group could not get away from the poor showing of wheat. Case dipping 1 on the day and Harvester a fraction. Nor did mail order favorites such as Montgomery Ward and Sears-Roebuck show independence of the commodity trend.

Besides U. S. Steel, the other pivotals showed a mixture of negligible gains and losses, depending on the extent they were able to take advantage of a late drying up of selling.

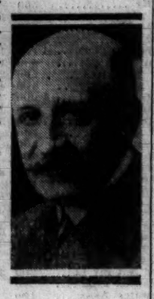
HARRY POWERS MAY AGAIN HEAD THE ILLINOIS

Bond Owners Buy Equity in Playhouse.

BY AL CHASE.

Purchase of the equity in the Illinois theater property yesterday by the bondholders' protective committee disclosed the probability that Harry J. Powers, veteran manager, again will be in charge of the destinies of this famous old playhouse. Mr. Powers' resumption of managership, of course, is contingent on bookings being available. At present, successful plays in the east are few and far between and nothing has been booked for the Jackson boulevard theater.



HARRY J. POWERS. [Moffett Photo.]

Title to the theater property, at 61-66 East Jackson boulevard, was conveyed by the Amusement Company of Illinois, of which Mitchell L. Erlanger is president and Joseph P. Bickerton Jr. is secretary, to Ralph De Swarte, secretary of the bondholders' protective committee. According to the county records, $23,000 was paid for the equity. Charles H. Binney is chairman of the committee.

Bought Fee For $500,000.

The original $750,000 bond issue was underwritten by the Continental and Commercial company, at 5½ per cent. It has been paid down to $600,000, at the time of default, which was last February. The trust deed is dated April 1, 1927.

The Amusement Company of Illinois acquired the fee back in 1927 for a reported $500,000. Previous to that it had been operated under a lease which called for $15,000 annual rental. A. M. Rogers of Mayer, Myer, Austrian & Platt was attorney in yesterday's transaction.

Takes Title for Bondholders.

Harry G. Zimmermann of the Chicago Title and Trust company yesterday took title for the bondholders to the Boulevard garage, at the northeast corner of Custer avenue and Warren street, Evanston. Title was conveyed through quitclaim deed by William D. Wollesen and others to Walter A. Stahl. The latter then conveyed it to Mr. Zimmermann.

This property originally was financed by a $45,000 first mortgage bond issue underwritten by the Foreman-State Trust and Savings bank. This has since been paid down to $35,000. Holman D. Pettibone, president of the Chicago Title and Trust company, is chairman of the bondholders' protective committee. Charles T. Rothermel is secretary. The other members are Perkins B. Bass, Oscar H. Haugan, C. Edward Carlson, and William A. Peterson. Miller, Gorham & Wales are attorneys.

COPPER PRICES SLIDE LOWER AS USERS WAIT

New York, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Domestic copper prices, as well as those for foreign shipments, eased slightly today as users of the metal exhibited reluctance to buy in an unsettled market.

Electrolytic for domestic shipment was offered at 5¼ cents a pound delivered to the end of 1932, 5.75 cents to the end of March, and second quarter 1933 metal was 6 cents a pound with producers out of the domestic market. Speculative copper was obtainable at 5¼ cents. The price for European destinations was 5.35 to 5.45 cents a pound.

ALLEGHANY CORP. REPORTS A SMALL LOSS IN QUARTER

The Alleghany corporation, top company in the Van Sweringen railroad holding structure, reported a net loss of $39,710 after all deductions in the three months ended Sept. 30, against a net profit of $566,723 in the same period last year. This brought net profit for the nine months ended Sept. 30 to $210,692, against $2,649,073 in the same period last year.

NORTH AMERICAN EARNINGS $2.42 A COMMON SHARE

The North American company reports for the twelve months ended Sept. 30, 1932, a net income of $18,992,252 after all charges, taxes, and depreciation, equal to $2.42 a share on the average number of common shares outstanding during the period, after preferred dividends. This compares with $25,210,221, or $3.64 a share, in the preceding year.

U.S. INDUSTRY PICKS UP SPEED IN SEPTEMBER

Better Than Seasonal Gains Reported.

Additions to Reserve Funds.

"During September and the first three weeks of October there were further additions to the reserve funds of member banks, arising from increases in the country's stock of monetary gold, from an unseasonal return flow of currency, and from issues of additional national bank notes," the summary concluded. "Member bank indebtedness to the reserve banks declined by more than 100 million dollars from Sept. 7 to Oct. 19 and their reserve balances increased by 180 million dollars.

"During September and the first two weeks of October reporting member banks in leading cities showed a further growth in investment holdings, largely of United States government securities, but to some extent of other investments. Loans of reporting banks declined further in September; in the early part of October loans at banks in New York City showed an increase. There was considerable growth in government deposits and in bankers' balances during the period; time deposits also increased.

"Money rates in the open market declined to lower levels during the first half of October, the rate on prime commercial paper being reduced from a range of 2@2¼ to a range of 1⅝@2 per cent, and the rate on 90 day bankers' acceptances from ⅝ of 1 per cent to ⅓ of 1 per cent. Rates for call loans on stock exchange collateral declined from 2 per cent to 1 per cent."

CHICAGO REPORT

Confirmation of the employment gains reported in several manufacturing lines during September is found in the monthly review of industrial employment conditions for this district which was issued last night by the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago.

While the total number of employés declined in the ten industrial groups surveyed, there was improvement reported in six of the 10 lines of activity. The industries in the Seventh reserve district which had a larger number of employés during the month were rubber products, textiles, wood products, food, leather products, and stone-clay-glass products. The upturn in the last two divisions was contrary to the usual seasonal trend.

Total employment in the ten manufacturing groups was off 4 per cent, while wage payments were down 13 per cent from the previous month. The decline was attributed to curtailment in the automobile plants.

The department of agriculture reports a continuance of decline in farm wages, without any appreciable change in the supply of workers available.

Tuesday, October 26, 1932.

TO THE EDITOR: I read your column in THE TRIBUNE every day and will appreciate any advice that you can give me. In 1928 I purchased a small home, paying $2,800 for same. We spent about $2,500 in remodeling this home. We secured a loan through a building and loan association for $3,800 and used part of this money as purchase price and part of it I used for remodeling.

My payments are at the rate of $38 per month; this loan would pay itself out in about ten years and six months. I have been paying regularly for three years. However, in May, 1932, the company I was employed with for the last twelve years was forced to discontinue business. Due to unemployment I could not continue my payments.

At present I have employment and have requested the association to reduce my payments. They agreed to accept $33 per month, but insisted that I start payment at once. Due to small outstanding debts and doctor's bills this is impossible and I advised them that I would be able to resume payments Jan. 1, 1933. They informed me that unless payments started immediately they will garnishee my wages. Can this be done and if so how much of it can they garnishee?

I am married and have two children and at present am earning $100 a month. The title of the property is in my name.—J. N.

ANSWER: You are five months behind in your payments and naturally the building and loan association will insist upon payments in view of the fact that you are working. You should be able to straighten out this matter with the association, offering to pay as much as you can until Jan. 1, when full payments can be made. From the facts stated we do not believe they can garnishee your wages. You owe them money and it is possible they can get a judgment against you; in that case they could garnishee your wages, taking one-half the amount you are earning. By all means, try and straighten out this matter and prevent legal action.

BEG YOUR PARDON: One of yesterday's articles regarding redemption of delinquent taxes should have read, "You cannot redeem after three years have expired and a tax title has been issued," instead of two years.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 9,000; hogs, 22,000; sheep, 18,000.

The fall break in hogs carried prices down 10@15c more yesterday. The top fell 15c to $3.55, while the general average for the day lost 10c, going down to $3.35, within 20c of the low spot last spring. Buyers showed more willingness to take the new crop of pigs at the fresh declines and movement proved fairly active in the later rounds, particularly to the larger houses. General quality was better and this attracted buying orders from the bigger interests, who took on a generous share of the high grade spring pigs averaging 175@250 lbs at $3.40@3.50.

Armour, Swift, and Wilson handled a combined total of 10,400, leaving very few of the strictly good grades in the pens at the finish. Butcher grades averaging 300@400 lbs were listed at $3.00@3.40, while packing sows of the same weight sold at $2.60@3.20. Some extremely heavy "packers" brought $2.35@2.50.

Drop in Receipts.

A drop in cattle receipts gave the trade a better tone yesterday and some strength, and slight upturns showed in the later selling when advance estimates indicated a lighter movement at all principal centers for midweek. The country has apparently heeded the warning to hold back until the trade is reasonably certain that the break in the general market has been halted. Tendency ruled higher at the finish yesterday, but actual price gains were uncovered only in spots.

Prime weighty beef steers and selected yearling stock were scarce and scored a mild gain. The rank and file of cattle cleared at the previous day's quotations. Prime 1,319 lb steers topped the list at $9.25. The bulk sold at $5.75@8.00, with poorer grades down to $4.00. Only ill-bred grassy stock sold below the latter price.

Lamb Prices Advance.

After a steady to strong opening yesterday, lamb prices forged ahead 15@25c in a lively closing session. Top natives to packers reached $5.85 on the late bulge, the highest sale since Oct. 14. Range lambs sold at $5.75 and under, while feeding lambs met fair demand at $4.50@4.75, but only a few buyers were willing to pay more than $5.00 for fancy selections.

Country buyers of feeding lambs are a little busier lately, but they are taking a smaller number than usual for this season of the year.

COTTON AVERAGED HIGHER; OFFERINGS WELL TAKEN

Cotton markets were regarded as having a somewhat better tone and finished with net gains of 2 to 7 points on the active futures. The range was narrow, hedge sales were well absorbed, and the trade seemed to have a little more confidence in the present price levels despite the weakness in grains. The census report on ginning to Oct. 18 showed 7,311,200 bales, against 9,496,965 bales last year, and 9,254,968 bales in 1930. October contracts in Chicago ended their existence at 6.15c, or 4 points net lower than the previous day. Spot cotton was 5c higher, New York being 6.35c; New Orleans, 6.20c; Houston, 6.05c, and Galveston, 6.10c. Liverpool closed 4 points net higher. Prices follow:

I. C. C. Approves R. F. C. Loans to Two Chicago Railroads

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—The interstate commerce commission today approved loans by the Reconstruction Finance corporation to the Chicago and North Western railway, the Chicago and Eastern Illinois and the Erie Railroad company. It also received an application from the Southern Pacific for approval of consolidation of 14 lines in Louisiana and Texas owned by that road.

The largest loan approved was that of the Erie which was authorized to borrow $6,170,000 for the payment of taxes and interest.

The North Western loan was for $1,000,000 and was made for the purpose of purchasing and treating railroad ties. As security for the loan, the R. F. C. is to retain title to the ties until they have been paid for. In addition, the railroad is required to post $250,000 of its first and refunding mortgage 5 per cent bonds of 2037 as collateral.

Is Without Funds.

The Chicago and North Western, said the commission, is without funds to buy ties for use in 1934 and sought the loan in order to prepare ties for that year. "Ties may be purchased at the present time at low cost," the commission said.

The loan to the Chicago and Eastern Illinois was an additional one of $338,000. It was for three years and is to be used to pay $200,000 of Indiana taxes due Nov. 1, $38,000 of equipment trust certificates due Dec. 1, and rail replacement costs of $100,000. Securities now pledged with the R. F. C. as collateral for previous loans are to be used also as collateral for the additional loan.

Failure to approve the loan, declared Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman, in a concurring opinion, would precipitate a receivership. He pointed out that the R. F. C., with the loan approved today, would have loaned a total of $5,840,000 to the carrier.

Objects to Loan.

Commissioner Charles D. Mahaffie, objecting to the loan, asserted that in view of the failure of the company to earn its interest by large amounts since 1929, "it seems clear that attempts to support it by further borrowing are futile and only postpone the time when a reorganization and scaling of fixed charges will be essential."

Commissioner Eastman said the management and the security holders would have ample opportunity to determine the need for a voluntary reorganization in the light of the earnings of the next few months and act accordingly.

Under the Southern Pacific's consolidation plan the Texas and New Orleans Railroad company, one of its companies, will absorb the other thirteen companies. The lines involved other than the Texas and New Orleans are the Louisiana Western; Morgan's Louisiana and Texas Railroad and Steamship company; the Iberia and Vermilion; the Franklin and Abbeville; the Lake Charles and Northern; the Houston and Shreveport; the Galveston, Harrisburg and San Antonio; the Houston and Texas Central; the Houston, East and West Texas; the San Antonio and Aransas Pass; the Dayton-Goose Creek; the Texas Midland, and the Gulf and West Texas.

The applicants claim a minimum value to the properties of $242,397,047. The consolidation, if the commission approves, will be effected by issuance by the Texas and New Orleans of 596,464 shares of stock of an aggregate par value of $59,646,400 to the Southern Pacific company, and assumption by the Texas and New Orleans of bonded indebtedness of $69,153,000, of open account indebtedness of $40,289,797.91 to the Southern Pacific, and other indebtedness of $1,064,062 of the other lines. The proposal conforms to the commission's railroad consolidation plan.

Unification of the lines will permit economies to be effected and will facilitate financing the needs of the carriers, the applicants said. The consolidated company will be able to issue and sell bonds more advantageously than the individual companies, it was asserted.

N. W. EARNINGS UP

Railroad earnings are continuing to improve, according to reports issued yesterday. The Chicago and North Western found September the most profitable month so far this year and for the first time in a year and a half it surpassed the figure of the preceding year.

Gross earnings for September were $6,625,516, the best since March, and $257,915 ahead of August. Net operating income, before fixed charge payments, etc., was $991,721, which was $315,854 ahead of August and $65,413 larger than September, 1931. The deficit after all charges was less than $100,000 in September.

Reports from 21 roads for September disclosed a total net operating income of $17,476,000 as compared with $10,148,000 in August. This was the best record to be reported so far this year.

Gross revenues of these roads in September were $80,797,000, against $95,707,000 in September, 1931, a decrease of 15.5 per cent, and against $133,051,000 in September, 1930, a fall of 39.2 per cent. Their August gross was $72,918,000.

The Lehigh Valley reported an increase in net operating income for September, bringing the total of roads which have shown like gains for the month to about ten. In August only four roads increased net operating income, while five operated at a loss. The Seaboard Air Line is the only road to date to have shown an operating loss for September. The Pere Marquette and Wabash showed operating profits in September, although in September, 1931, they operated at losses.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 25.—Greater concentration of operations in the New York and the New Jersey territories is revealed in a report issued today by Sears, Roebuck & Co., which shows that the large Chicago mail order firm has spent more than $100,000,000 in the last two years in these areas.

Of this amount, according to W. P. Emery, New York district manager, who released the report, $73,566,782 went for the purchase of merchandise from manufacturers located in the New York metropolitan area. It represents 20 per cent of all the merchandise Sears bought during the period.

Figures showing expenditures in this section of the country were issued in connection with the company's intensive campaign of department store opening in the metropolitan area this fall, which will start Thursday with a big unit in Hackensack, and indicate Sears is determined to make itself felt as a retailer in a district where in the past its most concentrated buying has been done.

Two years' totals for Sears expenditures in the whole state of New York were $86,943,003, which includes merchandise purchases and pay roll, rents and taxes, and newspaper advertising for the company's retail stores in the state.

OUTPUT OF AUTOS DROPS TO 9,605 CARS IN WEEK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 25.—Automobile production tapered off to a new minimum in the week ended Oct. 22, output totaling 9,605 cars and trucks. This compared with production of 11,181 units in the preceding week. In the same week of 1931 output totaled 17,191 units, in 1930 production was 35,638 cars for the corresponding week and in 1929 the total output of plants was 76,870 cars and trucks.

Preparations are going ahead slowly for placing in production of new models.

Foreign Demand Gains.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—(AP)—The commerce department reported today that the overseas demand for American passenger cars and trucks during September improved noticeably, as compared with the previous month. Car and truck shipments amounted to $2,661,180, a gain of 9 per cent over August.

TROOPS RUSHED TO HOLD LID ON EAST TEXAS OIL

Follows Court Decision on Proration Plan.

Austin, Tex., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Additional National Guardsmen and squads of rangers were rushed to the east Texas oil field tonight upon orders of Gov. R. S. Sterling to keep the lid clamped on the vast producing area in face of a federal court decision holding that existing proration regulations are invalid.

The troop movement was a repetition of the mobilization more than a year ago when Gov. Sterling proclaimed martial law to curb the unbridled flood of crude oil that undermined the stability of the oil industry and brought prices to the lowest levels in history.

"East Texas will not be permitted to run wild again," said Gov. Sterling.

The troops were to be assigned to patrolling oil wells to enforce orders of the Texas railroad commission limiting production of each well to forty barrels daily.

Commission's Rule Illegal.

Interpreting the decision of a three judge federal court handed down yesterday at Sherman as overthrowing the existing proration system, some operators today opened wide the gates of production.

The court in declaring invalid the present proration regulations held in effect that the commission was overstepping its legal right to conserve resources and prevent waste.

With proration limiting production to 30,000 barrels a day in the prolific field, or forty barrels a day from each well, a number of the major buying companies recently lifted their payments to above $1 a barrel, only two holding back. In turn, several of the companies today advanced the price of gasoline to the consumer 1 cent a gallon.

Production Gains.

New York, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Daily average gross crude oil production in the United States increased 28,500 barrels in the week ended Oct. 22, totaling 2,159,150 barrels, the American Petroleum Institute reported today. Daily average production east of California increased 14,600 barrels to 1,671,050 barrels.

Refineries representing 93.6 per cent of estimated total capacity, operated at 59.4 per cent of their capacity, reported daily average runs of crude oil to stills as 2,145,000 barrels. Daily average the previous week for refineries representing 93.6 per cent of total, operated at 59.2 per cent of capacity, was 2,138,000 barrels.

Governors Draft Curb Plan.

Wichita, Kas., Oct. 25.—(AP)—The ten states oil advisory committee in session here today proffered aid to Gov. Sterling of Texas in keeping a curb on the east Texas oil field.

The governor was advised the committee had nearly completed a draft of a proposed uniform conservancy law for the oil producing states and offered a draft for his consideration.

PICTURE NO. 9—"AROUND THE WORLD"—THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Clue: The country represented by the picture printed above is a self-governing British dominion located in North America. Within its boundaries flows a great river which is navigable to ocean-going vessels for 600 miles.

The Name of This Country Is _____

FOLLOW THESE RULES:

1. ELIGIBILITY: Every man, woman, boy and girl is eligible except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. It costs nothing.

2. WHAT TO DO: Name the countries of the world represented by pictures printed in the Chicago Daily Tribune. A new picture will be printed each day for 42 consecutive days except Sundays. Each entry must consist of answers to the 42 pictures. Hold all pictures until you have the complete set. It is not necessary to buy the Chicago Tribune to compete. Pictures may be copied or traced. The Chicago Tribune may be examined at public libraries or at its offices free of charge.

3. WHERE TO SEND ENTRIES: When you have the complete set of 42 pictures mail them by First Class Mail, Postage Prepaid, to "Around the World," Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1718, Chicago, Illinois. All entries must be in by midnight 15 days after Picture No. 42 has been printed. Entries with insufficient postage will be returned by the Post Office Department.

4. THE PRIZES: 430 Cash Prizes totaling $5,000.00 will be paid by the Chicago Tribune to the persons who send in the most nearly correct and neatest entries. (See prize list at right.) Correctness is the prime consideration. Elaborate entries will receive no greater consideration than simple ones.

5. THE JUDGES: A committee of judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Entrants agree to accept their decision as final. In case of ties a duplicate award will be paid to each tying contestant.
